FEW UNIONIST GAINS; LIBERALS SEEM SAFE

Out of Seventy-five Seats Filled Yesterday the Coalition Lost Four, Gained Two.

WON TORY STRONGHOLDS

Unionists Captured Two Seats from Enemy in London and Two in Liverpool and Vicinity.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The position of the parties to-night after the second day's pollings in the general election is as follows:

Government coalition—Liberals, 87; Labor, 14; Nationalists, 16. Total, 117.

Opposition—Unionists, 116.

The results to-day with 75 more seats decided confirm the opinion formed from the results of Saturday's contests, viz.: that the Unionists have no possible hope of replacing the Liberal Government. The only question remaining is whether the Liberals will return with a larger or smaller majority.

To gain a bare majority in the new Parliament the Unionists must make a net gain of 62 seats. Thus far, with 130 pollings, they have a net gain of only five seats. The total Unionist gain has eleven seats, offset by a Liberal gain of six seats. The gain for the Unionists on Saturday was seven, while the Liberals gained four. To-day the Unionists gained four, and the Liberals two seats. A continuation at this rate of progress would fulfill the Unionist prediction that the Asquith Cabinet would come back with a greatly weakened majority and would be more than ever dependent upon their Irish and Labor allies.

It must be remembered, however, that the Liberals lost at the January elections a large number of seats through three-cornered contests. Such contests are largely eliminated in the present elections, and this may give the Liberals sufficient gains to balance those of the Unionists. On the whole, it seems likely that the new House of Commons will meet with the position of the parties practically unchanged. The question will then arise whether the King will feel justified in giving guarantees for the creation of Liberal Peers to force the Veto bill through the House of Lords.

The Unionist rally in Lancashire has been maintained and the Liberal hope of winning two seats at Preston has been disappointed, but what the Liberals lost in Lancashire was compensated for by their better showing in Yorkshire.

In Liverpool, the strong campaign by the Unionist orator, F. E. Smith, had the result of greatly improving the Unionist position. The Unionists gained the seat for the Exchange Division of Liverpool, as well as that for Birkenhead. In the latter case the Liberal defeat was attributed to the recent absence of Henry Vivian, the Liberal Member, on a free trade mission in Canada.

The two seats lost by the Liberals in London to-day, Islington, North, and St. Pancras, West, were held by very small majorities in the previous Parliament. Apparently, therefore, the metropolis stands very much as it did in January with regard to the contending parties.

Perhaps rather significant are some of the Liberal gains, such as Wakefield, a cathedral city, which has been represented by a Unionist for eight years, and Cheltenham, another Tory stronghold and residential city, largely composed of retired officers. It is also notable that in the royal borough of Windsor the Liberals succeeded in reducing the Unionist majority.

These signs of the conversion of the traditionally Conservative middle classes may be an indication of a similar change in the county agricultural districts, which went almost entirely Unionist in January.

Among the members returned unopposed is Alderman Daniel Boyle for North Mayo. Boyle won this seat last January by only 40 votes, and his unopposed return is now attributed to appreciation of his services in accompanying John E. Redmond on his recent mission to America.

Mr. Redmond to-night issued a public denial of the allegation made by a Conservative candidate that he (Redmond) in a public speech had repudiated allegiance to the King.

The weather conditions were better and the closeness of the results already announced brought out a greater number of voters and workers. In some divisions voters who had removed since the last register was made up spent the night in their old constituencies in order to vote early and get back to work. The rush at many booths was great.

London to-night is displaying much enthusiasm and the successful candidates are being borne in processions through the streets with torchlights. As the returns come in, showing the closeness of the contest, interest is greatly increased, and vast crowds gathered in Fleet Street, Trafalgar Square, and other places where the results were shown, cheering and booing according to their political affiliations.

There were similar scenes in Liverpool, Leeds, and other towns where elections were held. The weather improved greatly during the afternoon and evening, so that the crowds were enabled to watch the returns without discomfort.

The political clubs were filled with members. At the Carlton and other Unionist gathering places much disappointment was expressed at the smallness of the gains, which were expected to be treble what they turned out. In Liberal quarters the greatest enthusiasm prevailed, as it was predicted, even among the stanchest supporters of the Government, that the Unionists would make a net gain of eight seats in to-day's polling.

The Stock Exchange, which had anticipated big Unionist gains, was affected adversely by the result of Saturday's pollings. Prices of consols and home rails were depressed throughout the day.

Taking a line from Mr. Balfour's speech at Sheffield last night, most of the Unionist morning papers to-morrow will blame Premier Asquith for "rushing" the elections on the old register, and as a further excuse for the failure of the Unionists to make a better showing at the polls, complain that they did not have sufficient time to perfect their electoral organization.

The Daily Telegraph will say: "If it had not been for the deplorable inferiority of the Unionist organization both in London and Manchester, the work of stamping out the dollar domination would be still further advanced."

The Telegraph will denounce the Asquith-Redmond coalition and their intended "plot" to destroy the British Constitution. "A more colossal fraud," the paper will say, "was never imposed by mendacious charlatanism on ignorant minds inflamed with class hatred by insincere men."

The advice of The Telegraph and all the other Unionist organs to their party to-day will be to work their hardest in the remaining pollings to increase the gains already secured.

The Liberal papers will express editorially complete satisfaction at the results so far. Small interest is being shown in the woman's suffrage movement, the independent suffragist candidate, Jacobs, who contested the seat for St. Pancras

GEM NAMED FOR MORGAN.

Newly Discovered Pink Beryl Is to be Known as Morganite.

J. Pierpont Morgan had a new honor conferred upon him last night by the New York Academy of Sciences. A discovery, Morganite, a species of beryl, was named after him. Dr. George F. Kunz, Chairman of the geological section of the academy, said this:

"I have named it after J. Pierpont Morgan, the distinguished financier, art lover, and philanthropist, in recognition of the encouragement he has always extended to the arts and sciences and for his presentation to the American Museum of Natural History and the Museum of Natural History, Paris, of collections of precious stones and minerals in 1889, 1900, and 1902.

"This gem, which was discovered in its perfection during the present year, differs from other beryls in that it fluoresces an intense cherry red when exposed to the X-rays. It is found in magnificent gems, weighing from 1 karat to 100 karats each. It is found principally in the mountainous region of Mount Bity, an island on the coast of Madagascar.

"The color of the Morganite is that of a true pink rose—a pure, clear color, with less of the magenta of even a pale tourmaline, lacking the lilac of the Kunzite. It is a warmer pink than the pale pink topaz, and is full of the purple of the darker pink topaz. It is not as vivid a gem as the pink topaz, and both pink topaz and pink spinel are never so large as this gem.

"It is obtained in larger and finer gems of rose color than any other pink gem we have ever had.

"Morganite is undoubtedly one of the most important gem minerals of this remarkable find from the pegmatite veins of Madagascar, and it is not only the finest example from this locality, but is unique for a pink gem of any kind, from any locality."

RESCUES HIS OWN FAMILY.

Fireman Tierney Responding to Alarm Finds Home Afire.

When Engine Company 37, responding to an alarm of fire, stopped in front of the laundry of Alfred I. Wood, at 301 West 126th Street, last night, one of the firemen, John Tierney, tumbled before the rest from the engine and darted upstairs without waiting for orders. Tierney lived on the top floor of the building.

As he rushed through the halls, he helped the twelve families living there through the stifling smoke to the roof, gathering up his own wife and 8-year-old daughter Juliette, as he passed his door. A few lagged in the smoke-filled hall, but they were found and led to the roof by Policeman Ryan.

Later Mrs. Elizabeth Wood recalled that her sister, Miss Kate Flood, had been taking a nap in the flat, and rushed back into the building. When she failed to reappear, Policeman Ryan entered from the roof and found both women overcome in the hall. He carried them out, and they were revived.

The fire started from an overheated furnace in the basement. The police say a similar fire started there three weeks ago, and that the Building Department ordered the janitor not to build a fire in the furnace till it was repaired, but that the order was ignored. The blaze was confined to the first floor, and did a damage of $2,500.

HIS NECK BROKEN BY AUTO.

Stranger Instantly Killed by Cord A. Meyer's Machine in Brooklyn.

Cord A. Meyer, nephew of the late Cord Meyer, ran down a man in his automobile at Bedford Avenue and Monroe Street, Brooklyn, yesterday. The victim's neck was broken and he was killed almost instantly. Mr. Meyer stopped his machine, saw that the man was dead, and hunted for a policeman. He found Policeman James J. Kelly of the Gates Avenue Station and surrendered himself. An ambulance from the Cumberland Street Hospital, removed the dead man to the station. There was nothing on him to aid the police in identifying him.

Mr. Meyer said he was on his way to Williamsburg, operating the car himself. As he approached Monroe Street he saw the stranger try to cross the street, and he slowed down. There was another automobile coming behind Mr. Meyer's car, and the stranger, noticing this, stopped suddenly to avoid it and stepped back directly in front of Mr. Meyer's car. He was knocked down and the wheels passed over his neck. In the Gates Avenue Court later Mr. Meyer's explanation was accepted by the court and he was paroled on his own recognizance.

The victim was about 40 years of age, 5 feet 7½ inches tall, and weighed about 125 pounds. He was well dressed in a brown suit, had dark brown hair and blue eyes.

TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Machine Hits a Tree at Night on Hook Mountain Road Near Nyack.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Charles O'Hara, President of the Northern Valley Paper Company, and a son of the late Councilman Edward O'Hara of Englewood, N. J., is said to be dying from a fractured skull, the result of an auto accident that happened late last night on Hook Mountain, near Nyack. The auto was owned by F. Reidmeister of Englewood, but he was not in the party taken out by his chauffeur, Daniel Marshall.

Besides O'Hara the guests were Policeman Thomas O'Neill of Tenafly and Michael Murray of Englewood. The chauffeur says that the car skidded as he turned out to allow another car to pass, and as it crashed sideways into a tree O'Hara and the policeman, who were in the rear seat, were thrown out with considerable force.

BREAKS ANKLE ON ELEVATED.

Actress' Foot Caught Between Car and Snow-Covered Platform.

Bessie Mulligan of 207 West Eighty-fourth Street, who said she was an actress and is apparently about 20 years old, met with a painful accident on the platform of the Ninth Avenue elevated station at Columbus Avenue and Eighty-first Street last night, and in consequence is confined to her home with a fractured left ankle. The young woman's foot was caught between the side of the elevated platform and the southbound train she was attempting to board, and was dragged a number of feet before the guard's signal brought the train to a standstill.

The injured woman was taken to the women's waiting room, and Dr. Brewer of the J. Hood Wright Hospital, who was called by Policeman Early of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, applied bandages and administered restoratives. Miss Mulligan was then removed to her home in a taxicab. Miss Mulligan declared that the guard started the train as she was in the act of stepping upon the platform of the middle car. She said that her right foot was on the car platform and her left foot slipped off the snow-covered boards between the car and the edge of the platform.

JOKE OVER DEFEAT AS CONGRESS OPENS

Members Who Will Not Return to Next Session Greeted by Comrades' Gibes.

DEPEW IN JOVIAL MOOD

"Wasn't It Just Before I Died I Saw You Last?" He Asks—Message Goes In To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Simultaneously, at the stroke of 12 to'day, the ivory mallet of the Speaker and the ivory block of the Vice President called the two houses to order for the last session of the Sixty-first Congress. The flag of the United States ran up over each wing of the Capitol and in both chambers the chaplains offered prayer. The House was in session about half an hour, stopping long enough to swear in three new members. The Senate sat only half that time, and its four new statesmen will take the oath to-morrow.

Aside from the call of the rolls, the only official business of the day was the appointment of a joint committee to wait on the President, the informing of each House by the other that it was ready to do business, and the adoption of resolutions of respect to the memory of the members of the House and Senate who died in the recess. Neither House waited for the return of the committee that informed the President of the convening of Congress, and the President's message, with which already leaders of both houses are familiar, will not come in until to-morrow.

Though snow was falling more heavily than on any day since the inauguration of Mr. Taft two years ago, large crowds gathered to witness the opening of a session made interesting by the imminent change of party control. The galleries of both houses were filled—chiefly with women—except that in the diplomatic galleries, as usual, there was only a sprinkling of spectators. No one from the White House attended, and the onlookers for the most part seemed to see Congress in session for the first time, many of them lingering after adjournment to watch the little groups of Senators or Representatives who remained chatting on the floor.

Democratic Demonstration.

Only in the House did the Democrats make any demonstration of enthusiasm over their recent victory. There, while the roll was being called, the entrance of Minority Leader Champ Clark, presumably the Speaker of the next House, raised the rebel yell among his followers, while before the gavel fell at noon cheers and shouts of laughter from various corners of the hall proclaimed the triumphant mood of the minority. These quickly subsided, however, and the announcement of the death of members made all demonstration on adjournment impossible.

In the Senate the usual decorum was observed, though on the floor many gentle thrusts at defeated members kept the elder statesmen smiling. The call of the Senate showed only seven Senators absent—Mr. Elkins, of West Virginia, who is at his home here suffering from a protracted illness; Hughes of Colorado, who is also ill; Bankhead of Alabama; Frye of Maine, La Follette of Wisconsin, Oliver of Pennsylvania, and Taliaferro of Florida. Mr. La Follette came in before adjournment.

On motion of Mr. Hale of Maine a committee of two members was appointed to wait on the President and invite any communication he might make. Senators Cullom and Money were selected and they joined Representatives Tawney, Olmstead, and Clark, representing the House. Then Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts offered the regular resolution fixing noon as the hour for the daily meetings of the Senate, and after that there remained only the resolutions of regret for the deceased members.

Senator Bacon of Georgia first announced the death of his colleague, Mr. Clay, and, in moving tones, called attention to the fact that never before in the history of the Senate had the opening day called for so long or so distinguished a roll of death. They were all, he pointed out, of well known records and high place in the Senate. Besides Mr. Clay, there were announced the deaths of Senator McEnery of Louisiana, Senator Daniel of Virginia, and Senator Dolliver of Iowa—all Democrats except the Iowa insurgent.

No Legislative Programme Arranged

Three of the successors to these Senators were on hand, simply as spectators. Mr. Terrell of Georgia was under escort of Mr. Bacon, ex-Gov. Swanson of Virginia was with Senator Martin of that State, and "Lafe" Young of Iowa, a bitter political enemy of Mr. Cummins, was also present. Following the adoption of the resolutions adjournment was taken wtihout the introduction of a single measure.

For much longer than the session lasted the Senators remained on the floor chatting and joking with each other. There was some serious talk of politics among the older men, but it was evident that nothing like a legislative programme has been agreed on, unless it be called an agreement that in certain quarters it is felt that nothing should be attempted at the short session. That feeling is not shared by the insurgents or by all the Democrats, but they realize that they are still in the minority.

An interesting group from a political point of view was one formed by Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, Senator Carter of Montana, and Senator Bailey of Texas, one of the leading Democrats, who is often to be seen in talk with the Republican leaders. Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania also had a chat with Mr. Aldrich, while Mr. Smoot of Utah and Mr. Crane of Massachusetts seemed to talk with everybody.

Most of the defeated members have learned by now to take their medicine well. Senator Kean of New Jersey was as merry as ever and Senator Beveridge was even more chatty than usual, joining heartily in jokes at his own expense. But no one seemed to mind defeat less than Mr. Depew of New York, who will be succeeded by a Democrat after this session. He seemed to take the whole thing as a joke and insisted on his friends regarding it in the same light.

"Why," he said, laughing gayly, as he was drawn into a crowd of sympathetic friends, "I haven't seen you since I died."

They all laughed at that, and none more loudly than he.

Even La Follette's Jokes Bellicose.

Mr. La Follette, fresh from his victories at home, is wearing his pompadour more flowing than ever. It has whitened noticeably in the last six months, however, and with his intense expression his resemblance to David Belasco is remarkable. He is evidently longing for a fight, and even his jokes are bellicose.

"This weather has taken some of the kink out of your curls," a friend remarked to him.

"They will come back," was Mr. La Follette's brief reply.

In the House the scene was peculiar and interesting, but hardly inspiring with everywhere an atmosphere of sadness.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL INHERITS $10,000,000

J. H. Barker, Car Builder, Leaves Bulk of His Estate to His Daughter.

Property So Entailed That Should She Marry Her Husband Will Not Be Able to Touch It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The estate of John H. Barker, the late Michigan City car manufacturer, is to be conserved for the benefit of future heirs. Miss Catharine Barker, 14 years old, his only daughter, and the principal legatee, will enjoy the income of about $10,000,000, but never will be allowed to touch the principal. The estate simply will continue to grow during her lifetime.

Details of the will became known to-day, but those participating in the distribution of the estate will not be informed officially until after the funeral to-morrow afternoon, when the will is to be read.

Mrs. Nelson Ludington Barnes of Chicago and Mrs. Harold A. Richardson of London, nieces, and Norton Barker of Michigan City, a nephew, receive annuities. Several personal friends will receive gifts, and the residue, about $10,000,000, goes to the daughter. No bequests are made to charity.

Mr. Barker was a widower, and shortly after he was attacked by his fatal illness, he sent for a Chicago attorney and added a codicil to his will, long in existence, by which he created the "First Trust and Savings Bank," guardian of his only child and the Trustee of his estate.

The will provides that the Haskell-Barker Car Company, owned by Mr. Barker, shall continue to operate, just as it did in his life-time, and that its present officials shall remain in charge so long as their management continues satisfactory to the Trustees.

The testator speaks of the youth of his child, and expressed explicit confidence in her guardian and trustee to provide a proper companion and teacher to bring her up in the station of life for which she has been fitted, and then the testator frankly admits the probability of her marriage some day.

Mr. Barker took unusual precautions to arrange her wealth so her husband—if she married—should not have access to it.

All its immense income goes into the hands of the trustee. Until she reaches her majority she is to be allowed only what is necessary to keep her up to her late father's ideals. When she marries she may have more if the trustees so decree. The trust is irrevocable. Its conditions cannot be changed during Catherine's lifetime.

In addition to his big car plant in Michigan City, Mr. Barker owned stock in the First National Bank, First Trust & Savings Bank, National Safety Deposit Co., Corn Exchange National Bank, and Colonial Trust & Savings Bank. He also owned big blocks of stock in the First National Bank of Duluth, Minn., and the Merchants' Bank of St. Paul.

FALL KILLS EX-JUDGE.

C. W. Noble Goes Through Window He Had Raised to Get Air.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Conway W. Noble, ex-Judge of Common Pleas and a rich lawyer, plunged from the window of his office, in the Society for Savings Building, to-day, and was picked up in the courtyard below unconscious. He died as he was being taken to Lakeside Hospital.

Noble fell when he opened a window to get air to aid his labored breathing. C. E. Harrison, a client, who was in the office at the time, narrowly escaped plunging after Noble in an effort to save the aged lawyer's life. Harrison was almost prostrated by the accident.

"I was sitting talking with Judge Noble," said Harrison, "when he arose and began to pace back and forth, beating his hands on his chest. He said he wanted air, and complained of a stifling feeling in his chest and throat. He went to the window, threw it half way up, and with almost the same motion pitched head foremost over the sill."

Judge Noble, who was 68 years old, served ten years on the bench here, being elected as a Democrat when every other winner on the ticket was Republican. After leaving the bench he resumed his practice, which was very large. He was married late in life, his wife being among best-known charity workers of the State.

MEANT TO POSE AS ROBBER.

New York Boy, on Adventure Bent, Had Clippings of Hold-Up Stories.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 5.—His vivid dream of riding a bucking broncho on a Texas ranch shattered, Lawrence V. Mulry, Jr., 19 years old, son of Dr. Mulry of 101 East Ninety-fourth Street, New York, is held here by the police for his father, who has been notified.

Young Mulry has had a great time since he left home. He has visited many cities in the South, and arrived in Baltimore Saturday. He had a bicycle with him when he was seen in the neighborhood of the docks. As he was trying to dispose of the wheel it aroused the suspicions of a policeman, who arrested him. The lad explained that he had bought the wheel.

When searched at the station, the police say, they found a revolver and a large number of newspaper clippings of hold-ups and robberies in Mulry's pockets. Capt. Cole asked him what he was doing with them, and the lad said he intended taking them home and telling his friends that he had been the perpetrator.

"What are you doing with that pistol?" the Captain asked.

"I bought that," replied the boy, "to take with me. I intended going down on a Texas ranch."

Young Mulry is bright and well educated.

OLD COMPANIONS CALL ON CARNEGIE

He Entertains Twenty Men Who Worked with Him on the Pennsylvania.

RECALLS NAMES OF MANY

Visitors and Their Host Recount Experiences When Steel King Was a Railroad Man.

A score of men who were fellow-workers with Andrew Carnegie when he was in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad met at the Carnegie mansion on Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon and were entertained by the Laird of Skibo and Mrs. Carnegie. They were old employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad who had come to the city at the company's invitation to inspect the new Pennsylvania station. Among them were the oldest living railroad conductor and engineer. All of them worked with Andrew Carnegie when he was getting his start in life, and were young men when, at the age of 22, he was made Superintendent of the Pittsburg Division of the Pennsylvania at a salary of $125 a month—he said so yesterday. When he heard they were to be in the city he invited them to visit him at his home.

When the men arrived at the Carnegie home, shortly after 5 o'clock, Mr. Carnegie received them as they filed in at the door. Conductor William R. Whery, still on the active list with forty-eight years' service to his credit, was the first, and assisted in recalling the names of the white-haired men to the retired steel king. But Mr. Carnegie would not hear a name until he had searched his memory for a clue to the identity of each of his callers. Most of them he knew at sight.

There was much handshaking, many delighted exclamations as a familiar face came to sight. Flashes of reminiscence from the men, no sooner begun than interrupted by others from different directions, were received by Mr. Carnegie with eager attention, and it was plain that he was enjoying himself. Some of them he did not recognize immediately.

"Don't tell me the name," he would say. "Wait a minute."

Somebody, after a pause, would start to tell him, but the others would not have it. And generally by the time he had finished shaking hands, he had recalled the person together with some incident of past service.

"These are my boys," he explained to two other guests who had been there before the men arrived. "They used to work for me about fifty years ago."

"Now here's 'Bill' Hawkins," he went on. "Bill, you must be the oldest passenger conductor living, aren't you?"

"I guess I am," answered Mr. Hawkins.

"But not in service," said Conductor Whery. "I've been going for [illegible] years, and I've got a year and nine months to run yet."

"They ought to give you a double pension when you retire," said Mr. Carnegie.

"Now let's see, who's this?" he asked, as another man appeared. They told him it was Bob Gordon.

"What?" he exclaimed. "Why, there's something wrong about your looks. I know. You've shaved your whiskers off."

"Yes," said the old man with a grin, "I used to wear 'em down to here"—indicating a point pretty near the waist line.

"And here's Fred Fleck. Why, they told me you had died. Now here's a man I want you to know," he said turning to his other guests. "He's the oldest railroad engineer living."

Then the reminiscences began. Blain McCormick, a former yardmaster, showed Mr. Carnegie an old railroad pass to New York dated in 1863 and signed "A. Carnegie, Division Superintendent." The steel king smiled and then told them of getting only a few weeks ago some old pay sheets on one of which he was down as a clerk for a salary of $35 a month, and on the other as Division Superintendent at $125.

"They gave me that job when I was entirely too young," he said. "No man can run a division at the age of 22. Why, I used to think that I had to do all the work myself. It taught me a lesson when an old foreman came to me after a week of bad wrecks and said, 'Mr. Carnegie, that crew can't do any more work. You've tired them all out.' After that I began to let other people do most of the work."

Mr. Carnegie was a little puzzled when two men, who were plainly not of the age the rest were, appeared to shake hands.

"Where have I seen you before?" he asked.

"We are Conductors Emery and Tarner," one of them answered, "and we visited you two years ago at Skibo Castle."

Mr. Carnegie let out what almost amounted to a whoop of joy as he shook hands.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I was delighted with these men. They came to my place, and I think we had three or four Dukes or Barons there. They made a fine showing for what I told the Englishmen were ordinary American gentlemen. They were astonished, for they said if they had brought English trained men amid the same surroundings they would have been very much out of place and ill at ease."

William McKelvey, the present roundhouse foreman at Altoona, showed Mr. Carnegie an old train order that he had given him, signed with the familiar initials. Then he recalled how he had been in charge of an engine which had been wrecked and had torn up considerable track while Mr. Carnegie was on a fishing trip in a near-by stream.

That recalled to the host an adventure of his own where he had been near death. He told it to the men, and said it was not generally known.

"In the Winter of '56," he began, "when I was assistant to Thomas Scott, then Division Superintendent, we had a great deal of trouble getting trains over th emountain division. The Van Amberg Circus had a train which we wanted to get across, and Scott and I climbed into the cab of the first engine of a double-header to see it through. We went through a blinding snowstorm, and finally could not see a thing on account of the driving snow into which we were heading. We had been going along this way when suddenly we looked back and saw by the flare from the fire under the boiler that our engine had become uncoupled from the other. Here we were plowing through snow on the track with difficulty, while behind us a whole train was coming along on a track which we had cleared. Of course there was nothing to do but jump. And we did. Scott landed in the snow, which came up to his shoulders. But I disappeared from view completely. Fortunately they had heard our whistle from behind and they stopped the train. We looked for our fireman, who had also jumped, but we couldn't find him. Finally Scott said we couldn't wait, and the poor fellow was left in the snow all night."

The party was made up of R. B. Hawkins, retired passenger conductor; Robert Gordon, retired freight conductor; Thomas E. Watt, retired District Passenger Agent; Blain McCormick, retired yardmaster; H. L. Delo, retired chief clerk, motive power department; William Burbank, retired engineer; William Brady, retired engineer; Frederick Fleck, retired engineer; Christ Horner, retired engineer; Wilson Ringle, retired engineer; Bernard Nearney, retired freight conductor; Frank Adams, retired engineer; William McKelvey, roundhouse foreman at East Altoona; Frederick Ehrenfeld, Supervisor at Greensburg; Nathan Henry, passenger engineer; William R. Whery, passenger conductor; S. R. Tarner, passenger conductor, and George A. Emery, passenger conductor.

TALK OF HARMON AND WILSON

Democratic Congressmen Discuss a Winning Ticket for 1912.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A sadder lot of Republican politicians never got together anywhere than gathered here to-day on the opening of Congress, though there were a good many forced smiles when they talked of the results of the election, but there were very few of the genuine order.

There was not much effort on the part of Republicans to conceal their apprehension that the disaster of last month presages the defeat of the party in the Presidential election of 1912.

The Democrats, naturally were very cheerful. They discussed the Presidential possibilities and the ticket, and there was a general disposition to talk about Harmon and Wilson as a ticket that could easily win.

EXPECT FIGHT AT CHIHUAHUA.

800 Federal Soldiers Near the Town, Which Is Full of Revolutionists.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Chihuahua says that 800 Federal soldiers were to-day within fifteen miles of the town of San Andres, where it is rumored there are 600 armed revolutionists.

The dispatch added that it was believed that a battle between the soldiers and insurrectos would occur to-morrow.

The dispatch also stated that Jose Maria Sanchez had resigned as Governor of Chihuahua and that Alberto Terrazas had been elected by the State Legislature to succeed him.

$100,000 DINNER SERVICE.

Ex-Senator Clark Purchases Set of 900 Pieces for His Fifth Avenue House.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Perhaps the most expensive dinner service ever made in this country will be shipped from here to-day to former United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana for use in his new house, in Fifth Avenue, New York.

This service, which is for a party of twenty-four, contains 900 pieces, each designed to harmonize with the dining room, and cost $100,000.

STOLEN GIFTS HALT WEDDING

Present to the Bride-Elect Belonged to Prospective Wedding Guest.

Miss Alice Smith, 18 years old, of 10½ Colden Street, Jersey City, and John J. Dolan may not be married to-day as planned. Dolan is under arrest charged with having in his possession a watch which Mrs. Barbara Dimmers of 806 Grand Street, Jersey City, says is hers. Miss Smith called on Mrs. Dimmers last night, and invited her to her wedding. Mrs. Dimmers saw a watch on Miss Smith that looked like one that had been stolen from her home several weks ago.

Miss Smith said that Dolan had given it to her as a wedding gift. Mrs. Dimmers had Dolan arrested last night when he called on Miss Smith to complete the wedding arrangements. A watch was found on him that Miss Smith identified as her property. Dolan said he bought pawn tickets for the watches, and gave the name of the man from whom he bought the tickets to the police.

JUDGE'S ESTATE TO WIDOW.

Mrs. W. W. Dixon Already Had Received Half of It in 1905.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—W. A. Clark, Jr., was appointed to-day executor of the estate of Judge W. W. Dixon, a former Butte (Mon.) attorney, who died here recently.

Dixon's will recites that in August, 1905, in San Francisco, he gave his wife, Ida Wilcox Dixon, who is in New York, one-half of his estate, including $60,000 in 4 per cent. Government bonds and thirty-seven and a half shares in the Daly Bank and Trust Company of Butte.

At the same time he gave $5,000 in bonds to his nieces, Mary C. Rix and Katherine D. Tucker of Keokuk, Iowa, and $5,000 for the education of the two children of Katherine D. Tucker.

GIVES APPENDICITIS PARTY.

Pittsburg Belle on the Eve of an Operation Entertains Friends at Reception.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 5.—"Appendicitis parties" are the latest Pittsburg society fad. News of this has just leaked out, and to Miss Edith Flinn, daughter of one of the richest men here, is given credit for starting it. Miss Flinn is now recovering from an operation in the West Penn Hospital. For a time her condition was alarming, but this afternoon she had so far recovered as to be enabled to give a telephone reception to friends.

When the disease reached a point where she no longer could scoff at the demands of physicians that she undergo an operation Miss Flinn invited her friends to an "appendicitis party" in her home before she entered the hospital.

The party was a great success, most of the social set in which Miss Flinn moves attending. When the reception was over that night Miss Flinn, with her sister and relatives, went to the hospital.

BALLOONIST IS DROWNED.

Swept Away by Waves as Aircraft Is Driven Across North Sea.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A balloon owned by the International Ballooning Club of Munich, which rose from that city on Saturday and moved first in the direction of Switzerland, landed to-day near Kirkwall, in the County of Orkney, Scotland, after a wild flight across the North Sea, during which one of the three aeronauts, Metzger, lost his life.

After sailing to the southwest for a little, the balloon took a northerly course and was driven toward the British Isles by a furious gale. Sunday morning the balloon struck the sea, and a huge wave sweeping over the basket, Metzger was carried away and drowned.

His companions clung to the lightened craft, which shot up and drifted over the Orkney Islands, where a successful descent was made. The surviving aeronauts, Disler and Joerdeno, were unharmed.

3,400,000 IN BERLIN.

This Is the Provisional Count of the German Capital's Population.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—The provisional count of the City of Berlin and its suburbs under the general census shows an aggregate population of about 3,400,000. It will be some weeks before the final figures are announced.

Munich has a population of [illegible], a gain of 56,000 over [illegible]; Leipsic has [illegible]743, and Nuremberg [illegible].

FOUR-BOROUGH LINES OFFERED BY INTERBORO

Completion of "H," Extensions to Brooklyn and the Bronx, Use of Steinway Tunnel to Queens.

CITY TO PUT UP $53,000,000

Company Will Pay Remainder of the $128,000,000 Total Cost of Proposed Subways.

THROUGH FIVE-CENT FARE

Elevated Extensions at Company's Expense Bring Total Cost Up to $160,000,000.

ALL READY IN FIVE YEARS

Pennsylvania Station Reached by Line from Times Square to the Battery and Brooklyn.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company submitted to the Public Service Commission yesterday a proposal covering the construction and operation of more subway extensions in Manhattan, the Bronx, and Brooklyn than any thus far received by the public authorities, and on terms much more liberal than any that the Interborough has offered to the city in the past.

The offer is the result of negotiations between Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission and President Theodore P. Shonts and other representatives of the Interborough, which have continued practically ever since the Interborough's last offer was submitted, and for the last three or four days have been going on almost day and night.

In its physical features the new Interborough proposal embraces the entire Triborough Subway route north of Grand Central Station, adding the triborough's two Bronx extensions to a further extension of the Bronx branch of the existing Subway.

Below Grand Central and Times Square it substitutes a four-track local, and express subway down Seventh Avenue, Varick Street, West Broadway, and Greenwich Street to Liberty Street, and a two-track local subway thence to the Battery for the lower Lexington Avenue-Broadway section of the triborough subway as laid out by the commission. This gives a direct route from Harlem to the Battery on both the east and west sides and a connection with the Pennsylvania Station.

Another East River Tunnel.

From Liberty Street a two-track tunnel under the East River to Pineapple Street, Brooklyn, and thence to Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues, is proposed, and from Flatbush Avenue one new line is projected, continuing out that thoroughfare and the Eastern Parkway to Buffalo Avenue, while another is offered which embraces the Lafayette Avenue section of the Triborough Subway system.

The operation of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, Subway under a separate contract from Forty-third Street past Flatbush Avenue, over the Manhattan Bridge, and through part of the Centre Street Bridge Loop Subway to the Brooklyn Bridge, is proposed, and the Interborough professes its willingness to operate extensions on the same terms as are proposed for Fourth Avenue to Fort Hamilton and Coney Island. On the map which is printed herewith, these Brooklyn extensions are drawn on a considerably reduced scale.

Coupled with this physical scope of the Interborough's offer, there is the general proposal of a five-cent fare over the entire system and its extensions. In addition, the company agrees to have the terms of both its present leases readjusted so that its lease on the entire system shall expire in forty-nine years from the beginning of operation on all the extensions. The main Subway lease, known as Contract 1, was made for fifty years, with a twenty-five-year renewal, and has about sixty-nine years more to run; the lease on the present Brooklyn extension was made for thirty-five years, with a twenty-five-year extension, and this section has been in operation for about two years.

Concessions to the City.

But as further strengthening the position of the city in respect to the unified system which the Interborough lays out that company agrees to accept as to all the extensions to be built or operated the ten-year indeterminate feature which the Public Service Commision caused to be inserted in the law at the last session of the Legislature, so that the city may have the right at any time after ten years to take over the extensions of the present Subway and lease them for operation as an independent route, should it be dissatisfied with the Interborough's operation, on paying that part of the construction and equipment cost which the Interborough proposes to assume, plus 15 per cent. scaled down as the original expiration of the lease approaches, and the value of equipment when taken over.

The third vital concession by the Interborough, as contained in the letter, is the agreement to operate any future extensions of the Subway which the authorities may decide to build, on condition that the company be not called upon to operate any extension at a loss, or that in such case the city assume the loss until it works out from later profits. The whole plan is based on conceding to city the entire net profits of the system for five years after it starts operation and dividing net profits half and half thereafter.

From the city the Interborough asks that $53,000,000 of the present $60,000,000 of borrowing capacity available for subway construction be put into the project, to which the Interborough proposes to add $75,000,000, exclusive of the $30,000,000 which it has already agreed to put up for the elevated third tracking in Manhattan and elevated extensions in the Bronx.

The estimated cost of the subway extensions as laid out by the Interborough is $128,000,000 for construction and equipment, making up the total of the $75,000,000 and the $53,000,000 just referred to. To complete the investment end of the project, there might be added the $1,500,000 which the city is to spend to put the Belmont tunnel into operating shape, under the agreement already entered into, inasmuch as that agreement contemplates its operation in connection with the present Subway on a general 5-cent fare.

Some of the Conditions.

The Interborough, on the operating side, asks, as to the system in general, that after paying operating expenses of all classes, net income shall be devoted first to the payment of interest on the bonds issued by the company for its share of the construction, and for equipment, with a sinking fund of 1 per cent. on such of these bonds as represent construction expense, and three-quarters of 1 per cent. on such part of these bonds as represent equipment cost, this allowance also to cover obsolescence not provided for as a matter of ordinary maintenance.

After this interest is paid, income is proposed to be applied to payment of interest on the city bonds used in the construction, with the proviso, however, that any deficit on the requirement on the Interborough's bonds shall be paid by that company and not be cumulative, whereas a deficit realized in the interest on the city bonds shall be charged into an account by itself and worked out by the application of profits before anything is divided.

The offer also concedes that while the work is to be done by the Interborough nominally as "extras" under Contract No. 1, it shall, as a matter of fact, be put up to competitive public bidding, and the contracts themselves, as well as the award of the bids, shall be under the supervision of the Public Service Commission. All the work it is proposed to begin at once, so that the outlying extensions, which can be completed in about two years can be put into operation before the rest of the system is ready. The entire work, the Interborough says, it will complete in five years.

The offer for the operation of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, subway contemplates that the Interborough shall equip this stretch as described above, and after deducting station expense, maintenance of way, and structures, accident expense and an allowance for general operating expense, determined by applying the operating ratio on the rest of the Interborough subway to the Fourth Avenue on a car mileage basis, the net earnings shall be applied first to the payment of interest on Interborough bonds issued for equipment, with the three-quarters of 1 per cent. sinking fund, and then to the interest on the city bonds issued for construction.

The Brooklyn Extensions.

The primary difference between this offer and that on the rest of the line is that the Interborough asks the city to guarantee it against loss on the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, Subway, whereas, elsewhere, should there be a deficit on the interest on the Interborough's bonds, that company would stand it. The company says it will operate extensions of the Fourth Avenue to Coney Island and Fort Hamilton, and in fact all other extensions that may be built by the city, on a like basis, or some other basis involving guarantee against loss, to be determined by negotiation.

In many particulars the Interborough offer represents the final conceding of points on which Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission has stood in all the negotiations with that company for the last year. He has insisted throughout the conferences that the Interborough must agree to operate whatever extensions the commission and the city should decide to build, and that there be a readjustment of all leases to a flat basis materially shorter than the unexpired term of the present Subway Contract No. 1. He has given the Interborough representatives to understand that he would consent to no offer which did not contain these provisions, and has insisted with equal force upon the acceptance of the indeterminate feature in the franchise, and the submission of both construction contracts and bids to the commission.

The Interborough's argument in favor of making the requirements of its bonds a first lien on the income of the subway, after the payment of operating expenses, was that thereby the money could be raised on a 4 or 4¼ per cent. basis, whereas the company expected that it would have to pay 6 per cent. if it gave the city first lien. The claim was advanced that the city stood to gain as much as the company by this arrangement, inasmuch as any saving in interest, whether on the Interborough's bonds or on the city's bonds, would be reflected permanently by a greater margin of net profits for division between the company and the city.

Mr. Willcox's Ideas.

On the other hand, Mr. Willcox feels that by the concessions obtained, to which attention has just been called, he has gone far toward giving the city definite control of its traction development, assuming that the idea of competition in subways will not be pressed at this time. For, taking the right to terminate the lease covering the extension, or the Fourth Avenue lease, or both, at any time after ten years, in connection with the obligation of the company to operate any extensions which may be laid out, the Chairman of the Commission considers that the city, in case the Interborough refuse in future to operate desirable extensions, could take the system apart, as it were, by building a short connecting link between Lexington and Seventh Avenue in the neighborhood of Times Square and have two competitive systems, each with its extensions in the Bronx and Brooklyn.

In this connection Mr. Willcox pointed out that it would be possible in the near future, since no debt limit capacity after the current year is set apart for the Interborough's extensions, to construct almost at once, for the purpose of relieving the pressure through the main trunk arteries in Manhattan, the Lexington Avenue-Broadway line from Grand Central Station south to City Hall and there to connect it with the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, line by a link under City Hall Park. He pointed to this as an illustration of the possibilities of developing further facilities, which he discussed at greater length in a statement given out for publication.

Another point which Mr. Willcox dwelt on was the ability of the city through its supervision of the construction contracts and the bids, to insure the construction at the lowest actual cost without any intermediate profits to a construction company, and to know definitely what the system cost in the event that the city later saw fit to reacquire it under the indeterminate clause of the contracts.

Mr. Willcox's Statement.

Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission had this to say in regard to the Interborough's proposal:

"This Interborough proposal, though belated, has several attractive features not contained in any offer heretofore made. I refer particularly to the offer to furnish $75,000,000 of the $128,000,000 for new construction, to the willingness to reduce the length of lease of the present contracts, to the additional extensions that the company is now willing to build and finally to the agreement to operate additional future extensions.

"Its proposal not only embraces the normal extensions of the present Subway, but the company offers to build the major portion of the Triborough route and obligates itself to operate the whole of the Triborough system if the part not included in their offer is constructed by the city.

"It offers to operate this entire system in conjunction with its present system for a 5-cent fare on all lines from one end of the city to the other, thus giving an answer to the often-quoted and disputed argument that a 5-cent fare from the Bronx to Coney Island is impossible.

"Furthermore, the entire system will belong to the city from the beginning, and the city will have the right to take any of these extensions after ten years. It will thus be possible in case of improper management to carve out these extensions and set up a new system.

"The Interborough Company was fully aware months ago that no proposal would be considered which did not carry with it the obligation to operate all extensions of the system which the city might wish to build, and further that in building these logical extensions the company must furnish a substantial part of the money for construction. As the proposal comes now, the company is willing to furnish $75,000,000 of the estimated $128,000,000 necessary to build and equip these lines. It is also willing to put $31,000,000 into the third tracking and extension of its elevated system. It also proposes to turn over the Steinway tunnel, which has cost nearly $8,000,000, to the city, provided it will pay $1,500,000 to complete it. These latter matters have practically been agreed to by the commission and by the company. Thus the company is now willing to contribute altogether about $114,000,000 of its own money toward the development of transit in this city, and it is a shame that these proposals should not have come in due course months ago, instead of waiting until this late day, when the situation is such that it has practically forced the company into a 'readiness to act.'

A Look to the Future.

"I notice with much gratification that the Interborough has acceded to the demand which the commission made that it obligate itself to operate extensions hereafter built. The main difficulty with the present subway contracts has been that there was no obligation on the part of the company to operate any extensions which the city might wish to build. If the proposal now presented is accepted, the company will be obligated to operate whatever extensions the city may see fit to build. It will be perfectly possible under this proposal to begin at once building the balance of the Lexington Avenue line from Forty-second Street downtown to Canal Street, and to connect with the Fourth Avenue subway, or with any other point which may seem desirable.

"It would be entirely possible to build the Broadway section of the Broadway-Lafayette Avenue loop, which is left out of this proposal, and to compel the company to operate it through the loop as a part of its system. The ability of the company, therefore, to prevent proper extensions of rapid transit in this city as a part of the main system would be removed, and this difficulty has really been the worst one to deal with in the whole transit situation.

"In view of the fact that the present Subway is operated under two leases, one with a term of fifty years and right of renewal for twenty-five years more, and the other for thirty-five years with a renewal of twenty-five years more, the company agrees to the suggestion of the commission that, if such course is deemed advisable, it will be willing to have the present contracts so modified that the entire period for operation of the present Subway and extensions shall be merged into one period, and is willing to accept forty-nine years from the time of the completion of these extensions, with no right of renewal.

"It will be noticed that the money to be furnished for construction and equipment by the Interborough is to take precedence over the bonds issued by the city for the construction of these extensions, but it is also to be noted that after the payment of operating expenses and the interest and sinking fund on both classes of bonds, the net profits for five years are to be paid to the city and that [illegible] surplus [illegible] are to be divided equally between the city and the company.

"The terms for operating the Fourth Avenue subway, it will be observed, are such that any deficit over the running expense is to be borne by the city, but inasmuch as all net earnings over fixed charges on the main extensions proposed to be built are to be paid to the city, it can readily be seen that such income would doubtless much more than offset any possible deficit in the operation of the Fourth Avenue subway.

"The number of miles of the proposed extension will be 35.5 of road and 106.12 miles of track. The present Subway consists of 25.63 miles of road and 72.83 miles of track.

"It is to be hoped that if any other company or corporation has a proposal to make concerning subways, it will do so at once."

Shonts's Proposed Subway System.

THE INTERBOROUGH'S PROPOSAL

Shonts Details What the Company Is Willing to Do in a Letter to Willcox.

Here is the Interborough's letter to the Public Service Commission containing the company's new proposal:

"Dec. 5, 1910.

"William R. Willcox,
Chairman, Public Service Commission for the First District, State of New York, Tribune Building, New York City.

"Sir: At a time when the city must decide whether its capital available for subway construction shall be invested in an entirely new rapid-transit enterprise or be devoted to perfecting that system of subways the title to which is already vested in the city, it is proper that the responsible public authorities should have before them the most favorable proposal which the lessee of the city's existing subway lines, after full consideration, is able to offer. In our consideration of the subject we have had in mind not only the routes necessary to afford an efficient service to the city but changes in the present Subway contracts and the additional obligations that the company will be called upon to assume.

"The Interborough Rapid Transit Company, therefore, begs leave to submit the following proposition. It proposes the construction of the following natural extensions to the present Subway:

West Side and Brooklyn Extensions.

"From Times Square under Seventh Avenue as extended, Varick Street, West Broadway, and Greenwich Street to Liberty Street as a four-track road, and from Liberty Street to the Battery as a two-track road, with a branch from the intersection of Greenwich Street and Liberty Street, under Liberty Street and East River to Pineapple Street in Brooklyn, and under Pineapple and Fulton Streets to a connection with the Brooklyn extension of the existing Subway, as a two-track road; with a further extension from the terminus of the Brooklyn extension of the existing Subway at Atlantic Avenue, under Flatbush Avenue and Eastern Parkway to Utica Avenue as a four-track road, and from Utica Avenue to Buffalo Avenue under Eastern Parkway as a two-track road; also a two-track extension from the existing Subway at Lafayette and Flatbush Avenues, Brooklyn, under Lafayette Avenue to Broadway.

East Side and Bronx Extensions.

"From about Thirty-fifth Street and Park Avenue, under Park Avenue and private property at or about Forty-second Street to Lexington Avenue, thence under Lexington Avenue and the Harlem River to a point south of 149th Street as a four-track road; thence dividing, with two tracks to a connection, east of Mott Avenue Station, with the West Farms branch of the existing Subway; thence two tracks under Mott Avenue, 153d Street and River Avenue, to 157th Street, and from 157th Street over River Avenue to about 162d Street as an elevated structure. At 162d Street and River Avenue a connection will be made with the Jerome Avenue extension of the Ninth Avenue elevated line of the Manhattan Elevated Railroad.

"A two-track subway extension, diverging from the proposed Lexington Avenue extension, at about 138th Street, and running thence under private property, 138th Street, Southern Boulevard, and Whitlock Avenue, to a point in private property south of Westchester Avenue; thence as a three-track elevated railroad over Whitlock Avenue and Westchester Avenue to Pelham Bay Park.

"A two-track elevated extension from the West Farms division of the present Subway at about 179th Street, over private property to a point between Bronx Park and the property of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company; thence north over private property and public streets to Bear Swamp Road and White Plains Road; thence over White Plains Road to a connection with the proposed extension of the Third Avenue line of the Manhattan Elevated Railroad at a point north of the intersection of White Plains Road and Gun Hill Road.

Cost of Construction.

"The cost of constructing and equipping the foregoing lines is estimated at $128,000,000. The Interborough Company hereby offers to build and equip the same for the sum of $53,000,000, to be furnished by the city, the city to provide in addition the necessary easements and right-of-way, and the company to supply the funds necessary to defray the additional cost of construction and equipment, which, upon the basis of the above estimate, would amount to $75,000,000. The work will be done as 'extras' under the terms of the rapid transit contract of Feb. 21, 1900, under which the original subway was constructed and is operated, except so far as the terms thereof may be modified by the provisions, except this offer; and the lines when constructed and equipped will be operated by the Interborough Company as parts of the existing subway system, with a single five-cent fare and free transfers, upon the following terms:

"1. The net profits from operations, to be arrived at as hereinafter provided, shall be disposed of as follows:

(a) The city to take all net profits for the first five years from the time of beginning operations on any portion of the new subway extensions;

(b) The net profits after five years to be equally divided between the city and the Interborough Company.

"2. The net profits shall be determined by deducting from the gross revenue of the extensions charges for the following items, in the order named:

(a) Maintenance of equipment, including an allowance for depreciation;

(b) Maintenance of way and structures, including an allowance for depreciation;

(c) Traffic expense and cost of conducting transportation;

(d) General and administration expenses;

(e) Taxes, if any;

(f) The actual annual charges of the company for carrying the cost of equipment and providing a partial sinking fund of ¾ of 1 per centum per annum to meet obsolescence, and for carrying that portion of the cost of construction not met by the funds contributed by the city and providing a sinking fund of 1 per centum thereon;

(g) Interest on bonds issued by the city to defray the cost of construction, plus 1 per centum per annum as a sinking fund.

The Operating Revenue.

"3. The gross operating revenue of the new extensions shall be ascertained from the number of tickets sold at the stations along the new extensions, or if deemed advisable by either the city or the company, from the number of tickets deposited in the chopping boxes on the new extensions, or by such other method as upon full consideration may be agreed upon between the parties.

"4. If the gross income in any year, after providing for the charges above mentioned, shall be insufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund upon the construction and equipment bonds issued by the Interborough Company, the deficit for such period shall be borne by the Interborough Company, and shall not be a cumulative charge against future earnings.

"5. If the gross income for any year, after providing for all charges above mentioned, including interest and sinking fund upon bonds issued by the Interborough Company to defray the additional cost of construction and equipment, shall be insufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund upon the city's bonds, the deficit sustained by the city for such period shall accumulate and be a charge against the future profits before any division thereof shall be effected between the city and the Interborough Company.

"6. The city will retain the right, now provided for by law, to take over the extensions at any time after ten years from the time that any portion thereof may be put into operation, upon paying to the Interborough Company, (a) the amount of its investment in construction over and beyond the $53,000,000 supplied by the city, plus 15 percentum, which sum shall decrease as the term continues, so that at the end of the full term of the contract under which the said extensions may be built as extras no amount will be required to be paid by the city, and (b) the then reasonable value of the equipment.

Letting of Contracts.

"If this proposition be accepted we are prepared to immediately enter into contracts to carry the same into effect. After public bidding, the contracts will be awarded by us under the supervision of your commission to responsible bidders for the construction of the lines in sections; and construction work thereupon will be commenced in each borough and upon all sections at once. Each part of the road as completed will be immediately opened for operation, so that the outlying territory in Brooklyn and the Bronx will have the earliest possible relief and all of the lines will be hurried to completion within an estimated period of five years.

"We have considered your suggestion that the present subway leases should be so altered that the terms thereof and of all extensions thereto operated by the Interborough Company should end at the same time. Contract No. 1, under which the Manhattan portion of the Subway was built, provides for an original term of fifty years, with the right to renewal for an additional term of twenty-five years. Contract No. 2, under which the line from the City Hall Park to Flatbush Avenue in Brooklyn was built, provides for an original term of thirty-five years, with the right to renewal for an additional term of twenty-five years. We are willing, if it can be legally arranged, that these contracts should be so modified that the original terms thereof and of all extensions built as extras under Contract No. 1 should be fixed at forty-nine years from the date of the completion of the extensions, and that the privilege of the renewal terms of twenty-five years should be canceled.

"The Interborough Company also offers to equip and operate, under a lease for a term equal to the unexpired term of Contract No. 1, under which the original Subway was built, the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn, including extensions to Fort Hamilton and Coney Island, when completed, as part of the present subway system, for a single five-cent fare, upon the following terms:

"The gross earnings of the Fourth Avenue Division, of which a separte account shall be kept between the city and the Interborough Company, shall be ascertained from the tickets deposited at the stations upon the division.

Deductions from Earnings.

"From the gross earnings thus ascertained, shall be deducted:

1. (a) All station expenses;
(b) Maintenance of way and structures;
(c) Damages for accidents happening on the division.

"2. Other operating costs to be determined according to unit costs on the Interborough system, upon a car mileage basis:

(a) Conducting transportation;
(b) Maintenance of equipment and depreciation;
(c) Cost of power;
(d) General and administration expenses;
(e) Taxes, if any.

"3. After the payment of the foregoing charges, the actual annual charges of the company for carrying the cost of equipment and providing a partial sinking fund of three-fourths of 1 percentum per annum to meet obsolescence.

"4. From the balance of the income then remaining shall be paid interest and sinking fund upon bonds issued by the city to defray the cost of construction upon that part of the road equipped and operated by the Interborough Company.

"If the income shall be insufficient to meet the foregoing charges, or any part thereof, the deficit shall be paid annually by the city, but that portion thereof which represents payments made by the city upon bonds issued by the city as hereinbefore provided for shall accumulate and be a charge against future profits before any division thereof shall be effected between the city and the Interborough Company.

"5. The net profits remaining after providing for the foregoing charges shall be equally divided between the city and the company.

"The right will, of course, be reserved by the city, under existing provisions of law, to supervise accounts relating to construction and operation and to terminate the lease after ten years.

City to Make Good Losses.

"In the event that the foregoing propositions be accepted and incorporated in formal contracts, the Interborough Company will further agree, upon the same terms and conditions as hereinbefore set forth with respect to the operation of the Fourth Avenue subway, or upon such other terms as may be agreed upon between the city and the company, to operate such additional extensions to the system herein outlined as may hereafter be constructed by the city; provided, however, that the Interborough Company shall not be called upon to operate any extension the operation of which would result in a financial loss to the company, unless the city shall undertake to make good such loss.

"The proposition herewith submitted is believed to embrace the following advantages over any other now before the city:

"1. Citizens of Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens, and the Bronx may be transported to any point upon the enlarged subway system, which may be best described as a four-borough system, including the shopping and theatre districts of Manhattan, for a single 5-cent fare; whereas under any other plan, to obtain a similar advantage, in almost every case an additional fare of 5 cents would be required.

"2. The extensions proposed can all be completed within a period of five years from the time when the right to begin construction is given; whereas, under any other plan now before the city, a longer period for actual construction would not only be required, but the final completion would be further delayed by the inadequacy of the city's debt margin.

The City's Contribution.

"3. The plan above set forth is the only plan which limits the city's contribution to subway construction to the funds which the city now has available for subway purposes; thus leaving free for additional extensions, or for such other purposes as the city may determine upon, the funds which will be available in each succeeding year.

"4. The city under the plan proposed would have in operation a harmonious subway system, with a through four-track line upon the east side and a through four-track line upon the west side of Manhattan, with suitable extensions to the Bronx and Brooklyn; whereas, under any other plan now under consideration the city would have a duplication of rapid transit service upon the upper and lower east side of Manhattan, the present single line only upon the uptown west side of Manhattan, and no rapid transit at all upon the west side downtown section of Manhattan.

"5. If competition with the Interborough Company be the prime consideration, it is believed that by the construction of the proposed extensions the city will be in a position to establish an independent competitive line at an earlier date than would otherwise be possible. Under recent provisions of law the west side downtown extension and the east side uptown extension in Mahattan, together with the Bronx and Brooklyn extensiens, could be taken over after ten years from the time when the lines or any part thereof were put into operation. By the construction of a short crosstown line between Seventh Avenue and Lexington Avenue in the vicinity of either Thirty-fourth or Forty-second Streets, the city would then possess upon the Island of Manhattan a subway system which would be the exact reverse of the subway now operated by the Interborough Company, with the additional advantage of more comprehensive extensions to parts of Brooklyn and the Bronx, which in the meantime, by reason of these very extensions, will have developed into profitable territory.

A View on Competition.

"It can hardly be expected that within an equal length of time the city's credit would so expand as to enable it to complete an entirely independent system to a point where it would furnish the city with equal competitive advantages. It is suggested, however, that the advantage of competition is not so apparent in the case of city subways as in other avenues of transportation.

"The usual advantages of competition are a reduction of transportation charges and an improvement of service. But there is no prospect, so far as fares are concerned, that for so extensive a service as would be furnished by either rapid transit system now under consideration less than 5 cents would ever be charged; nor is there any prospect that the present five-cent fare upon the existing system would ever be increased. Upon the other hand, so far as service is concerned, the Public Service Commission is vested with full powers of supervision, and can enforce by direct order the performance of that efficient service which under other circumstances is produced only as the result of active competition.

"In conclusion, the Interborough Company begs to refer to its proposition to complete the third track upon its elevated system and to build certain elevated extensions in the Bronx, to be operated in connection therewith, and to complete and put in operation as a part of the subway system the so-called Belmont Tunnel, which proposition has been accepted by your commission. The cost of carrying out the elevated improvements is estimated at $32,000,000, all of which will be furnished by the Interborough Company.

"The Belmont Tunnel, when completed, will represent a total investment of approximately $10,000,000, all of which likewise except $1,500,000 to be contributed by the city toward the completion thereof, will have been furnished by the Interborough Company. It will therefore be perceived that the contribution which the Interborough Company proposes to make from its funds toward the establishment of a well-rounded rapid transit system in this city approximates a total of $107,000,000, against a contribution of $53,000,000 on the part of the city.

"Respectfully submitted.
"INTERBOROUGH RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY,
"By T. P. SHONTS, President."

McADOO FOR COMPETING LINES.

Says the Growth of Traffic Will Take Good Care of Rival Systems.

William G. McAdoo said last night that he did not care to discuss the Interborough offer until he had studied it carefully. Concerning the interview with Frank J. Sprague, printed in yesterday's TIMES, Mr. McAdoo said:

"I have great respect for Mr. Sprague's achievements as an electrical engineer. He is altogether mistaken, however, in assuming that I had reference to him in my remarks at the City Club.

"Mr. Sprague's argument fails to reach the vital question at issue—that is, Shall the city now have an independent system which will assure for all time adequate service to the people of New York, and in which the city shall share the profits and of which the city may be able to possess itself at any time after ten years, or shall the present monopoly be permitted to fasten its exclusive hold upon the community, and with the aid of city money? Can the city afford to intrust its future to any set of men operating a monopoly, however benevolent their professions, when the inevitable effect of monopoly is to maintain congested conditions, regardless of the comfort of the people?

"We have tried unregulated and then regulated monopoly, with the result that conditions have become intolerable. There has been an utter failure to provide adequate facilities or to make necessary extensions during the last five years. If the city should permit the Interborough to make such extensions now as to destroy the integrity of the triborough system, which is the only practicable route for an independent system, and thereby eliminate forever the possibility of competition, will the city not be confronted with the same problem as now when traffic grows to a point in the future where the congestion becomes just as serious as now, and will it not then be utterly helpless to provide a remedy?

"Any study of the growth of traffic in the City of New York for the last five years will show that, at the same ratio of increase for the next five years, enough new business will have developed to take care of a competing subway, as well as of the present Subway, with its reasonable extensions. If the same ratio be continued to 1920, which is only five years after the new subway can be finished, it is clear that all of the facilities that can be provided by the Interborough and its reasonable extensions, as well as all the facilities provided by the proposed independent subway, will be required to take care of it.

"Aside from the city's manifest moral duty and obligation to take care of the people with decent and adequate means of transportation, it is clear that, as a business proposition alone, it is to the interest of the city to conserve its natural subway resources and to derive, as it will under proper management, a large and continually increasing revenue, or dividend, therefrom.

"I am quite sure that a bid from Mr Sprague, or any other responsible person or corporation, to build and operate subways in New York would be welcomed, provided it is in definite terms and backed by responsibility, as I deem it in the interest of the community to have as many bids as possible for the construction and operation of subways, so that they may all be carefully considered, in order that that may be done which is manifestly for the interests of the community. We have no 'dog in the manger' desire, nor will we ever become identified with any 'dog in the manger' policy. Our desire has been and is to help solve the problem in the best interests of the community, but in order to do that there must be that mutuality of interest which can only result from a just and equitable agreement.

"To conclude, in a word, competition, not in destructive rates but in quality and quantity of service, so that the people may for 5 cents get more in comfort and convenience than they now receive, is to my mind vitally essential to the welfare of New York.

"It seems fashionable at the moment for every man to say that he has an open mind on the subway question. 'Open minds' are good things to a certain point, but the time arrives when conviction is of greater importance. What we need now is to have more people with definite convictions, because a solution cannot be found until that stage is reached."

SHONTS TELLS WHAT IT MEANS.

Five-Cent Service for Four Boroughs and Operation on Fair Terms.

In discussing the proposal submitted to the Public Service Commission, President Shonts of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company said:

"The Interborough plan would more than double the present subway mileage, and, taken in connection with the elevated improvements, would more than double the carrying capacity of all of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's lines. It means the expenditure for new subways of $128,000,000, and for increased transportation facilities, including both subway and elevated extensions, of $168,000,000.

"All of this money will be furnished by the Interborough Company with the exception of $53,000,000, which represents the amount of present Subway bonds released from the debt limit; in other words, the use over again of the city's credit to the extent of $53,000,000, the amount of subway bonds which will be exempted from the debt limit because they are self-supporting, due to the successful management of the existing Subway by the Interborough Company.

"This will not involve any change or increase in the stock capitalization of the company. It means through 5-cent service between the Boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, and Queens. It means that these boroughs will have through service to and from the business, shopping, theatre, and hotel districts and railroad stations of Manhattan for one fare; in short, it represents the maximum of accommodations for the minimum cost to the passenger.

"It means that the city has found an operator on fair terms for all future subway extensions, that it receives the benefit of the low unit cost of operation of the entire Interborough system for its outlying extensions.

"It means that the city will have all of its future available capital free to be used for additional subways or for other purposes. It means economical construction, and in consequence a quicker realization of profits in which the city shares equally with the company, and a quicker release of the principal invested in the new subways, making the entire amount available again for further city expenditures.

"It means one system, one fare, and through service without transfer. It means uniformity; that when the subways revert to the city their operation can be continued as one system; and lastly it means quicker subways; as construction progresses each newly built part can be joined to the existing lines, thereby making it immediately available, obviating the necessity of waiting until the entire work is completed."

PRENDERGAST IS AMAZED.

Controller Says He Marvels That So Good an Offer Comes from Interboro.

Controller Prendergast said last night:

"The Interborough Rapid Transit Company has made a good offer. In some respects it is so favorable that one marvels that it could come from that source. The proposal contains features that the company has scoffed at as unreasonable in time past, and proves the efficacy of public opinion, even on a traction company. The new offer also shows that the Interborough is now convinced that there would be sufficient negative votes in the Board of Estimate against any such paltry offer as the company submitted last July or discussed at the Brooklyn transit conference in October.

"Chairman Willcox is entitled to great credit for inducing the company to consent to proceed with the extensions on the city's contributing $53,000,000, which represents the city's present investment in the Interborough system, and which is a much less figure than Mr. Shonts a few months ago regarded as a desideratum in any proposed extension of the company's lines.

"The extensions suggested for the Bronx are liberal, but I cannot see why so much should be offered to that locality and no provision made for even one extension of the Fourth Avenue route in Brooklyn.

"The favorable element of the new offer must be freely admitted, but, pleasing as it is, it still leaves wide open the great question whether the city is to have an independent system or co-operate in extending existing lines. There has been no doubt in my mind that up to this hour public opinion has been almost unanimous in favor of an independent system. Will the new offer so impress the people that they will be prepared to abandon the idea of a separate system?"

WOMEN TO DISCUSS SUBWAYS.

Club Members Will Canvass the Situation at a Waldorf Gathering.

The Public Safety Committee of the State Federation of Women's Clubs will hold a meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in the Waldorf-Astoria to canvass the Subway situation and the necessity for action toward relieving the congested conditions in the city.

Most of the important women's organizations of New York will be represented. Some of those who will be there are Mrs. Robert F. Cartwright, Mrs. Charlotte Wilber, Mrs. Clarence Burns, Mrs. W. G. Brown, Mrs. Peter Nickolson, Mrs. Jennie P. Hainey, Mrs. A. R. Rounds, and Mrs. Marie G. Bayes.

FEAR MOTHER CHURCH FACES TEST OF RULE

Mrs. Stetson Says She Won't Question It, but Legal Proceedings Are Rumored.

MRS. EDDY'S FUNERAL QUIET

Churches Here to Take No Official Notice of Her Death—No Changes Will Result, Says a Leader.

The death of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, and the announcement that her entire power in Christian Science affairs had reverted to the Board of Directors of the Mother Church in Boston, led yesterday to the belief in Christian Science circles here, that an effort would be made soon in the courts to determine by what legal authority the Mother Church Directors can control the finances of the wealthy organization, and also to question the powers of the board to make rulings which last year resulted in the excommunication of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and sixteen of her followers. One report was that such proceedings would be instituted against the Mother Church Directors by Mrs. Stetson or some of her students.

Mrs. Stetson, in a written statement, denied that she had heard of any such proceedings, and said none of her followers were seeking to oppose the Mother Church authorities. But even Mrs. Stetson's denial of personal knowledge of the reported legal action failed to quiet the rumor.

Mrs. Stetson's statement was in reply to a note telling of the rumor which was sent to Mrs. Stetson in the afternoon. Half an hour later her statement over her own signature was given to the reporters. It was written on Mrs. Stetson's private letter paper, bearing her coat of arms, and read:

Mrs. Stetson's Statement.

"This is the first information I have had of the 'proceedings' to which you refer. I am confident that no one whom I know is engaged in opposition to the authorities to whom you refer, nor to the interests of the cause of Christian Science, but are following the example of our revered leader, Mrs. Eddy, healing the sick and uplifting humanity. Meekness and unselfish love for the world, which is bound with fetters of sin and suffering, marks the lives of Christian Scientists, and they are all engaged in fulfilling the law of love to God and to man."

Although Mrs. Stetson made no comment yesterday on the oft-repeated story that on the death of Mrs. Eddy she would declare herself the logical successor of the high priestess of Christian Science, officials high in the councils of the Mother Church said that Mrs. Stetson could have no such intention. They referred to her statement to THE TIMES on Nov. 15 last in which she said over her own signature: "Repeated denials by me of false and malicious reports should make it unnecessary for me to again refute the charge that I am in any least particular working against the cause of Christian Science. The oft-repeated statement that I am to supplant or succeed Mrs. Eddy as the head of the entire cult, I have repeatedly and emphatically denied.

"I trust I shall not again be obliged to refute the erroneous statement that I contemplate erecting another material church edifice. That has been fully and finally demonstrated."

Any Churchman Can Sue Directorate

It was learned yesterday that any member of the Christian Science Church inclined to question the authority of the Mother Church Directorate can compel the Directors by court proceedings to appear in court and prove their legal right to the power conferred on their board by Mrs. Eddy. One of the church officials here who has had legal experience said that while the Board of Directors is a self-perpetuating body there is no provision in the Christian Science Church Manual to cover such an exigency as the death of the entire board. In such an event the church would be without a governing head. The church manual does prescribe, however, that in the case of a vacancy on the board it shall be filled by a majority vote of the remaining members.

A phase of the situation created by Mrs. Eddy's death is that, as the by-laws stand at present, the approval of a "pastor emeritus" is required before certain matters can be passed on by the Directorate. Article 1 of the Church By-Laws says:

> The Church officers shall consist of the Pastor Emeritus, a Board of Directors, a President, a Clerk, a Treasurer, and two Readers. The President shall be elected, subject to the approval of the Pastor Emeritus, by the Board of Directors.

Mrs. Eddy was the pastor emeritus, and her death, it was explained by one of the church officials yesterday, probably will nullify the portion of the by-laws which refer to action by the "pastor emeritus."

An amendment to the by-laws made several years ago provided that:

> No new tenet or by-law shall be adopted nor any tenet or by-law amended or annulled, without the written consent of Mary Baker G. Eddy, the author of our text book, Science and Health.

There is nothing in the church manual providing for the appointment of a pastor emeritus, and it was supposed at first that some provision delegating additional power to the Board of Directors of the Mother Church would be made in the will of Mrs. Eddy. This, however, was denied yesterday by the Mother Church authorities, who said it would require no such provisions to make the power of the Directors absolute; that the death of the "pastor emeritus" naturally would delegate entire power to them.

Says There'll Be No Changes.

A denial that any material changes would be made in the affairs of the Christian Science Church because of the death of Mrs. Eddy came yesterday from Eugene R. Cox, Chairman of the Publication Committee of the church in New York State.

"The Christian Science Church in New York City has now twelve organizations which are growing rapidly," said Mr. Cox. "They will continue to thrive just as though Mrs. Eddy had not passed away, because the church is founded on a truth and not a personality.

"A rupture in the New York church at this time is impossible. All differences which may have existed a year ago have been settled once and for all."

Chairman Cox said that no delegation of Christian Scientists would go from here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Eddy. He said, too, that it was not likely that any individual members of the church would go to Boston for the ceremony, because it was the expressed wish of the Mother Church Board of Directors that the services be exceedingly simple and attended only by the relatives of Mrs. Eddy and by members of her household and officials of the Mother Church.

"There will be no extra services held here in commemoration of Mrs. Eddy," said the Chairman. "Such requiems would be contrary to the policy of the Church and therefore contrary to Mrs. Eddy's wishes. We will hold our regular Wednesday and Sunday meetings, with the ordinary readings. There will be no extra addresses on the passing away of Mrs. Eddy at the services.

"This branch so far has sent no messages of condolence to the Mother Church, as such is not in order according to our teachings. Beyond acknowledging the receipt of the notice of Mrs. Eddy's leaving us there has been no official communication between here and Boston."

Mrs. Eddy's Own Words on Death.

The statement attributed to Alfred Farlow, head of the Christian Science publications, and published yesterday in dispatches from Boston, that Mrs. Eddy was "in error" for several days before her death from pneumonia, attracted much comment here yesterday among those who are unfamiliar with the Christian Science conception of error. One official of the Church here, when asked for the literal translation of "error," as accepted by Christian Scientists, referred the questioner to Page 472 of Mrs. Eddy's own book, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures." This reads:

> Error is a supposition that pleasure and pain, that substance, life, are existent in matter. Error is neither Mind nor one of Mind's actualities. Error is the contradiction of Truth. Error is a belief without understanding. Error is unreal because untrue. It is that which seemeth to be and is not. If error were true, its truth would be error, and we should have a self-evident absurdity—namely, erroneous truth. Thus we shall continue to lose a standard of Truth.

Members of the cult here say that Mrs. Eddy never asserted that she was immune from death. In one of her works she wrote:

"The present mortal sense of being is too finite for anchorage in infinite good, God, because mortals now believe in the possibility that life can be evil.

"The achievement of this ultimatum of science, complete triumph over death, requires time and immense spiritual growth.

"I have by no means spoken of myself; I cannot speak of myself as 'sufficient for these things.' I insist only upon the fact, as it exists in divine science, that man dies not, and on the words of the Master in support of this verity—words which can never 'pass away till all be fulfilled.'"

FUNERAL THURSDAY MORNING.

Only Relatives, Members of Household, and Church Officers to Attend.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Telegrams, cables, and long-distance telephone calls poured in all day on Alfred Farlow, Chairman of the publication company of the Christian Scientists, most of them inquiring if news of the death of Mrs. Eddy was authentic, many of them containing tender sentiments, and all, Mr. Farlow asserts, voicing loyalty to the Mother Church.

It was announced officially this afternoon that the funeral would be held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at Mrs. Eddy's late residence, Chestnut Hill. The services will be private, only members of her household, her relatives, and officers of the Mother Church being present.

That the body of Mrs. Eddy will be buried in the crypt under the altar of the Mother Church here is the belief to-night of many of those prominent in the denomination.

No official announcement of this has been given out, but so far as could be learned no arrangements have been made to take Mrs. Eddy's body to her birthplace, Bow, N. H., on Concord, N. H., where she so long resided, and a woman in high standing in the Church circles said to-day that there was a general understanding among the Church at large that the body would rest in the crypt.

When it was known at the time the new church was built, a few years ago, that a crypt was built in its foundation walls, it was generally reported that it was for the purpose of holding the body of the founder of the Christian Science belief.

The affairs of the church are now, as they have been for some time, in the hands of the Directors of the Mother Church, who, with the exception of Stephen A. Chase of Fall River, the Treasurer, are all young men. They are now practically Directors of all the Christian Science Churches of the world.

Archibald McLellan, editor of the Christian Science publications, has been connected with the Church about eight years. He is Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Stephen A. Chase, the Treasurer, has been connected with the Church about sixteen years, while A. V. Stewart, another Director, is publisher of Mrs. Eddy's books. J. V. Dittemore, the Clerk of the Church, is the newest Director, having been elected about a year ago. Adam H. Dickey, who for a long time has been Mrs. Eddy's private secretary, is also a Director.

There will be no successor to Mrs. Eddy as the leader of Christian Science. This was announced to-day positively.

"Succession to the leadership is not open to question," it was said. "Mrs. Eddy can have no successor. There cannot be two founders," said Mr. Farlow.

Mr. Farlow said that in case of any changes being made in the Church by-laws, which Mrs. Eddy was accustomed to amend at frequent intervals, they now would be made by the Christian Science Board of Directors, to whom Mrs. Eddy always referred any new rules before they were put into effect.

Since Mrs. Eddy ordered, in 1908, that no more censuses of the Church be taken, no official figures have been issued to show the growth of the Christian Science faith, but these latest statistics have the sanction of a leading member of the Church and may be regarded as authentic:

There are 997 churches and societies here and in foreign counties with an approximate membership of 820,000.

There are churches in the following foreign countries: Africa, four; Asia, one; Philippine Islands, one; Australia, four; Germany, six; Channel Islands, one; England, fifty; Ireland, three; Scotland, three; Wales, one; Holland, two; Italy, one; Norway, one; Sweden, one; Switzerland two; Bahama Islands, one; Canada, three; Panama, one; Porto Rico, one; Argentine Republic, two.

There are 3,765 practicing healers in the United States and Canada, and 296 in foreign countries.

Healers are registered in practically every country in the northern hemisphere.

Every State in the Union has at least one Christian Science church.

The approximate value of edifices belonging to Christian Scientists in America is $28,000,000.

In 1889 there were eleven Scientist churches and societies, with a membership of 450.

In 1899 there were 301 churches and societies, with 18,134 members.

VOTE ON THE AMENDMENTS.

Additional Returns Do Not Alter Effect of Former Figures.

With every county in the State, except Fulton, heard from, the corrected returns of the vote on the constitutional amendment increasing the number of Associate Judges of the Court of Appeals and the salaries of the Chief and Associate Judges, a majority of only 795 against the amendment is shown in the figures. There is no reason to believe that the vote in Fulton County will change the final result, except possibly in the size of the majority against the proposed amendment.

THE TIMES, on Thursday, printed a table showing the vote for and against the amendment in all but twelve counties of the State. Here is a table showing the vote in the remaining counties which have been heard from since:

Counties.	For.	Against.
Cortland	1,121	3,521
Greene	964	2,961
Herkimer	940	2,670
Madison	1,301	4,080
Nassau	4,197	5,620
Oneida	2,838	8,087
Orleans	388	939
Rensselaer	2,002	3,391
Rockland	2,754	1,984
Sullivan	1,315	3,353
Wayne	891	3,212
Total	18,711	39,818
In other counties*	308,628	288,316
Grand total	327,339	328,134

Majority against amendment, 795.

*Fulton County missing.

With Fulton County missing, revised returns from the entire State show the Palisades Park proposal to have been carried by a majority of 60,473.

FIRST SNOWSTORM STARTS CITY SLIDING

Swoops Down from Northwest, Accompanied by Cold Snap, with Zero Weather in Sight.

WHOLE COUNTRY BLANKETED

Temperature Down to 20 Below in Parts of Canada—People Go a-Tumbling in the Streets.

The blustering nor'easter that swooped down out of the Rocky Mountains on Sunday morning and gripped the Middle West crossed the Mississippi Valley that night and advanced toward the Atlantic States, accompanied by heavy snow and low temperatures. The centre of the disturbance passed to the north of New York on its way out to sea, but the lower quadrant, as the weather men describe it, hit this town late yesterday afternoon and made its presence felt.

Snow began falling in the neighborhood of Times Square shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and from that time on to this morning it continued descending slowly, softly, and persistently.

The chances are that the big, feathery flakes will keep on falling for the rest of to-day. To-night a strong northwest wind is expected to sweep the rear guard of the storm on out to sea and send the mercury tumbling down below the 20-degree mark.

That cold northwest wind had already made its mark upon the Far West when the first flakes of snow were swirling down Broadway. All afternoon the wires were kept hot with messages telling how cold it was out beyond the Dakotas and north of the Canada line. At 8 A. M., one telegram read, it was 20 degrees below zero at Edmonton, Canada, while at Swift Currents it was 8 below. Last night the New England States reported very low temperatures, and to-night it will be New York's turn.

The official weather forecasters at Washington gave due notice of the storm, so if any one was caught unprepared he had only himself to blame. At 10:30 o'clock Monday morning the District of Columbia bureau sent out this bulletin:

> Warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Boston to Jacksonville; storm over lower Mississippi Valley, moving northeastward; will cause increasing northeast winds to-night, shifting to high northwest Tuesday.

Forecaster Scarr, the local weather man, had this to add to the Washington bulletin:

> The coldest weather of the season prevails over New England and Central and Northern New York, but with the normal movement of the disturbance central over Pennsylvania, New York, and the St. Lawrence Valley, temperatures in this vicinity will not fall much below freezing until after its passage.
>
> Very cold weather is extending from the extreme Northwest, along the Rocky Mountain slope, accompanied by snow, and, in some instances, high northwest winds. Winds in this vicinity will be moderate northeast this afternoon, increasing to-night and Tuesday.

While the first flakes of New York's first real snowstorm were falling gently on the surface of the city thoroughfares people were falling heavily on that same surface at all the important corners between the Battery and the Bronx. They fell singly, in couples, and in groups, and in all imaginable—and many unimaginable—ways. The windy square above the Flatiron Building has always been a great place for sightseers; it was a better vantage point than ever before between 5 and 7 o'clock last night, for the reason that more people tumbled in more ingenious ways right there than anywhere else. Old and young, fat and lean, few but the very agile, weathered this corner safely. Invariably, each one who had tumbled turned back when he or she had reached a point of safety to see some one else come to grief.

But aside from its humorous aspects the interference of the storm with surface traffic had consequences of serious nature. On Broadway, where vehicular and pedestrian travel is so dense as to leave but a small margin of safety at the best of times, narrow escapes were momentary occurrences last night, while the storm lasted. The snow, a cold wind, and slippery pavements combined to make the piloting of automobiles and surface cars hazardous and to put horse-drawn vehicles almost entirely out of commission so far as Broadway itself was concerned. In the side streets where the paving was not worn as smooth as glass the footing for man and beast was much more secure. Trucks and delivery wagons kept to the rough surfaces as much as possible, but even then it was hard to stay up.

The police sent in a long list of accidents due directly to the storm. Most of the injuries were in the form of sprains and broken bones. Here are a few of them:

Patrolman Theodore Dulfer of the Snyder Avenue, Flatbush, Station, while acting as guard on the taxicab of William Kreischer, at Sixtieth Street and Fifth Avenue, was knocked off the front seat of the vehicle when it was struck by another taxicab driven by Harry Fletcher, which skidded on the slippery pavement. Dulfer suffered a sprained left wrist, left shoulder and contusions of body. Dr. Simpson of the Presbyterian Hospital treated him and he went to his home at 1,028 Morris Avenue, Woodhaven, L. I.

Margaret McHenry of 163 West Ninety-sixth Street fell in front of 100 West Ninety-fifth Street, and fractured her right wrist. She went home after treatment.

Thomas Pint, 10 years old, of 235 East Fifty-ninth Street, stumbled into a taxicab at Fifty-ninth Street and Park Avenue, and suffered a sprained right knee. He was treated by Dr. Simpson of Presbyterian Hospital, and went home.

Stephen Brennan of 451 West Fifty-sixth Street, crossing the street at Sixth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, was struck and knocked down by a taxicab. He received contusions of the hip and abrasions of the leg. He was removed to Flower Hospital.

Edith Dodd of 1,733 Amsterdam Avenue fell in front of 499 West 145th Street. She received a fractured right arm. She was attended and went home.

Sarah Dugin of 158 East Forty-third Street fell in front of 249 East Thirtieth Street and was removed to Bellevue Hospital suffering from a fractured leg.

Bridget Brady, aged 75, of 312 Front Street, fell in front of 302 Front Street. She received a contusion of the left leg. She was attended and went home.

Stephen Lots, a driver of 238 West Twenty-sixth Street, fell in front of 44 Seventh Avenue. He suffered a sprained leg and was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

William Gallagher of 44 West Sixty-sixth Street fell at Broadway and Sixtieth Street. He suffered a sprained knee. He was attended and went home.

Traffic on the trolley and surface lines in Brooklyn was delayed on account of the snow, and congestion at the busiest points was increased considerably. Up to midnight forty ambulance calls had been turned in and some twelve or more mishaps had been reported to the police. Most of the injuries were of minor nature, as was the case in Manhattan.

EDWARDS READY FOR WORK.

Tells the Mayor the People Ought to Keep Sidewalks Clear of Snow.

When Street Cleaning Commissioner William H. Edwards heard that New York was in line for a real snowstorm he wrote a letter to Mayor Gaynor complaining that property owners in preceding Winters had complicated the work of snow removal by delaying the clearing of their sidewalks until after the street had been cleaned by the department's men. Commissioner Edwards is out for a record this year, and he believes that his work will be simplified if he has the co-operation of the police force. He intimated that in his message to the Mayor.

Mayor Gaynor then wrote this letter to Commissioner Cropsey:

> Sir: The Commissioner of Street Cleaning has written to you requesting that the patrolmen notify property owners to clear their sidewalks promptly after each snowstorm, and see that they do it. I trust you will make it a point to assist the Commissioner in that respect to the fullest extent for if the streets be cleared of snow and then the property owners pitch the snow from the sidewalks into the streets afterward, the wagons have to return. Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
> JAMES C. CROPSEY, Esq., Police Commissioner.

Commissioner Edwards yesterday awarded the snow removal contract for that part of Manhattan lying below Fourteenth Street to Charles Memario, and all of Brooklyn to F. H. Donlon. Contracts for the rest of Manhattan will be awarded to-day.

70,000 AMERICAN DOLLARS.

Amount Cabled to Redmond for Irish Cause Reaches That Sum.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Ten thousand "American dollars," the seventh remittance, making a total of $70,000, was cabled to the Irish Parliamentary leader, John E. Redmond, to-day by Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, National Treasurer of the United Irish League of America, to aid the Irish Nationalist cause in the Parliamentary elections now being held in Great Britain.

Local officials of the league said to-day that money for still another remittance is now well in hand, and it is likely that one, and possibly two, more installments of $10,000 will be cabled to the Nationalist leaders before the campaign closes. Of the amount cabled to-day, $3,500 came from Portland, Ore.; $1,500 from Vancouver, B. C.; $1,500 from Houston, Texas; $1,000 from Butte, Mon., and $500 each from Brooklyn, N. Y., and Cleveland, Ohio.

TAXICAB DRIVERS CALL STRIKE OFF

Men Vote to Accept Terms Proposed by the Various Companies.

RETURN TO WORK TO-DAY

Action Taken After Conference at Which Mayor Gaynor's Advice Prevailed.

The striking chauffeurs, at a meeting yesterday in the Utah House, Twenty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, voted to accept the last proposition made by the taxicab companies which they rejected a week ago. The prosposition has a clause by which the companies agree not to discriminate against union emloyes, and the strikers look on this as virtually a recognition of the union.

Before the vote was taken a committee of eleven representing the strikers, headed by William H. Ashton, general organizer of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, and accompanied by Col. Reagan and John J. Bealin of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, went to the City Hall and had a conference with Mayor Gaynor. The proposition of the employers was gone over and the Mayor advised the representatives of the strikers to accept it.

The meeting at the Utah House was then called. Mr. Ashton and Col. Reagan urged the acceptance of the proposition. There were a few opposition speeches, but they were not very strong. The vote was by ballot, 530 voting to accept the proposition and 472 against. The strike was then declared at an end and the strikers at a meeting later in Washington Hall were directed by the Strike Committee to return to work to-day.

The strikers considered that they had gained a number of advantages and say they will return to work under better conditions than before they struck. They will be paid $2.50 a day and have a twelve-hour day, with an hour off for dinner. The proposition of the employers was signed by officers of the New York Taxicab Company, the Cab and Taxi Company of New York, the New York Transportation Company, the Connecticut Cab Company, the Mason-Seaman Transportation Company, the Universal Taximeter Cab Company, and the Kayton Taxicar and Garage Company.

Before Dec. 10 the following complaints will be adjusted: Payment by employes for uniforms, charges imposed on employes for damages to employers' property, deductions made from pay of employes for time during which vehicles are disabled, and any other grievances the men may have against their respective employers.

The employers were notified last night by Organizer Ashton that the strike was off, and will take as many of the strikers back as possible. President Allan Lexow of the Motor Car Owners' Association said later:

"I believe the employers will be able to take seventy-five of the late strikers back at once. More will get back as there are vacancies. We have nothing but the best of good will for them now that the strike is over."

The returning strikers, it was stated last night, will not wear the union button in the cabs. The demand for this privilege prevented the acceptance of the proposition by the employers last week. The representatives of the strikers said last night that the strikers have practically received all they wanted except this concession, and have waived the demand for the privilege of wearing the union button at work.

Oliver Fines Taxi Chauffeurs.

Chief Oliver of the Bureau of Licenses conducted several trials of taxicab chauffeurs against whom complaints had been filed yesterday. He imposed a number of small fines for various offenses and told the representatives of the taxicab companies who were present that the law will be enforced strictly in all cases. He advised them to instruct chauffeurs to be more courteous to patrons, pointing out that a license can be revoked for an offense of this kind alone.

LEAVES HOME FOR STAGE.

Friends Discover Bridgeport Doctor's Missing Wife in Show Girl's Part.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 5.—Through the visit of some of her friends last night to a New York theatre, it became known to-day that Meria Phalen Weidlich, wife of Dr. H. S. Weidlich, a prominent dentist of this city, who before her marriage three years ago was prominent in amateur theatricals here, has gone on the professional stage as a show girl. Mrs. Weidlich had let none of her friends into the secret, and their surprise was genuine.

Mrs. Weidlich left Bridgeport a few weeks ago. Her husband was reticent as to her whereabouts, and her friends thought she simply was away on a visit.

Mrs. Weidlich is of the blonde type, gifted with a clear soprano voice, and charming of face and figure. At his office to-day her husband stated that his wife had never given up her longing for the footlights, and that when she obtained an opportunity to go on the stage he did not attempt to prevent it.

Everything was quiet until a quarter of an hour before the hour of meeting. Many Democrats hurried down to see Mr. Clark in the Democratic conference room in the basement, and he received a steady stream of callers congratulating him and assuring him of their support for the Speakership in the next House.

Representative Joel Cook was the first member to make his appearance in the hall of the House, and soon a dozen or more members had gathered to tell each other how it happened. One Republican member met an old friend and, as he grasped his hand, exclaimed:

"John, I'm so glad you are among the saved."

"Oh, Billy, be careful how you use such a strong word as that," was the reply. "I had only 78 majority."

Mr. Hull of Iowa met every comment on his defeat with a happy peal of laughter, and said he had got his at last, after fighting for every nomination and election for half a dozen years past. Perhaps the saddest-looking man all day was De Alva Alexander of the Buffalo district. The majority of one against him was a subject of conversation that seemed never to lose interest, although Mr. Alexander often looked wearied when it was broached to him. Richard Wayne Parker of the Seventh New Jersey District, contributed a uniformly glum face to the dolefulness of the occasion.

Boutell Thinks He Suffered for Cannon.

Former Speaker J. Warren Keifer came early, bluff and hearty, in the same brass-buttoned dress suit which he always wears, and he, too, had to discuss the sad subject of a defeat, although he philosophically reminded every one that it was not the first time that he had been stung. Tawney of Minnesota, who of late years has been developing a canine watchfulness of the Treasury, did not yield gracefully to the prevalent theme, and refused to discuss why he had been beaten at last. But he was surrounded at his seat for half an hour before the gavel fell by both Democrats and Republicans, who regretted his defeat. Boutell of Illinois, the indefatigable standpatter, whose loyalty to Cannon became his principal asset, took all the badinage that came his way in perfectly good nature. His only explanation of his overthrow was that he thought that some one took out on him what they tried to administer to his chief. The insurgents were serene at all points. Few of them but could remark in a half casual manner that he had a thousand or two majority more than the last time.

Speaker Cannon came from his room across the lobby hardly half a minute before noon and in the same old way pushed in through the door at the east of the Speaker's desk. His entrance was seemingly the one thing that every Republican had been looking for, and the applause began before the doors had swung to behind him. Uncle Joe looked not a minute older or a bit less lively than he did five months ago, when he brought his gavel down in the impressive way that is all his own, and declared the House adjourned sine die. He stepped up into his place just as he has for seven years past, and cheers came from both sides of the chamber and from the galleries in tribute to the old man. Then he brought down a tremendous stroke, and cried:

"The House will be in order. The Clerk will call the roll by States."

And the great common American householder, twenty millions of him all told, may be glad to know that through the entire proceedings the roof of the House leaked. A steady downpour of melted snow came through the stained glass coat of arms of little Rhode Island just over the Speaker's desk. The credentials of one of the new members fell in the pool on the white marble steps and was soon a slushy splotched mass of purple ink, and when Gen. Bingham of Pennsylvania came up to the desk to consult the Speaker, a huge drop had the temerity to fall pat on his broad pink expanse of baldness.

SET CHILD AFIRE AT PLAY.

Little "Indians" Danced Around Her with Cans of Coals.

Half a dozen litle Italian children playing as Indians danced around five-year-old Jennie Ragone of 2,063 Dean Street, Brooklyn, their "captive," in front of her home yesterday evening, swinging tin cans filled with burning coals around her. Suddenly one of the cans overturned, showering its fire upon her. With screams of real terror, the "Indians" fled to their nearby homes.

Two men rushed over to the child, as the flames spread quickly over her, and tried to stifle them by rolling her in the snow. Her mother, hearing Jennie's cries, rushed from her home and tore the burning dress from the child's body, burning her own hands painfully, but finally beating out the flames. The child was so badly burned about the face and body, however, that at the Bushwick Hospital last night it was said she could scarcely live till morning.

WHY DO PEOPLE BUY?

Aristotle said: It is because the benefit promises to be greater than the sacrifice.

That is the fundamental reason for property improvements.

But it is too serious a matter to erect a building on the theory that the income promises to justify the investment. The income must be a certainty.

Now, you cannot ensure that result without Economy, Quality and Speed—but you can ensure it by employing us.

BELMONT EXPLAINS USE OF RACING FUND

And Protests Against Attempts to Connect His Disbursements with Legislative Bribery.

LETTER TO M. LINN BRUCE

Racing a Pastime, Not a Business, with Him—$40,000 to Judge Coyne Before Anti-Race Bill Was Planned.

In a letter to M. Linn Bruce, chief counsel of the legislative investigating committee, yesterday, August Belmont declared that an attempt had been made to impress on the public mind an unfair and distorted view of his relations with racing. Racing, he says, has been with him a pastime and not a business. He is emphatic in reiterating that he has never, "directly or indirectly, in person or through any corporate or individual channel, contributed, authorized, or viséed the expenditure of a single dollar to improperly influence legislative action," and that he has never been asked to do so.

Mr. Belmont tells of moneys expended by the racing associations for legal services and for publicity work in gaining the support and favor of the public and of agricultural and horse breeders' societies, and mentions the payment by the racing interests of $40,000 in 1907 to Judge Coyne for his legal services before the Legislature and elsewhere in behalf of racing interests, before the Legislature which passed the anti-racing law came into existence.

Mr. Coyne, he says, was recommended to him by ex-Congressman Wadsworth, the father of the Speaker. No suggestion was ever made, he says, that Judge Coyne's bills covered any improper disbursements or that moneys had been used in improperly influencing the Legislature. He protests against "an apparent effort in some quarters" to shoulder upon him the burden of the distribution and administration of the thousands paid out by the racing interests through their lawyers' fees and publicity bureaus.

Accompanying Mr. Belmont's letter was one from F. K. Sturgis, Treasurer of the Coney Island Jockey Club, in which he said he was mistaken when he said in giving his evidence a few days before that Speaker Wadsworth had recommended the employment of Judge Coyne as counsel. He had learned that it was the father of Speaker Wadsworth who made the recommendation.

Mr. Belmont's Letter.

This is Mr. Belmont's letter:

"Dec. 5, 1910.

"The Hon. M. Linn Bruce, Chief Counsel Legislative Investigating Committee, 55 Liberty Street, New York City.

"Dear Sir: Since the giving of my testimony before your committee it has come to my attention through the newspapers that a most unfair and distorted view of my connection with racing interests is sought to be imbedded in the public mind. Racing with me now, and for many years, has been a pastime, not a business. My financial holdings in property used for racing purposes have always been very moderate. The great bulk of my time is devoted to the management of my banking and railroad interests, and I now repeat what I stated to your committee, that the sweeping allegation of a corrupt use of money to influence legislation was a matter of which it ought to be presumed I was ignorant. I cannot make too emphatic the statement that I have never, directly on indirectly, in person or through any corporate or individual channels, contributed, authorized, or viséd the expenditure of a single dollar to improperly influence legislative action, nor have I been asked to do so.

"The claim is made, as I understand it, that money was used to bribe the members of the Legislature of 1908 to vote against the Hart-Agnew law. On this assumption, let us look at the facts. The evidence before your committee shows the existence of some eight racing associations in the territory of Greater New York and vicinity, with but one of which, the Westchester Racing Association, have I any connection. I have also been Chairman of the Board of Stewards of The Jockey Club since its organization, fifteen years ago. For some fourteen years, running back to the time of the passage of the Percy-Gray law, the racing interests have always been involved in numerous and expensive litigations, calling for the expenditure of very large sums of money and the retention of a small army of lawyers.

Employment of Judge Coyne.

"My interest in racing as a sport has prompted me to maintain a general and not a special supervision of the amount of moneys that were being expended by the associations. It would seem that in 1907 upward of $40,000 was paid to Judge Coyne for services rendered by him before the Legislature and elsewhere in behalf of racing interests. This money was paid him before the Legislature of 1908, which passed the law crippling racing came into existence. To this sum most, if not all, of the associations contributed. The figures, while large, were claimed by him to be reasonable in the light of the work performed. Mr. Coyne had been County Judge and Surrogate of Livingston County, and a lawyer of high standing in the up-State counties. He had as early as 1905 been recommended to me by ex-Congressman Wadsworth, the father of the Speaker, as a very capable lawyer to serve any interests efficiently, and as trial lawyer to represent corporations in which I was largely interested, coupled with the information that while Judge Coyne resided in Livingston County he had been the adviser of the Wadsworth estate.

"After Gov. Higgins appointed Mr. Wadsworth, the elder, Chairman of the State Racing Commission, to take my place, where I had served ten years, under appointments from Govs. Morton and Roosevelt, while not specially retained by me, it was very natural and logical that Judge Coyne should come to professionally represent racing interests. We were very much interested in securing the active support of agricultural societies and horse breeders throughout the State, and to exert all possible legitimate influence to preserve our legal status intact. In a State-wide way, Judge Coyne endeavored to represent us. No suggestion was ever made to me that his bills covered any improper disbursements, or that our moneys had been in 1907, or in any other year, used in improperly influencing the Legislature.

Speaks of Juggled Figures.

"In 1908, the Hart-Agnew law having been passed while I was in Europe, I undertook on my return, after consultation with my associates, the disbursement of such portion of the fund of $40,000 testified to before your committee in publicity and legal services as I might be able to arrange, and the items of moneys paid out from such fund have been correctly given you. The apparent effort in some quarters to so misrepresent the testimony of Mr. Sturgis as to shoulder upon me the burden of the distribution and administration of the many thousands of dollars paid out by racing interests in the last few years through their publicity bureaus and in lawyers' services is most unfair and in conflict with the actual facts.

"I in no way shirk my share of responsibility, but that the public should be persuaded into a belief by juggling with figures that I have soiled my name by stooping to cover up under the guise of lawyers' bills and newspaper expenditures the bribing of members of the Legislature is a position in which no fair-minded man would wish to place me. Nor shall I ever consent to believe until the proof is overwhelming to the contrary that any of my associates were party to, or cognizant of, any opposition to anti-racing legislation which was not, under the circumstances, perfectly defensible and under legal advice.

"The warfare waged against racing incited a volume of litigation almost incredible in character and extent, going back many years. The life of the sport was at stake. We did everything in our power through our publicity agents to create and maintain a sentiment among the people that would prevent destructive legislation. We employed the best legal talent that could be had to represent us in the courts and in this way disbursed large sums of money.

"Should your committee desire my further attendance, you can reach me by telephone at my office, 23 Nassau Street, and I will gladly aid you in any way in my power. There must be no opportunity for a misunderstanding as to any acts of mine in regard to racing matters. I remain, very truly yours,

"AUGUST BELMONT."

Here is the letter from Treasurer Sturgis which was inclosed with Mr. Belmont's letter to Mr. Bruce:

"Dec. 5, 1910.

"Hon. M. Linn Bruce, Chief Counsel, Legislative Committee, New York City:

"Dear Sir: Since my appearance before your committee on Friday last I have learned that I was in error in stating that Judge Coyne was recommended to the racing interests by the present Speaker, J. W. Wadsworth, Jr. The recommendation really came from his father. I would like to add further that certain portions of my testimony appear to have been misunderstood, and I have read a letter which will be sent to you from Mr. Belmont, which letter I heartily indorse.

"Yours very truly,

"F. K. STURGIS."

DR. FLEXNER OPERATED ON.

Head of the Rockefeller Institute Resting Well—Had Appendicitis.

Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, was reported last night as doing as well as could be expected for one operated on for appendicitis. He had been ill for several days, but until his physicians held a consultation on Sunday night it was not thought that an operation would be necessary, but fear that a recurrence of the malady might develop into an acute form of appendicitis led them to decide that an operation would be the best course.

Dr. Flexner was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital on Sunday night, and yesterday morning was operated upon by Dr. Joseph A. Blake. At the hospital it was announced that the operation was successful, and that Dr. Flexner had stood it very well. His pulse and temperature were good, and he passed a comfortable afternoon. Unless complications set in the physicians are hopeful of his recovery, but it was said yesterday that it would be some time before Dr. Flexner could be pronounced out of danger.

CAR FRAUD LOSS, $6,500,000.

Sum Named in Stockholder's Suit Against Illinois Central Directors.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The total amount of which the Illinois Central Railroad was mulcted through alleged car repair frauds was fixed at $6,500,000 in the declaration of a suit filed late to-day by Mrs. Jennie Edgar, a stockholder in the company.

The defendants' names are James T. Harahan, Cornelius Vanderbilt, R. W. de Forest, R. S. Lovett, John Jacob Astor, J. Ogden Armour, Charles A. Peabody, John G. Shedd, Alexander H. Hackstaff, Walter Luttgen, John W. Auchincloss, and Robert W. Goelet.

The declaration recites the history of the investigation into the car repair bills and the prosecution leading to the indictment of former officials. It asserts the defendant Directors failed to perform their duties as Directors or to exercise their supervisory powers over the business affairs of the railroad.

SHEPARD MAKES CALL ON DIX IN ALBANY

Visit to the Governor-Elect Said Not to Relate to the Senatorship.

ON CIVIL SERVICE BUSINESS

Next Governor Does Not Expect to Devote Time Now to Points in His Message and to Appointments.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 5.—Governor-elect John A. Dix was at his State Street residence here to-day, and will remain in Albany till Saturday, when he goes to New York City to be present in the evening at a dinner of the Merchants' Association, where he speaks. Mr. Dix is busy collecting data for his annual message to the Legislature, and will during the week see the representatives of the different State departments to obtain from them detailed information relative to their work. He saw at his home to-day Deputy Commissioner Thomas E. Finegan of the State Educational Department and Deputy Commissioner Burnham of the Forest, Fish, and Game Commission.

Among his other callers was Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn, who has been mentioned as one of the available Democrats for election to the United States Senate to succeed Senator Depew. Mr. Shepard, however, was said to be in Albany on no political mission, and his call upon Gov. Dix was as a representative of the State Civil Service Reform Association to assure the Governor-elect that through the association's Secretary it would be prepared at any time to furnish him with information regarding the workings of the civil service law in this State. This was at his own suggestion, Mr. Dix said.

There was, it was declared, no mention of the United States Senatorship or other political or governmental matters in the interview.

The Governor-elect and Mrs. Dix will attend the dinner given by Gov. and Mrs. White to the Court of Appeals Judges to-morrow evening. Ex-Chief Judge Alton B. Parker and Mrs. Parker and ex-Chief Judge Charles Andrews and Mrs. Andrews will also be the guests of Gov. White with the Court of Appeals Judges and their wives.

Mr. Dix does not expect that he will be able to do much more this week than collect data relative to his message and regarding the candidates for some of the positions which he must announce before he actually takes office. He does not expect to have a general talk with party leaders till he visits New York City next week.

In New York City, where he is expected to remain all next week, Mr. Dix will attend, besides the Merchants' Association dinner, that of the Genesee Society and so many others that it is said he will attend at least one or two every night.

DIX TO BE AT TWO DINNERS.

The Guest of Democratic Merchants and Society of Genesee Same Night.

Gov.-elect John A. Dix, who is to be the guest of honor at the Merchants' Democratic Association's dinner on Saturday night, will also attend the annual dinner of the Society of the Genesee at the Plaza on the same night and make an address there.

Governor-elect Dix sent this letter to Justice Hendrick:

Thomson, N. Y., Nov. 28, 1910.

Dear Justice Hendrick: It will give me extreme pleasure to pay my respects in a short visit to the gathering of the members of the Society of the Genesee on the evening of Dec. 10.

As I have already two dinners to attend that night, would you kindly have the Secretary communicate with me at the Manhattan Hotel about 5 o'clock that evening, and I will state definitely the time that I can be at your dinner, for which I extend my felicitations and good wishes for its success, and the accomplishment of its purpose in preserving the Genesee spirit. Very truly yours,

JOHN A. DIX.

Justice PETER A. HENDRICK, Chambers Street, New York.

Mr. Dix was to have been the chief guest at the Merchants' Democratic Association dinner several weeks ago, but found that he could not be in New York at the time, and the dinner was postponed till Dec. 10. On Nov. 28, however, he accepted the invitation of the Society of the Genesee also.

FELL INTO A CYANIDE VAT.

Boy Paid for His Sport in a Factory with His Life.

Frolicking at the edge of a vat of cyanide of potassium solution used in the factory of the Auto-Pneumatic Action Co., 619 West Fifteenth Street, for cleaning silver wires in pianos, 16-year-old Louis Scherer of 534 West Fiftieth Street, an employe in the factory, suddenly lost his balance yesterday and fell in. As some thirty girls employed there rushed with hysterical screams around the vat, the boy opened his mouth to shout for help, swallowing, as he did so, a large quantity of the deadly solution.

Albert Peck, of 985 Columbus Avenue, another employe of the factory, dragged Scherer out of the vat, and then telephoned for an ambulance from the Flower Hospital. The boy was senseless, however, when the ambulance surgeon reached him, and died, despite the administering of antidotes and stimulants, at the hospital, half an hour after the accident.

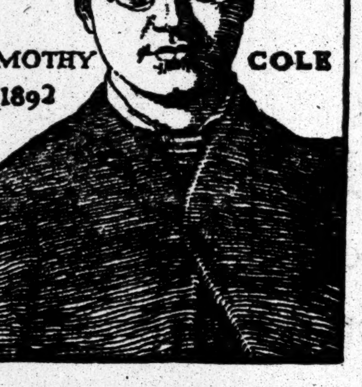
TIMOTHY COLE



For thirty years Timothy Cole has been reproducing on wood for The Century many of the great paintings of the world. At our request he has now returned to do for the American galleries what he has already done for the European.

Rembrandt's picture of his wife, the first of this new series, appeared in the November number, and Carrière's child picture, "Intimité," appropriately appears in the Christmas number.

Timothy Cole is the greatest wood engraver living—perhaps the greatest that ever lived. When he dies there will be no one to take up his work. Libraries, attics and bookstalls will be searched for old copies of this magazine to obtain merely the impressions of these cuts by Cole.

Good art will predominate in the Christmas Century and in subsequent numbers as it has in the past. Great artists always find in The Century sympathetic reproductions of their works, and in the readers of The Century sympathetic appreciation of their art.

The Christmas number, which will be eagerly anticipated by all regular readers, is a very good number for new readers to begin with.

MAX

A Splendid Book to Give

The Immediately and Continuously Successful Novel by KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON, author of "The Masquerader."

YOU will find a double delight in Mrs. Thurston's new story. For it is not only a love story, fascinating and mysterious, but a picture of Paris so vivid and so real that you will be able to follow Max from the moment of arrival in Paris in the gray of the early morning through many wanderings to the end of the story. Almost without exception the reviewers say the story is better than "The Masquerader" (high praise, indeed), "more breathless in interest, with a central situation just as strong." The pictures by Frank Craig make the book especially adapted for Christmas giving.

☞ MAX is the best selling novel to-day in the six largest cities and second in seven other cities. These are the December Bookman's official figures. MAX is reported in the list of best selling novels from the twenty-six cities of the country — from Maine to California.

Seven Million Lines.

In the eleven months of 1910 The New York Times published 6,842,445 lines of advertisements compared with 6,525,849 lines in 1909, a gain of 316,596 lines. This gain was made despite the exclusion of a large volume of advertising considered objectionable by The Times.

The New York Times reaches more people of a uniformly high purchasing ability than any other newspaper in the world, and introduces merchants and manufacturers to the most extensive assemblage of buyers ever brought together.

NO DIRECT EVIDENCE IMPLICATING GIRL

Hattie Le Blanc's Presence at the Laundry When Glover Was Shot Yet to be Shown.

HER STATEMENTS RULED OUT

Mrs. Glover Was at Home at the Time, Say Witnesses—Her Lawyer Testifies—Prosecution Closes To-day.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5.—The prosecution's direct case against Hattie Le Blanc, on trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, will probably be before the jury at the close of to-morrow's session. When the court adjourned to-night the jury had heard the evidence of twenty-one witnesses, seven of whom testified to-day.

No witness has yet testified to seeing Hattie Le Blanc enter or leave the laundry where the shooting is said to have taken place, and three efforts by the District Attorney to introduce testimony that more closely connected the girl with the crime have been ruled out by the court. In rebuttal of the defense's attacks on Mrs Lillian M. Glover, the widow, half a dozen witnesses testified to-day to seeing Mrs. Glover in her own home about the time the shooting is said to have occurred in the laundry.

Another victory for the defense was the exclusion at to-day's hearing of the girl's statements at the police station after her arrest. The prosecution tried on Saturday to show, through Mr. Elmore and other witnesses, that the girl understood English and answered three questions put to her in that language, without the aid of an interpeter. Other questions were asked through an interpeter.

Judge Bond stated that he did not think the girl knew the exact import of the questions asked her in English. The French interpreter had refused to come into the country from Canada to guarantee the girl's remarks, and the Government seemed unable to introduce Hattie's statements when examined by the police, but the District Attorney intimated to-day that he would produce him to-morrow. The Judge did not actually rule the questions out, saying that there might come a time in the trial when they could be introduced

Mrs. Glover's personal counsel, Samuel D. Elmore, was on the stand longer than any one else to-day, and was forced to admit that he was paid $4,153 by Mrs. Glover immediately after the murder, to defend her against a situation which had arisen. He declared that he readily detected marks on Hattie's hands when she was dragged from her hiding place. Whether these marks were powder stains he could not say, but they looked like it. He also said that she had a scar on her finger, and the defense laid much stress on the fact that in the searches of the Glover house for the girl a lamp was used, and might have been held close to this hand.

At the request of Mr. Johnson the witness drew a diagram of the marks he had observed on the floor of the Glover laundry after the murder, and which he thought indicated a struggle. This was put in evidence.

Mr. Elmore was asked why he wanted the $4,153 from the widow the day after the murder. He said that it was for expenses. When pressed by the District Attorney for a more specific answer, he replied:

"To meet a plot partially formulated."

Attorney Johnson immediately demanded that the remarks be ruled out. Judge Bond agreed.

Mr. Elmore then changed his reply by saying that he wanted the money to meet a situation brought about by the brothers of Mr. Glover, who subsequently sued the widow. He admitted that he refused to give up Hattie's clothes to Mr. Johnson, and that a bill in equity was now pending on the matter.

"Did you not give $10 to all four of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, the intimate friends of Mrs. Glover, on the Christmas following the murder?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"Did you ever do such a thing before?"

"No."

"Did you ever know the Freemans or any of the children before the murder?"

"No."

The witness admitted that his office adjoined that of District Attorney Higgins, and that of the latter's partner, Albert E. Gleason, and that he had obtained Gleason's opponent as appraiser of Glover's estate.

He said that he went to the Glover house after the funeral and removed all the guns and revolvers. He described briefly some of the incidents at the police examination.

Mr. Johnson asked the witness if he had seen a man named Fred Ferrio in New York while the hearing over the will was in progress. Mr. Elmore said that he did not know any "Fred Terrio," but that he had seen a man named A. D. Terrio at his hotel in New York. This Terrio's place of business, the witness said, was at 400 Sixth Avenue. He said Mrs. Glover was with him when A. D. Terrio called upon the witness at a New York hotel. The witness said that he didn't go anywhere else with Mrs. Glover during the will hearing, and that when he was with Mrs. Glover in New York no checks passed between them.

Mrs. Glover, the widow, was recalled, and produced a letter which she said she had found, written by Mrs. Abram Le Blanc of West Arichat, N. S., to her daughter, Hattie.

The crowd that swept into the courtroom and filled every available seat shivered for nearly three hours in the biting cold this morning. Several hundred were unable to get into the Court House.

SEEKS PEACE WITH COLONEL?

Judge Baldwin Doesn't Deny He May Speak with Roosevelt in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 5.—In a letter to Col. I. M. Ullman, President of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce, Col. Roosevelt states that his address at the dinner of that body on Tuesday evening of next week will be in the nature of a survey of the recent elections in the country. He also will include a perspective view of current political events. The title of the address is not known.

Col. Ullman said to-day he had no further information than that contained in the letter. At the time Col. Roosevelt accepted the invitation to address the chamber the selection of a subject was left with the guest. An inkling of the nature of the subject is given in this sentence from the letter:

> I will make my first public utterance on political matters at the New Haven Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Judge S. E. Baldwin, the Democratic Governor-elect of Connecticut, in response to a query as to whether he had accepted an invitation to attend the dinner and to make an address, had nothing to give out. As to the report that the controversy between himself and Col. Roosevelt had been the subject of correspondence and had been adjusted, Judge Baldwin had nothing to say at this time. The feeling is expressed here that before the dinner the controversy will become a thing of the past, and Judge Baldwin and Col. Roosevelt will speak from the same table. President Hadley of Yale University also will speak.

Judge Baldwin will speak before the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes in Washington on Dec. 15 preventing his attending the dinner of the National Democratic Club in New York on the same day.

ALARMED OVER TRADE LOSS.

Chicago Garment Makers Fighting to Keep New York from Getting It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The threatened loss to the clothing trade owing to the strike has aroused the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' Association to the necessity for extraordinary improvements in conditions surrounding the business here. The eighty-three firms in the association do a business of $40,000,000 a year, but the expense is very great because the factories are distributed over a wide area.

Plans have been drawn by leading architects to centralize the trade and interest buyers in the sanitary conditions here, which, it is said, do not exist in New York. It is proposed to buy a site of forty acres on Lake Michigan and erect factories, a library, clubhouse, bathhouse, gymnasium, recreation hall, and hotel.

Sol H. Shoninger, President of the association, has charge of the project. There will be six rows of factories built, with three stories and basement. Some eighty buildings are planned, with parks between and light on four sides. Chicago has 450 factories devoted to the manufacture of women's apparel.

Foss Resigns from Congress Jan. 4.

POSTUM.

THEY GROW

Good Humor and Cheerfulness from Right Food and Drink.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in a bad condition.

"But I was young and did not want to die, so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell it would take me days before I could sit up in a chair.

"I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum.

"The first cup, which I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived on Postum and ate little food besides. I am today a healthy woman.

"My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four years ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty the other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it all with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health.

"I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

BLAMES DOWNFALL ON BROADWAY'S LURE

Manager of an Automobile Tire Firm Couldn't Resist the White Lights.

HIS SHORTAGE NEARLY $5,000

Recorded Fictitious Orders, He Confesses, to Cover Up His Stealings—Held in $5,000 Bail.

Thomas H. Wilkins, 30 years old and thrifty, as his wife and child were accustomed to believe, brought his career as manager of a Broadway automobile tire concern to a close yesterday in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station, where he went to surrender himself after his employers had begun an investigation of his books.

When they asked Wilkins, after finding a shortage approximating $5,000 on the first day's hunt, what he had done with the money, he pointed down Broadway in the gathering dusk. The White Lights were just beginning to blink out in the theatrical stretches that lie in the tiers of blocks just below those given over to automobiles and automobile fixtures.

"They got it," he said. "The White Light district got every cent of it. It started with holding out a report of the sale of a pair of tires for $110 and it ended—well, that stack of orders in my desk aren't real orders. They are fictitious orders, made to cover real orders a year, and maybe two years, back."

The man was asked about his wife and child and whether he had tried to live beyond his means. That broke him down, and he declared between sobs that he had always lived on the square as to his family, paying them over regularly the larger part of his salary and conducting his Broadway conquests entirely out of the money taken from the company's till.

After hearing the details, Magistrate Breen held Wilkins in $5,000 bail on a charge of grand larceny amounting to $110. This was the first transaction traced on the general manager's books.

The complainant was Harry Dunn, President of the Fisk Rubber Company, with headquarters at Chicopee Falls, Mass., and branches in many cities, including one at 1,725 Broadway, near Fifty-fourth Street. The company manufactures an automobile rim with a detachable tire, and has been in business here for three years.

Wilkins, who had gained a remarkable standing with the firm on account of his efficiency as a salesman, was sent to take charge of the New York branch soon after it was opened. He had not before come into close contact with the Broadway section just below his office, but he soon learned of various excuses by which he could explain his frequent absences from his home, at 2,403 Seventh Avenue, at night.

Some time ago the firm noticed a falling off in their receipts from the New York branch, and Lawyer Sidney S. Meyers of 68 William Street was put in charge of an investigation. An inventory of the tires on hand showed a shortage, with a rush of orders suddenly appearing from the manager's desk to partially fill the deficiencies. Then it was found that patrons who had paid their bills had not been credited with the amounts turned in and that sales had been made to persons who gave Wilkins personal checks at his request.

These he cashed, acording to Lawyer Meyers, without making any record of the transaction or turning in the money. Mr. Meyers said last night that Wilkins had made and signed a complete confession and that this confession figured largely in obtaining the consent of Magistrate Breen to name a very heavy bond on the apparently small sum specified in the charges as filed.

Twilight Club's 609th Dinner.

The Twilight Club will hold its six hundred and ninth dinner on Wednesday evening, Dec. 14, when the topic, "Why Are We Afraid of Socialism?" will be discussed. Charles A. Towne, former United States Senator from Minnesota, will preside, and among the guests will be Congressmen-elect Martin W. Littleton and Henry George, Jr., Alexander Irvine, formerly of the Church of the Ascension; Jessica G. Finch, a recent candidate for Secretary of State on the Socialist ticket, and Morris Hillquit. To insure privacy the place where the dinner is to be held will not be made known until the dinner cards are issued.

BITTEN BY PET BULLDOG.

But Miss Taylor Is Believed to be in No Danger of Rabies.

Dorothy Cadwell Taylor, daughter of B. L. Taylor, a retired broker of 784 Fifth Avenue, was bitten about the face by a pet bulldog at her home Friday morning and has been receiving treatment at the Pasteur Institute. The wounds, according to Miss Taylor's father, are not serious, and will not mar her features in any way. The dog had been a pet in the Taylor house for several months. Friday morning Miss Taylor was reading in bed, with the dog lying beside her. Suddenly she spoke sharply to the animal, and it jumped upon her, sinking its teeth in her lip.

Mr. Taylor, attracted by his daughter's screams, went into her room and applied home remedies until the family physician arrived, when Miss Taylor was taken to the Pasteur Institute in an automobile. Dr. George Rambaud gave Miss Taylor two treatments, and she is considered to be out of all danger of rabies. The dog was taken to the New York Veterinary Hospital, on West Twenty-fifth Street, where it will be watched for several days.

Mayor Appoints J. J. Rooney.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday appointed John Jerome Rooney a delegate to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which will be held at Washington on Dec. 7, 8, and 9. Mr. Rooney is President of the Harbors, Terminals, and Transportation League and a member of the Committee on Domestic Commerce of the Merchants' Association.

STOLE PIN IN TIFFANY'S.

Young Man Arrested After Leaving Jewelry Shop.

Giving his name as Schuyler Chester Bishop, 24 years old, and saying he was a salesman, living at Mills Hotel No. 3, a young man was held in $10,000 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of grand larceny by Magistrate House in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday afternoon. He was arrested by Detective McKenna, who with Detective Cassassa, both of the Central Office, has been detailed to keep a lookout for pickpockets and shoplifters in the stores along Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets.

Detective McKenna told Magistrate House that he was in Tiffany's this afternoon and saw the defendant take a diamond-studded scarf pin from a tray that a woman customer was examining. He said he followed the young man out into the street, where he placed him under arrest. According to the detective, Bishop had in his possession the pin, which was valued at $40.

DEMAND THAT TAFT URGE TARIFF ACTION

Insurgents Tell Him the Verdict of the Last Election Should Not Be Ignored.

NIGHT SESSIONS IF NEEDED

Murdock Says the Country Expects Revision and Shortness of Time Is No Excuse—Extra Session if Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Five insurgents called at the White House to-day—all or most of them by invitation—and one at least put squarely up to the President the need of forcing Congress to immediate action on legislation demanded by the country. Victor Murdock of Kansas especially emphasized the duty of Congress to proceed at once to a partial revision of the tariff. He pointed out that the verdict of the people at the polls in November should be heeded as much by the present Congress as by the next, and urged that haste be made in showing the people that the party intended to obey.

The one Senator in the group was Mr. Bristow of Kansas. La Follette arrived to-day but did not see the President, while Borah and Cummins, by request, called at the White House on Saturday and had an extended talk with Taft. It is, perhaps, significant that Bristow, who is regarded as almost as recalcitrant as La Follette, was not invited on Saturday, but was left over for a private chat to-day.

The other insurgents who saw the President were Madison of Kansas, Hays of California, and Norris of Nebraska. Murdock suggested to the President that one way for Congress to save time would be to waste less of it. The Kansas Representative urged the necessity of night sessions to dispose of the appropriation bills so that Congress can do some real work this session, and by real work Mr. Murdock meant tariff legislation.

"The mandate of the election is as much binding upon this Congress as upon the new one that has been elected," Mr. Murdock said after coming from his conference with the President. "The country expects something to be done, and it will be but a poor part for this Congress to play to put off its responsibilities on the plea that there is no time for anything at this session except for the passage of the Appropriation bills. By eliminating general debate, holding night sessions, and limiting the Christmas holidays to a reasonable time, we can take care of the money bills and initiate the work of revising some of the tariff schedules.

"The country has spoken on the tariff, and if I am not mistaken it spoke to this Congress—the Congress that passed the Tariff bill. It has three months of life yet, and duties to perform of which the country is not unmindful.

"To be definite, I believe Congress should proceed at once at this session to revise the woolen schedule. Work that this Congress had to do and didn't do right should be done over. As long as this Congress has life it is responsible to the country for the tariff law, and every consideration of good faith demands that we undo as far as we can a law that has been judged by the country and condemned."

It already has been pointed out in these dispatches that any aggressive demand for legislation in this session, if it comes at all, will come from the insurgents. For the most part they are not hopeful that much more will be done than the few items the President already has favored—the fortification of the canal, the increase in the powers of the tariff board, and perhaps the reorganization of the Post Office Department. The President also has been quoted as favoring a ship subsidy bill, but to that the insurgents are opposed unalterably.

An authoritative leader of the Senate gave it to-day as his opinion that there would be no tariff legislation this year, and the insurgents were not surprised when they heard it. They will support cordially the President's request for a stronger tariff board, and they probably will follow him unanimously in his efforts to fortify the canal and in his desire to remodel the Post Office Department. They would like to do more than this, but they doubt that the President will go further, and they realize that they still are too weak to do much initiating themselves.

Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who arrived in Washington last night on his return from Panama, believes it will be necessary to hold an extra session of Congress.

"It is doubtful whether even the regular appropriation bills can be passed at this session," said Mr. Tawney.

"Lame Duck Alley" again proved unpopular to-day during the Congressional reception hours at the White House, and it was shunned by Senators and Representatives alike.

Senator Depew strolled into the alley absentmindedly and sat there for ten minutes. He said he found it very comfortable. When the Senator checked his coat and umbrella he got Check No. 23.

NEW YORK AIDS RED CROSS.

Gives Half Million Toward $2,000,000 for an Endowment Fund.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—On the eve of the annual meeting here of the American Red Cross Society, President Taft, who is President of the organization, received word that New York City has completed its subscription of $500,000, apportioned to it on the basis of 10 cents per capita population, for the $2,000,000 endowment fund of the society. New York City is the first to complete its quota, and the President will make announcement to that effect to-morrow.

GROWTH OF THREE STATES.

Kentucky Gains 6.6, Mississippi 15.8, North Carolina 16.5 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Population statistics of the thirteenth census were issued to-day for the following States:

Kentucky, 2,289,905, an increase of 142,731, or 6.6 per cent. over 2,147,174 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 288,539, or 15.5 per cent.

Mississipi, 1,797,114, an increase of 245,844, or 15.8 per cent. over 1,551,270 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 261,670, or 20.3 per cent.

North Carolina, 2,206,287, an increase of 312,447, or 16.5 per cent. over 1,893,810 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 275,863, or 17.1 per cent.

SAYS TIME HAS COME TO HALT IMMIGRATION

Commission, in Forty Volume Report, Declares It No Longer Is Necessary.

TENDS TO LOWER WAGES

Aliens Come to Better Their Condition, Not to Escape Tyranny, and Sentiment Should Be Waived, Is Asserted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Sentimental considerations in restricting immigration should be waived in view of the economic problems arising from adverse effects on wages and living conditions which the large number of aliens have had in recent years by their entry into basic industries, according to the final report of the Immigration Commission transmitted to-day to Congress. The commission unanimously urges the restriction of unskilled labor immigration.

The commission, created under the Immigration act of 1907, expired to-day, and the results of its three-year investigation into practically all phases of the immigration question make about forty printed volumes. Says the report:

> The present immigration movement is in large measure due to economic causes, but emigration from Europe is not now an absolute economic necessity, and as a rule those who immigrate to the United States are impelled by a desire for better conditions rather than by the necessity of escaping from intolerable ones. This fact should largely modify the natural incentive to treat that immigration movement from the standpoint of sentiment and permit its consideration primarily as an economic problem.

The commission presents several proposals by which restriction of immigration might be affected, including a reading and writing test, the exclusion of unmarried unskilled laborers, limitations in the number arriving at any one port and from particular races, as well as in the amounts of money in their possession on arrival. All the members of the commission do not concur in the feasibility of the reading and writing test.

The immigrants now coming, it is agreed, do not furnish any more criminals or subects for charity than the native born, but the tendency toward industrial and city life remains unchanged, in spite of the fact that statistics show the immigrants to have been more successful in agricultural pursuits.

In connection with these findings, the report urges that the division of information in the Bureau of Immigration be so conducted as to co-operate with the States and various societies in a more beneficial distribution of immigrants among agricultural sections, where they especially are needed.

Efforts to exclude all British East Indians through an agreement with Great Britain, the continuance of the present Chinese exclusion laws as well as present regulations with regard to Japanese and Korean immigration, the passage of the House bill for the deportation of alien criminals, with changes in the immigration law to make it applicable to alien seamen, and the appointment of an additional Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor to determine immigration appeals are recommended.

The commission, which has been sitting continually since Nov. 15 last in reviewing the report, consisted of Senator Dillingham of Vermont, Chairman; Senators Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Leroy Percy of Mississippi, Representatives Bennet of New York, Benjamin F. Howell of New Jersey, and John L. Burnett of Alabama; Prof. J. W. Jenks of Cornell University, and William R. Wheeler of California, formerly Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

PICKS TWO FOR NEW COURT.

Prouty and Lane Said to be Slated by Taft for Commerce Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Information from an excellent, if not absolutely authoritative source indicates that President Taft has determined upon two members of the new court of commerce. They are Judge Charles A. Prouty of Vermont and Franklin K. Lane of California, both of whom now are members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

It is understood to be the desire of the President to obtain men for the new court who not only are in touch with the freight-rate situation, but who are familiar with the proceedings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

TO HEAR WILSON APPEAL.

Supreme Court to Act on United Wireless Contempt Case in January.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—An early hearing will be given by the Supreme Court of the United States to the appeals from the holdings of the Federal courts in New York to the effect that Christopher C. Wilson, President of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, was in contempt for not producing the books of the company for examination by the Grand Jury.

The court to-day assigned the Wilson case to be heard with the William Dreier case, also arising in New York and involving similar points of law. The Dreier case was recently restored to the docket after one argument and assigned for hearing "before a full bench." This probably will be some time in January.

TAFT CONFERS ON VACANT JUDGESHIPS

Many Names Under Consideration, but Selections for the Places Not Disclosed.

HUGHES'S PROMOTION LIKELY

Judge Pollock of Kansas Seems to Have Been Eliminated—Pennsylvania May Get an Appointment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Taft devoted a good deal of time to-day discussing the various candidates suggested to him for the two vacancies in the Supreme Court. He talked with men from all over the country about them, and a good many names were under consideration. Senators and Representatives from the East and West were consulted, and all shades of opinions were represented, Democratic and regular and Insurgent Republicans. The day's conferences have produced no small confusion of mind among the President's advisers as to whom he will select. It was said positively that he had practically ceased to consider either Judge Swayze or Judge Gummere of New Jersey, though some of the former Judge's advocates were confident that he would be named.

There was renewed confirmation of the report that the President intends to promote Justice Hughes to the Chief Justiceship, and that seems to be the only appointment which the President has decided upon.

It also appears finally determined that Judge Pollock of Kansas will not be named. There has been a great contest over the candidacy. Senator Curtis and the regular Republican influence from Kansas have been supporting Pollock, but the insurgents have been opposing him. Moreover, the insurgents have informed the President that they would contest confirmation in the Senate if Judge Pollock were nominated.

The President is now looking over the judiciary of Pennsylvania for the man he seeks. From a source close to the President it is said this afternoon that he is considering George Wharton Pepper, the Philadelphia lawyer, who was counsel for Gifford Pinchot in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

The President has made it clear that he desires to name one man from the Eighth Circuit, which was represented by Justice Brewer. He is again considering some of the Judges of the Circuit Court there, especially Vandeventer and Hook.

ADOPTS NEW EXPLOSIVE.

War Department Discovers One of Great Power for Submarine Mines.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A new high explosive for submarine mines, which will play havoc with the war vessels of a foreign foe, has been adopted by the War Department and is receiving the careful study of officers of the Coast Artillery Corps. The new explosive will not supplant other forms of ammunition for mines now in use, but the department will obtain an adequate supply, as its power has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of experts.

A NEW NOVEL OF GREAT BEAUTY AND SIGNIFICANCE

Mr. James Lane Allen's new novel

The Doctor's Christmas Eve

A NEW NOVEL

by the author of
"A Kentucky Cardinal,"
"Flute and Violin,"
"Two Gentlemen of Kentucky,"
"The Choir Invisible,"
"The Reign of Law,"
"The Mettle of the Pasture," etc., etc.

Cloth $1.50.

Mr. ALLEN'S power of creating the atmosphere of bluegrass Kentucky is something finer, deeper than any ordinary sympathy with a landscape however beautiful. He pictures Kentucky because the land that bred his men and women is an intimate part of those human hearts of which he writes as one who knows. His preeminently human men, and his ideal women with their subtle air of lace and lavender are uniquely convincing. Because he does not attempt to go beyond what a man can know he surprises many a secret of a woman's heart, and both respect him for his exquisite truth. As one of his English critics puts it, "his work has the staying qualities which surely grasp with confidence at immortality."

ACTED AS MOTHER OF ANOTHER'S BABY

Wife, with Husband's Consent, Palmed Off as Her's the Child of a Willing Guest.

REAL MOTHER REPENTED

Took Her Baby Away and Then the Warrens Sued to Recover It.

In his anxiety to gain possession of Walter Wellington Warren, who at the age of ten months is already the subject of litigation, Arthur W. Warren of Staten Island, as a petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings, unfolded to Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday a strange story that has in it a touch of Charles Reade, and in dramatic possibilities is not unsuggestive of a play now occupying the stage in New York. Declaring that his wife, Dora, had only pretended to be the mother of the litigated baby, Warren asked that its real mother be compelled to surrender the child from her custody, an order the court refused to make.

The Warrens were living in Manhattan last February, and with them was Maude M. Campbell, who gave birth to a baby boy on the 15th. It was agreed between the three that the Warrens should claim the child as theirs, and in pursuance of this scheme Mrs. Warren went so far as to retire for six days and submit to the daily calls of a physician.

These preliminaries having been passed, the baby was known to the world as Walter Wellington Warren, having been named after an uncle of the alleged father. Its real mother completely ignored it, Mr. Warren declares, and during the time that she stayed with them, never carried it around in her arms. Indeed, she disclaimed all relationship, and the Warrens supplied its wants and necessities out of the Warren purse.

All went well until Oct. 28, when Maude M. Campbell seems to have awakened to the responsibilities of her position. At any rate she took the baby away, and although Mrs. Warren makes affidavit that she visited the real mother on Nov. 3, to demand the whereabouts of Walter, she went away without obtaining the desired information. It is further stated that on Nov. 18 the stepfather of the petitioner, George S. Le Fevre, took Maude M. Campbell out and spent $20 in entertaining her. If this was intended as a step toward regaining the child, it does not seem to have been effective.

The baby's mother, it is asserted in the petition, spends the daytime in East Sixteenth Street, at St. George's Deaconess House, where babies are not allowed, and Mr. Warren feels that Walter Wellington Warren is left in charge of an incapable person, and he complains that "the party feeds the same on crackers." It is admitted, he asserts, that the child had to be sent to a hospital for treatment, which never would have happened had it stayed with the Warren family.

There was a proposal to adopt Walter some time ago, but this failed, Mr. Warren explains, because the mother gave such assurance that she never intended to claim the child as her own.

The response to the habeas corpus proceedings is short and pointed. The mother admits possession "through the natural and legal right" of motherhood, and as for the facts set forth about an agreement, it is urged that they constitute "a fraud and render the entire transaction illegal and against public policy." Justice Davis denied the writ.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL MUST PAY.

Supreme Court Confirms Taxes on Road Held for Late E. H. Harriman.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Holding a railroad for the late E. H. Harriman to-day proved somewhat expensive for the Illinois Central, when the Supreme Court of the United States approved a judgment by Kentucky courts for more than $11,000 in favor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and against the Illinois Central Railroad Company, as franchise taxes on the Chesapeake & Ohio Southwestern Railroad in 1897.

The case was taken to the Supreme Court on the ground, among others, that the Illinois Central should not have been held liable personally, because it was acting merely under a power of attorney in holding the road for E. H. Harriman, who should have been assessed instead of itself. The court held this argument was not sound.

In announcing the opinion of the court, Justice Hughes said that the entry of the assessment on a "jacket" instead of in a book in the office of the State officials, was sufficient to make the assessment according to "due process of law."

MAY PRINT RATE TESTIMONY.

Efforts on Foot to Have Reports of Hearings Made a Public Document.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—An effort is to be made to have the testimony heard before the Inter-State Commerce Commission in regard to the proposed increase of railroad freight rates printed as a public document. The typewritten record of these hearings, comprising the testimony of the carriers and shippers taken in New York, Chicago, and Washington, covers over 10,000 folios.

The stenographers who reported this testimony have probably had one of the best jobs of the kind ever undertaken in connection with such Government proceedings. They printed 100 copies on a duplicating apparatus, and have already sold seventy sets. The average price of a set, at the uniform charge of 12½ cents a page, is $1,400.

TO REAPPOINT COCKRELL.

Said to be Settled He Will Succeed Himself in Inter-State Commerce Board.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri is likely to be reappointed by President Taft as a member of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. This is said to be all but definitely settled.

Mr. Cockrell's term will expire on Dec. 31. When he retired from the United States Senate after thirty years, he was appointed to the commission as a Democrat by President Roosevelt in the belief that his services to the Government were too valuable to be lost. Since he has been a member of the commission he has been a participant in the most important work of that body.

SPECIAL EXERCISES FOR TIMES MEDALS

Pupils in Schools 11 and 22, Jersey City, Sing When Competition Winners Receive Awards.

HAPPY DAY FOR CHILDREN

A Recitation by Dorothy Parrott in Old Dutch Costume—The Bing Trio in Musical Selections.

Kennington L. Thompson, Principal of Public School 11, in Bergen Square, Jersey City Heights, paid to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday the compliment of giving up the whole of the afternoon session to the exercises attending the presentation of THE TIMES's medals and certificates of merit to the little scholars who won in the competition for the best composition on Bergen Village.

All the grammar classes were assembled in the well-lighted auditorium of the schoolhouse. Seven hundred boys and girls took part in an attractively arranged programme of music, song, and recitation.

School 11 was the centre of attraction during the festive week that marked the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Bergen. It is the schoolhouse that has been so often referred to as standing on a site that for all the 250 years has been consecrated to school purposes. With Nos. 12 and 17, it shares the other distinction of drawing its pupilage from the choicest residential section of the city. The children sat in a semi-circle facing the platform, eager and expectant. They were well dressed and good to look upon to the last one.

Principal Thompson had not received notice as to the hour when THE TIMES's medal bearers would reach him, and, when they arrived at the school building at 11 o'clock, they found him eager to get things in readiness for a becoming demonstration. Having fixed 1 o'clock as the hour for the ceremony, he sent little Dorothy Parrott home to put on her old Dutch costume, in which she was to appear for a recitation, and the three musical Bing children were hastened homeward for their violins and 'cello, that they might appear as an orchestral trio.

The two played so well to their sister's piano accompaniment that the pleased children in the audience clapped for more, and Miss Elsie gave them for an encore a pretty violin solo, with Miss Amelia at the piano. Little Dorothy Parrott recited, wearing her quaint old-time costume.

Miss Arreta Miller, one of the half dozen colored children in the class, rendered a piano solo so well that she was forced to give an encore.

Col. Molony, on behalf of THE TIMES, presented the twenty-two medals and the sixteen certificates the school had won. Between numbers the children sang the Thanksgiving prayer, a Dutch national anthem, and, saluting the flag, the Star-Spangled Banner. Principal Thompson commended THE TIMES for its splendid educational enterprise.

The visit to School 11 had followed one made to School 22, in the Lafayette section, at the opening morning hour. There Principal E. W. Eveleth cordially received the bearers of the medals and good words. Col. Molony presented the medals with a few introductory remarks. With Mrs. E. L. Laing at the piano, the children greeted the visitors with song.

The presentations will be made this morning at Principal Joslin's School 12, on Crescent Avenue, and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon Principal Hopkins will receive the check bearers at the High School.

NO BOY; NO AIRSHIP; NO FALL

Denver Newspapers' Stories of Boy's Awful Death a Piece of Fiction.

Special to The New York Times.

SALIDA, Col., Dec. 5.—Three Denver papers Sunday morning published a story of the death of a seventeen-year-old boy by a fall from an aeroplane. The first any one in this vicinity knew of the occurrence was when they read it in the newspapers.

The boy's name was given as Archer, and his father was supposed to be a miner at the North Fork Mine. There is no such mine in the county, and no one in Salida or vicinity ever heard of a miner named Archer. A canvass of the country near the scene of the supposed accident fails to reveal any one who heard of such an occurrence.

One of the papers this morning printed an article saying the boy was buried by his parents where he fell, and that they left immediately for California.

There is not the slightest foundation for any part of the stories.

STANDARD OIL MAN HURT.

Auditor, Struck by Tunnel Train, Just Escaped Death.

George E. Bacon, aged 70, an auditor for the Standard Oil Company, living at Shadyside Avenue, South Nyack, N. Y., was pushed off the platform at the Hudson Terminal, and just missed being killed by a train.

Mr. Bacon was on his way home and was standing near the edge of the platform. In the rush he was pushed off to the tracks below. The train had just reached the middle of the platform and the motorman, John Vantown of 309 Bloomfield Avenue, Jersey City, seeing the man fall, applied his brakes, but before the train came to a halt it had struck Mr. Bacon.

Policeman Donohue of the Greenwich Street Station summoned an ambulance from Hudson Street Hospital. Dr. Hoch took Mr. Bacon to that institution, where he was found to be suffering from two scalp wounds and general contusions of the body. His condition is not serious.

TWO YEARS IN JAIL FOR FRAUDS IN MAIL

Block, Convicted in New Jersey, Had Expected to Get Off with a Light Fine.

HE HAD PUT IN NO DEFENSE

Worked a Scheme in Connection with Lots at West Hampton, Collecting Excessive Tax Rates from Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—James P. Black of Vineland was sentenced in the United States Court here to-day to two years in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., for using the mails to defraud by the exploitation of the Imperial Development Company.

Black recently pleaded no defense and expected to get off with a comparatively light fine. When he came to Trenton to-day he did not tell his wife his destination, fearing that she would worry, and expected fully to return to Vineland this afternoon. Now Mrs. Black will have to make a hurried trip to Trenton if she is to see herhusband, for he will be taken South to-morrow.

Black's scheme was worked in connection with property at West Hampton, L. I. He collected about $1.14 on tax bills from each purchaser, but it was learned that at the prevailing rate the tax should have been less than a cent a lot. Counsel for Black declared to-day that the prisoner had made less than $1,500 illegally in this way and asked for release by the payment of $1,000 fine. This was refused by Judge Rellstab, who characterized the scheme as a nefarious swindle.

B. Harry Chandler, Vice President of the Natioanl Bank, was indicted with Black, but his acquittal was ordered by the court.

THROWN BY CAR; LOST JEWELS

Abraham Ritter's Gem-Filled Case Dropped When Car Started.

Abraham Ritter, a retired jewelry dealer, living at 161 West Eightieth Street, lost a case containing diamonds valued at about $5,000 early yesterday afternoon, when he was thrown from a surface car he was about to board at Broadway and Prince Street and rendered unconscious. He is trying to recover the diamonds through the Lost Column of THE TIMES and has offered a reward.

Mr. Ritter was carrying the case when he was thrown by the sudden starting of the car. A crowd collected, attracted by the gong of an ambulance summoned from St. Vincent's Hospital. At the hospital Mr. Ritter was revived and discovered his loss. He was severely bruised, but was allowed to go to his home, and from there made a report to Police Headquarters.

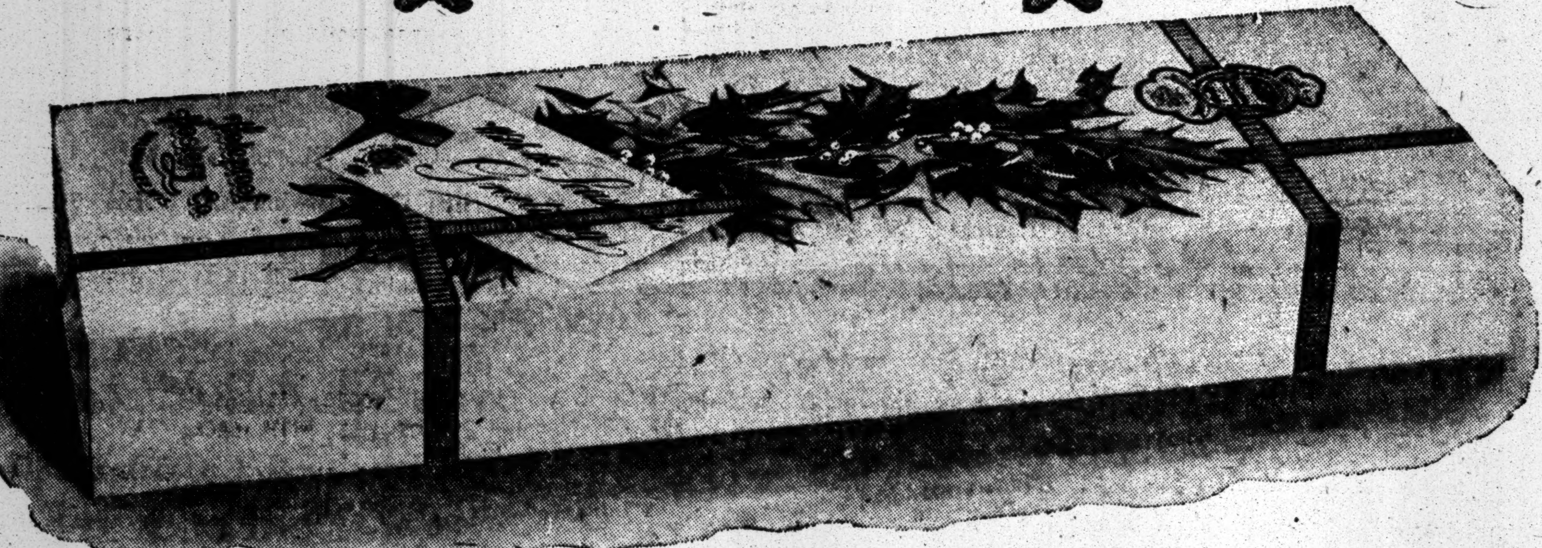
Buy This Christmas Gift Today



WHAT to give for Christmas should be decided on now and bought now. Then you'll avoid the rush and be comfortable.

Holeproof Hosiery for men, women and children not only means hosiery comfort and style for the recipient, but means freedom from holes and darned places until next July.

There's a great range of colors, four weights and four grades to choose from. Our New York dealers are showing our new Silk Sox in addition to the regular line. They guarantee three pairs of these silk sox three months and sell the three pairs for $2.00.

Don't judge "Holeproof" by other brands which are guaranteed, but are vastly different.

"Holeproof" are light, soft and attractive; not heavy, cumbersome and coarse.

We pay an average of 70c per lb. for 3-ply Egyptian and Sea Island yarn. 2-ply common yarn can be bought for 40c.

But 3-ply, like ours, is stronger and finer. The hose can be, therefore, thinner and lighter.

Cotton hose any better than "Holeproof" cannot be made today.

From every standpoint they're the very utmost that is possible now.

These are the original guaranteed hose.

38 years of hose-making experience goes into every pair we turn out.

One cannot expect such quality in the "inexperienced" brands.

One shouldn't judge "Holeproof" by them.

"Holeproof" have been sold for the past twelve years under our six months' guarantee.

All who fail to try them do themselves and "Holeproof" an injustice.

Let a dealer show you the quality and the wide assortment today. Then buy a box for each member of the family.

Even the U. S. Government Thought Prices Were Too Low On These Oriental Rugs.

The figures at which these collectors were able to buy and sell Persian Rugs of high quality were so much below the regular prices of rugs of this character, that the men that brought them to America were SUSPECTED of FRAUDULENT UNDERVALUATIONS, by the Customs authorities, and had to thoroughly establish their character, through Persian Consuls and the Missionary Board operating in Persia, before finally getting their rugs into this country AT THE LOW PRICES MADE POSSIBLE BY THEIR DIRECT BUYING IN THEIR OWN PERSIAN VILLAGES, often from people who needed immediate money, or when the death of the head of a family broke up a home, and children were willing to part cheaply with old family treasures.

Here is a letter signed by a man known throughout the church and missionary world:

THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF THE U. S. A., 156 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

October 4, 1910

My Dear Mr. Samuel:—

I have just received from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury a letter in reply to my letters regarding the seizure of your one bale of rugs, in which he writes:

"Since returning to the Department I have taken up the question of the predicament of the two Persians from Urumia over the importation of rugs. The rug which was seized and held by the Appraiser at the Port of Boston was found to be undervalued. It seems that before I received notification from you, the fact of the seizure of the rug had been reported to the United States District Attorney, as required by law. From your statement in the case it is not improbable that the District Attorney will find that there was no intentional fraud and will recommend the release of the rug on payment of the duty. If he should so report the rug will be released at New York.

"On the strength of your endorsement of them, I have asked the Attorney General to request the United States District Attorney to take into consideration their lack of knowledge of our language and the fact that you know them to be men of high character, whose blunder was a mere unintentional clerical error."

I trust that in due time you may get the bale that has been seized.

Very cordially yours, Robert E. Speer. (Signed.)

The RUGS Which Were Seized Are Here

So are the two Persians who personally collected them. Connoisseurs and housekeepers vied with each other yesterday in picking out beautiful specimens. But the purchase was large, and each rug is individual. The entire week, at least, will retain daily interest and large economies for those who desire Persian Rugs of high and INCONTESTABLE character for the beautifying of their homes. It is not possible to give an exact list of the rugs that will be here, but depend on this:

In adding "Macbeth" to their repertory Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe have performed a useful service for themselves and the public which admires them. And at the Broadway Theatre last night, where their production was first disclosed, it was apparent that their choice of this play of Shakespeare's as their newest vehicle, as well as their individual efforts in it are pretty certain to meet with a generous and gratifying popular response. Moreover, in selecting two rôles which call for histrionism of the very highest order, it is again apparent that their ambition does not flag. Better still, it is possible to record the fact that they perform very ably the difficult tasks which they have undertaken.

In many respects this production of "Macbeth" is notable. It is, to begin with, an elaborately pictorial one, and yet, as these things go, the mere desire for ornament has not been too freely gratified. No play in which it is necessary to subdivide the action into so many scenes—there are nineteen—can ever hope to create complete and sustained illusion. And this "Macbeth," like most other pictorial representations of Shakespeare, must limp somewhat on its illusory side until the action is in swing.

But when the main current of the story is in full sweep there is plenty to stimulate imagination. It would be interesting to see the play treated as a sort of pageant story, divided, perhaps, into two parts, and run through quickly. But until some one else besides the writer is convinced of the desirability of such an innovation it may be as well to take the good in Shakespeare as it comes.

As far as such handicaps of many changes of scene can be overcome they are overcome here by a method of playing which maintains almost always a correct tempo, and in which action and incident are almost always keyed in proper harmony. The cuts are judicious, though there would be little harm in even more of them. The scene preliminary to the entrance of Duncan into the castle at Inverness, for instance, might well be spared, though it is in a sense a preparation for the one to come. And we, for our part, would be quite willing to do without the dance of the witches and their white-frocked sisters, though it must be confessed that the thing is prettily done, and probably has an appeal for the average theatregoer which some of the more subtle beauty of the play will lack.

When all is said and done, however, it must be admitted that the Shakespearean play in the theatre to be appealing nowadays must be more or less satisfying on its histrionic side, for in this time of spectacle and the Hippodrome, mere lavishness of scenery is not enough to charm. And what will attract playgoers to this representation is the very admirable acting for which the pictures merely form the proper background and surroundings.

Has any actor ever completely embodied the character of Macbeth? There are records, to be sure, of this or that player who was famous in the rôle, and we ourselves, in younger days, have been greatly moved by one or another actor in the part. But consider the demands in sober afterthought. And say then whether they are not too comprehensive on the whole to be fully equaled. Macbeth the soldier might be acted on his physical side by almost any skilled mime possessing the requisite physique and vocal power.

But again there is Macbeth the dreamer and philosopher, the introspective seeker after knowledge of himself, whose will is dwarfed and whose moral cowardice is aggravated even in the moment of his triumphs. These things require a far more subtle blending of peculiar power and personality. On the one side physical dominion, on the other the variable mentality. A figure that blends the strength of the bully; on the other the weakness of the neurotic; and a weakness made the more acute since he has an active working conscience that goads. Iago is a simple rôle compared to this, and yet we know that for the actor Iago is no sinecure.

As far as the limitations of Mr. Sothern's personality and physique allow, he makes a fine showing in the rôle. He has the intelligence to comprehend its various moods, the skill to denote them ably; and the sympathy to make each incident seem for the time part of his own experience. His reading is always enforced with understanding, though a peculiar habit of emphasis, possibly the result of a reaching for greater volume of sound, grows more noticeable as time goes on and serves to nullify the full suggestion of his insight.

It may be doubted, however, if the scene preceding the murder has ever been fraught with greater meaning or made more powerful with subtle shadings than in the playing of himself and Miss Marlowe last night. Subsequently the horror of the situation was most ably suggested by them both, their speech passing from whispers to a sort of staccato utterance, which heightened the sense of danger and of mystery.

Occasionally Mr. Sothern, in moments of stress, allows himself a hoarse melodramatic laugh which somehow never seems to reach the mark intended, but it would be difficult for any actor to excel the beauty of his playing in the scene after the banquet, when completely awed he seeks the consolation of his spouse.

Certainly the most impressive moment of the play, as these actors give it, is the final moment of this scene, when Macbeth completely broken with the terrors of the ghost's visitation, his lady seeks to allay his fears, then succumbs herself and falls hysterically weeping across his knees. As Miss Marlowe acts the rôle of Lady Macbeth with a sort of underlined youthfulness—after all the best suited to her temperament, personality, and general experience—this moment is touched with tender pity.

It would be difficult for any sensitive person to see it and not be moved. It is not possible by any process of reasoning to approve the actress's initial entrance prior to the reading of Macbeth's letter written after his first interview with the three weird sisters. Miss Marlowe literally trips on to the scene. It may set the keynote of her intentions in the part, but it is too lacking in dignity to be properly preparatory for the subsequent development.

Elsewhere Miss Marlowe's performance is both interesting and convincing along the lines of its apparent intent, which we take it to mean [illegible] more feminine [illegible] actress has [illegible] of the grand [illegible] in which she steels Macbeth to his purpose. As a result his line "bring forth men children only" seems a trifle overwrought. But Miss Marlowe is consistent. One gets the suggestion of comparative youthfulness and womanliness to the very end, the sleep-walking scene having its own quality of plaintive pathos to take firm hold upon the sensibilities.

Of the other players Mr. Frederick Lewis's Macduff is excellently done, the scene of lamentation over the news of death from home being especially sincere and moving as he acts it. Mr. Sydney Mather is a capable Banquo, and for the most part the minor figures were well in the picture. As Malcolm, however, Mr. Eric Blind's speech was unintelligible a large part of the time. Albert Howson, Malcolm Bradley, and Leonore Chippendale made the weird sisters very grim, indeed, and the scene of the cauldron was capitally effected. So, too, was the appearance of Banquo's ghost, who, if he must appear, ought to be just such a green and moldy-looking creature. One might ask, however, whether it would not be just as consistent to exhibit a dagger hanging by a wire?

THE BARRERE ENSEMBLE.

A Performance of Chamber Music for Wind Instruments at Belasco Theatre.

Mr. Georges Barrère is undertaking again the series of concerts he began last season devoted to chamber music for wind instruments—music that is comparatively little known and little cultivated in this country, though there is a lierature of such music to which composers of the classical and modern schools have contributed. He has associated with him nine other wind instrument players, and the first concert of what is called the Barrère Ensemble was given yesterday in the Belasco Theatre before an audience of very considerable numbers, that showed sympathetic appreciation of what was set before it.

The programme was not quite so substantial as those Mr. Barrère gave last season; but the two principal numbers upon it were of more than ordinary interest to the fine taste and discrimination of his audience—they were Raff's sinfonietta, Op. 188, for flutes, oboes, clarionets, horns, and bassoons, (two of each instrument,) and a "pastiche"—a composition imitated from another style—by Reynaldo Hahn, entitled "Le Bal de Beatrice d'Este," for piano, two harps, flutes, clarionets and horns, an oboe and a trumpet, kettledrums and cymbals.

Raff's sinfonietta is not likely to escape the mists that have been gradually enveloping most of his music in recent years, even his two once-popular orchestral symphonies; but it was worth rescuing it for a hearing at least once.

It is agreeable, straightforward music, well made and well balanced, and the timbres of the wind instruments are skillfully employed with variety and contrast to escape as far as may be the monotony that almost inevitably inheres in their tone color, different as they are from each other. Reynaldo Hahn's composition is a suite of seven short movements purporting to be in the style of the sixteenth century, and suggesting the picturesque incidents of a Court ball, beginning with the entrance of Ludovic Sporza, called "The Moor," and after several dances and a tableau entitled "Léda et l'Oiseau," ending with a "salute for the Duke of Milan."

The archaic style is wrought into them skillfully—if the pieces are really based on music of the period to which they are supposed to belong, their character has been mollified for modern ears—and there are vivacity, grace, and individual quality in them, as well as a light and transparent employment of the resources of the little orchestra. It is most agreeable music.

Between these came a "Valse Mélencolique" by the Countess de Grandval, originally a piece of ballet music from an opera, and two "Esquisses Antiques" by D. E. Ingelbrecht, both for flute and harp, tenuous music, faintly suggestive, of which the last two show the more definiteness of outline. Josef Holbrooke, a young English composer, whose music has been much talked about in England and scarcely played in this country, if at all, is the composer of a "Miniature Characteristic Suite" that was also on the programme. Its five movements showed very little that was "characteristic," very little that could charm, or that could answer to the fanciful titles the composer has put to them.

The playing of the organization was in most of these compositions excellent; it was finished, in true intonation, and generally, if not always, delicate and transparent. Such an ensemble is not easy to attain.

Philharmonic Orchestra in Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Dec. 5.—The series of visiting orchestra concerts under the auspices of the Pittsburg Orchestra Association was inaugurated to-night with a brilliant performance of the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York under the conductorship of Gustav Mahler, the first appearance in Pittsburg of this, the oldest orchestra in America. Soldiers' Memorial Hall was crowded, and the audience manifested keen interest in the Bach suites, with Mr. Mahler playing the harpsichord, while conducting the orchestra. An admirable performance was given of the Beethoven pastoral symphony.

Baskets of roses, bouquets, applause and bravos that rang to the Globe Theatre's ceiling greeted Sarah Bernhardt in Rostand's "L'Aiglon" last night. The young Duc de Reichstadt's first speech was delayed more than a minute while the actress bowed and bowed again her thanks for her first welcome here after five years, and the curtain at the end of the third act rose again fourteen times before the audience became quiet and the auditorium lights were turned on.

It was hardly a first-night audience. Very few of the "regulars" were to be seen. Most of the people understood French, and knew enough to laugh at the right places and to applaud when the scene warranted it, and they were prodigal in both laughter and applause. The heroic speeches of the Eaglet feeling his father's blood in his veins, the pathetic passages where he recognizes his physical weakness, the snappy philosophy of old Flambeau, all had their recognition.

As for Bernhardt, adjectives have been exhausted for many years in describing her. Last night there was no sign of feebleness in her acting, no indication of age in her voice. She was as young to her audience as she was five years ago and longer. There was the same quality of intonation, the same flexibility of voice, the same narrowed-eyed play of feature that one has been accustomed to find in her.

During the acts she walked with the sprightliness of the youth she was supposed to represent, and if she leaned on the shoulder of Flambeau or of Metternich when the applause demanded the raising of the curtain, it seemed to be due to affection and a desire that they share in her reception and not from feebleness. At the end of the third act, when she waved her arms to the cheering audience and kissed her hands to their bravos, she had no shoulder to lean upon and seemed to need none.

In the earlier acts, when the Eaglet is a vacillating boy, uncertain even as to his right to be more than the Duke de Reichstadt, she made the figure pathetic with an inner touch of craftiness. Later, aroused by her friends, and by the faithful Flambeau, there was a crescendo in her expression that rose to one of its highest points in the scene with Metternich.

Here, when the ambitious youth is made to look at his own weak form in the glass, and to realize the impossibility of his ambitions, her voice reached its greatest pitch and fullest volume. It was to the last, despairing cry in the scene: "Père, au secours!" that the audience found its reason for enthusiasm. The Wagram scene, too, brought much applause, and tested the powers of the actress, who seems to be beyond test.

Mme. Bernhardt's company came in for much praise, too. The principal characters received their share of the applause, and their work, as individuals and as parts of the "picture," found recognition. M. Decoeur was the Flambeau, the part played by Coquelin when he and Bernhardt made a joint tour of this country some years ago; Metternich was played by M. Maxudian; Marie Louise, mother of the Duke, by Mme. Boulanger; the Archduchess by Mme. Desroches, and the Emperor by M. Favieres.

To-night the play will be "Le Procès de Jeanne d'Arc," presented for the first time in New York. The répertoire for the rest of this week will be as was announced originally, except that on Thursday afternoon Mme. Bernhardt will appear in "La Samarataine."

SHERLOCK HOLMES RETURNS

William Gillette Again Acts Detective with Thrills of Years Ago.

SHERLOCK HOLMES, a play, in four acts, by William Gillette and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Empire Theatre.

Sherlock Holmes	William Gillette
Dr. Watson	Clifford Bruce
John Forman	A. Romaine Callender
Sir Edward Leighton	Frank Andrews
Count Von Stahlburg	Gerald Lane
Professor Moriarty	John Miltern
James Larrabee	William Riley Hatch
Sidney Prince	Albert Parker
Alfred Bassick	Stewart Robbins
Jim Craigin	Griffith Evans
Thomas Leary	W. S. David
"Lightfoot" McTague	H. A. Morey
John	Frederick Wallace
Billy	John F. Hines
Parsons	Edward Lindsley
Alice Faulkner	Louise Rutter
Mrs. Faulkner	Mary Campbell
Madge Larrabee	Marion Abbott
Therese	Margaret Greene
Mrs. Smeedley	Nellie Robinson

Sherlock Holmes in the person of William Gillette returned to town last night for a week's stay at the Empire Theatre, where he made his last appearance here. He came back with all the thrills and all the heart-stopping suspense of years ago. He left his lighted cigar in the cranny in the "gas chamber" and he overcame the redoubtable Moriarty just as he did when theatregoers were younger, and with just as much effect upon their emotions.

Mr. Gillette's association with the rôle of Conan Doyle's detective has been so long and so thorough that he and Sherlock Holmes have come to seem identical personalities. Any other Holmes appears to be a deceiver, or completely disguised. Last night's audience sat back in their seats and mentally took up the early volumes of Conan Doyle's stories that they had read before the original first night of the play at the Garrick Theatre almost half a decade ago, and followed the adventuresome cocaine victim through all of his numerous difficulties.

Last night there was a new Dr. Watson, a new Moriarty, and a new heroine. But Holmes was the same, and the people were satisfied. The acting of the cast was generally adequate, and there was applause for most of the players. Clifford Bruce was the Doctor last night—Bruce McRea had the rôle years ago—and John Miltern played Moriarty. William Ryley Hatch was the Larrabee, and Louise Rutter the plaintive heroine, Alice Faulkner, while John F. Hines played the faithful Billy.

"Mother" at Circle, with New Mother.

Jules Eckert Goodman's domestic drama, "Mother," that has been running this Fall at the Hackett Theatre, moved to the Circle last night to continue its run, and a new and unannounced Mother appeared. It was Jane Corcoran, who has been appearing in the rôle of the show girl in the play, and whom William A. Brady chose to take Emma Dunn's place in the play. Agnes De Lane took Miss Corcoran's place as the show girl. Souvenirs in the form of booklets of the play and satin programmes were distributed in recognition of the one hundredth performance.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES

At the Manhattan Opera House the bill was headed by Gus Edwards's "Song Revue," and other features were "A Night in the Slums," Laddie Cliff, the Belleclaire Brothers, Merton and Moore, Haines and Vidocq, Harrigan, Yvette, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Darrow, and the Du Ball Trio.

Gertrude Hoffman began a second week at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, offering two new features in her review. Other entertainers were Charlotte Parry and company, Raymond and Caverly, Kelly and Kent, Deiro, the Kremka Brothers, and Sharkey, Geisler, and Lewis.

The bill at the Alhambra Theatre was headed by "The Man from the Sea," and among the other acts were Lester, the "Pianophiend Minstrels," Eddie Leonard and Mabel Russell, the Gaasch Sisters, Beatrice Ingram and company, Bixley and Fink, and the Juggling Burkes.

The programme at the Bronx Theatre included Baldini and Kosloff, Lillian Shaw, Edwin Holt and company, Bedini and Arthur, Marshall Montgomery, Robledillo, and Kessler and Lee.

Clarice Mayne headed the bill at the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, and the rest of the programme included Julius Steger and company, Kalmar and Brown, Ben Welch, the Lorch Family, "Motoring," Inge and Farrell, the Three Lyres, and Rayno's dogs.

"The Bachelor Belles," with Genee as the principal feature, began a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House last night.

Max Rogers and C. William Dill, in "The Summer Widowers," made their first local appearance as co-stars at the West End Theatre last night, Mr. Rogers appearing in the role originated by Lew Fields.

Kyrle Bellew, in "Raffles," is the week's attraction at the City Theatre.

At the Academy of Music the week's bill is "The Ensign," presented by the full strength of the stock company.

The Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, has John Barrymore in "The Fortune Hunter," as the attraction of the week.

"The Vanity Fair" company is the attraction at the Columbia Theatre this week, offering a two-act burlesque. A feature of the performance is Ritchie's "A Night in a London Music Hall." The principal members of the company are Billy Ritchie, Dick McAllister, Winifred Francis, Rena La Conver, and Dorcas Huxley.

The attraction at the Olympic is "The Queens of the Jardin de Paris," at the Metropolis the "Fads and Follies" company, at Hurtig & Seamon's Music Hall "The Golden Crook," and at the Murray Hill "The Queen of Bohemia."

NETHERSOLE NOT A SIMPLE MAGDALENE

Actress Gives an Intensely Theatrical Performance of Character in Maeterlinck's New Play.

NO REPOSE IN HER ART

First Representation of This Play on Any Stage at New Theatre.

MARY MAGDALENE, a drama in three acts, by Maurice Maeterlinck. The New Theatre.

Lucius Verus	Edward Mackay
Annoeus Silanus	Arthur Forrest
Appius	Charles B. Hanford
Lazarus	Wilfred Roger
Nicodemus	Reginald Barker
Joseph of Arimathaea	Newman Burr
Martha	Beatrice Morela
Mary Magdalene	Olga Nethersole

Maurice Maeterlinck's latest play, "Mary Magdalene," received what is said to have been its first performance on any stage last night at The New Theatre, via an exceedingly unpoetical translation, by a special company headed by Miss Olga Nethersole. That a drama by the Belgian poet should receive its initial performance here, even if not in the original form, is a matter deserving of comment.

However, Maeterlinck's plays seldom are presented in Paris until after they have journeyed forth into the world. "The Blue Bird," which has seen the light in Russia, London, and New York, has not yet been produced there, and even "Monna Vanna" and "Pelléas et Mélisande" would not be remembered in Paris—they have received so few performances there—were it not for the fact that they have been made into lyric dramas by Leroux and Debussy.

The fact is that the Parisians have never been sympathetic with this playwright, and he caring little for stage performances of his works has sent them forth in book form.

This latest example has not yet been published in French. The English translation by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos, however, has been procurable for some time.

It contains a preface in which the author thanks Paul Heyse, the writer of "Mary of Magdala," for two of his situations, that at the end of the first act, where Christ intervenes, stopping the crowd raging against Mary with the words: "He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone," and in the third the dilemma in which the Mary finds herself of saving or destroying Christ, according as she consents or refuses to give herself to a Roman.

Maeterlinck says that he wrote to Heyse asking permission to use these incidents, which was indignantly refused. However, since the first of them occurs in the Bible and the second is a dramatic situation which has been used by other playwrights, the Belgian poet used them sans consent.

It must be confessed that they seem to be the strong points of his play. The second of them is an incident which Maeterlinck himself is very fond of. He has used it in "Joyzelle" and he wrote an inverted version of it in "Monna Vanna." De Maupassant, it may be remembered, has had something to say about the question in his superb "Boule de Suif," in which the woman who gave herself to save others reaps nothing but chagrin and shame.

The play—at least in its English version—seems to lack the dramatic values of Rostand's treatment of a similar theme, "La Samaritaine," and that play is only given in Paris during Holy Week. A play dealing with such a subject, it would seem, is very nearly consecrated by the author at its inception, to a very special sort of existence. In Heyse's play, and in Maeterlinck's, the leading character of Christ never appears on the stage. Rastand, on the other hand, brings the Saviour into the action of his piece.

Whatever the play may be, its force would gain ten times through simple treatment, and that it never had last evening. The stage direction depended, of course, upon the perambulations of Miss Nethersole, and there was no part of the stage which she left untouched during the course of an act. Her hands were constantly busy, now held high in the air with tense fingers, now pressed against her shoulders with fingers relaxed. Occasionally they paused, but in such queer attitudes that they at once caught the eye and kept it from any other part of the stage. There seeems to be no such thing as repose in this actress's dictionary of her art.

Her treatment of the lines was even more maddening. She contrived to give the simplest speeches something which robbed them of all their simplicity. What became all the more irritating was the fact that as the play progressed and the Magdalene repented she became less and less simple. One was irresistibly reminded of the way the word Magdalene is pronounced at Oxford.

As Miss Nethersole's part dominated the scene at all times, it is impossible to accurately judge what effect the acting of the other actors might have had under different circumstances. Mr. Forrest and Mr. Hanford seemed to be the best of the cast.

As for the voice which uttered the speeches of Christ—all of which, by the way, occur in the Bible—it is only necessary to quote the stage directions: "An incomparable silence, in which it seems as though the birds and the leaves of the trees and the very air take part, falls, and in this silence there rises, absolute sovereign of space and the hour, a wonderful voice, soft and all-powerful, intoxicated with ardor, light, and love, distant, and yet near to every heart and present to every soul," and to point out that they were not suggested.

The incidental music hindered the action of the play. An intolerable quantity of it preceded each act.

NEW ACTS IN VAUDEVILLE.

Homer Miles in "On a Side Street"—Count de Beaufort and Dog.

At the Colonial Theatre yesterday afternoon Homer Miles made his first local appearance in a one-act sketch called "On a Side Street." Mr. Miles, who is the author of the piece as well as the principal actor, played the rôle of a good-natured janitor who befriends a young Southern couple and protects them against the threats of a too zealous detective. The girl of the play has run away to New York to escape her fiancé, whom people have said she is about to marry for his money. The fiancé follows her, and his discovery of her place of residence leads a detective to believe that he has unearthed a "white slave" case. The janitor, Mr. Clancey, learns the story of the young folks and brings them together, at the cost of knocking down the detective and taking his revolver away from him.

Others who appeared at the Colonial were William H. Thompson and company, Nat M. Wills, Ray Cox, Gene Greene, the Ellis-Nowlan company, and Cooper and Robinson.

The Count de Beaufort, whose domestic difficulties in Chicago attracted some attention recently, made his first New York appearance in vaudeville at the American Music Hall yesterday afternoon. He sang some songs, told some stories, and was accompanied by his pet dog. A one-act version of Jesse Lynch Williams's newspaper tale, "The Stolen Story," was a feature of the programme. This was presented some years ago as a three-act play. In the sketch the principal rôle of the absent-minded star reporter was taken by George Stuart Christie, the city editor was played by Robert Wayne, his assistant by Walter Thomas, and the villainess woman reporter by Eileen Errol.

The rest of the bill includes Zelaya, Cissie Curlette, "L'Amour de l'Apache," Monroe and Mack, La Freya, Juliet, the O'Connor sisters, "The Wow-Wows," "The Hold-Up," and Wish Wynne.

Mlle. Dazie, the dancer, appeared at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday in a new pantomime number called "La Tragedie d'un Mardi Gras," in which she was assisted by a company of six. Among the other acts were pictures of th eNelson-Moran fight, "A Night in a Turkish Bath," Bert Levy, Yvette, Al Von Tilzer and company, and Barry and Wolford.

Billie Burke Appears in "Suzanne."

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 5.—"Suzanne," a new comedy by Frantz Fonson and Fernand Wicheler, adapted into English by C. Haddon Chambers, was presented at the Star Theatre here to-night with Billie Burke in the star rôle. The comedy is in three acts, and the story is about the daughter of a bottled beer dealer in Brussels, who helps about the establishment and spends much of her time as peacemaker between her father and mother. She is engaged to marry the son of a neighbor, but when a young Parisian comes into the establishment to learn the business, she begins to think more of him than her fiancé. She finds she does, especially when the neighbor's son is discovered to have a "friend" and a pretty little son, and she persuades her parents to accept the Parisian as a son-in-law.

"Sweet Sixteen" on the Stage.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 5.—The new musical play, "Sweet Sixteen," by Victor Herbert and George V. Hobart received its first presentation on any stage at the Court Street Theatre to-night. Victor Herbert directed the orchestra, composed of soloists from the New York Symphony Orchestra. At the close of the first part repeated curtain calls brought the authors before the footlights, and Victor Herbert spoke briefly. The principals in the play include Eugene Cowles, Harriet Standon, Florence Nash, Frances Gordon, Florence Gerald, Scott Walsh, and Frank Doane. There is a well-trained chorus and effective scenic equipment and costuming.

DREXEL APOLOGIZES; QUITS AERO CLUB

Avoids Expulsion by Withdrawing His Criticism of the Belmont Park Aviation Meeting.

BUT DEFENDS HIS MOTIVES

Thought It His Duty to Speak for the Foreign Aviators—Vice President McCoy Also Resigns.

The trouble between J. Armstrong Drexel and the Aero Club of America was satisfactorily adjusted yesterday, when Mr. Drexel offered an explanation and apology for his conduct during the Belmont Park international meet, and was allowed to resign from the club.

The trouble between Mr. Drexel and the Aero Club was the most important business transacted at the special meeting yesterday of the Board of Directors, at which Allan A. Ryan presided and the following Directors were present: Cortlandt F. Bishop, Lyttleton Fox, Alan R. Hawley, William W. Miller, Major Samuel Reber, Charles Jerome Edwards, Dave Hennen Morris, James A. Blair, Jr., Col. Jerome H. Joyce, Dr. Albert Zahn, and Lawrence L. Gillespie.

In a letter to the English press Mr. Drexel accused the Belmont Park Aviation Committee of "startling unfairness" and said:

> The plain fact is that the committee, seeing a chance of winning the prize for an American, went back on their word, and by closing the contest and the official meeting stopped two men, Messrs. de Lesseps and Grahame-White, from trying again, and other fliers from even competing.
>
> My disgust at this betrayal is more almost than I can express. What the feelings of the Englishmen and Frenchmen are could they be induced to speak their mind, I dare hardly imagine. Anyhow, it is my intention to resign immediately from the Aero Club of America, and I hope all American sportsmen will follow my example.

Henry P. Hooker of New York presented Mr. Drexel's letter of explanation and apology, which was as follows:

> New York, Dec. 4, 1910.
>
> To the Aero Club of America and the Aviation Committee of the International Aviation Tournament, New York City:
>
> Gentlemen: In view of the misunderstandings which have occurred and the misstatements which have appeared in regard to the protest which I made on October 31, 1910, I am writing to you to define my true position in regard to that protest, and to make clear the motives which prompted my action.
>
> As the only American contestant resident in Europe, the foreign aviators looked to me during the meet at Belmont Park to represent their grievances, and, indeed, I felt responsible to them and to myself that nothing should occur which would lay American sportsmanship open to criticism. My plain duty was to prevent this at any cost, no matter how unpleasant to myself. In the performance of this duty as I saw it I necessarily took the initiative in representing the foreign aviators through an earnest desire to render impossible any just foreign criticism of us or of our meet.
>
> Certain facts have just been brought to my attention which were unknown to me when I filed my protest of Oct. 31. It appears that in the entry blanks signed by myself and the other aviators it was stated that the meet should end on Sunday, Oct. 30, 1910, and that in the original rules governing the prizes it was stated that the contests for totalizations of distance and duration should be open until the end of the meet; furthermore, I have just been informed that on Sunday, the 30th, two aviators insisted that the committee should construe the meet as officially closed on Sunday night, in view of the language set out above governing the distribution of prizes, and in view of the language on the entry blanks, and it was upon their insistence and upon the language of the contracts that the committee made its decision and held that the meet closed on Sunday night. On these facts which have just come to my knowledge I appreciate that according to the terms of the contracts referred to above the committee was bound to hold that the meet closed officially on Sunday night, and consequently I withdraw any aspersions cast by me on the motives of the committee.
>
> As to the Statue of Liberty, the original conditions were that a continuous flight of one hour was necessary as a qualification; furthermore, that it was to be contested for on Thursday, the start to be made before a certain hour. Both of these conditions having been abrogated by bulletins of the committee stating that the statue race would be open until the end of the meeting, (thus using the same phraseology in respect to the fixing of the time for the ending of the contest as had been used in respect to the contests for totalizations of distance and duration above mentioned,) and as I knew that prizes had been offered for Monday and tickets sold for that day, I felt and the other aviators felt that the original printed conditions no longer held as to this event. As the committee did not contradict this impression until called upon to adjudicate the matter, these facts led to a most unfortunate misunderstanding between the aviators and the committee, and impelled me to act as I did. Yours truly,
>
> J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL.

With the acceptance of Mr. Drexel's resignation it was also announced that J. C. McCoy had resigned as the First Vice President of the club. While no explanation of Mr. McCoy's action was offered it is understood that inability to give the proper amount of time and attention to the details of the office is the sole cause for the resignation. No action was taken to elect a successor to Mr. McCoy.

It was stated after the meeting that according to George S. Bliss, chief of the United States Weather Bureau in Philadelphia, Mr. Drexel's altitude in his attempt to create a new world's record at the Philadelphia Point Breeze Park was 9,897 feet.

The report will be submitted to the Contest Committee of the National Council for approval, with a view to having it accepted as a National or American record. Owing to a recent ruling of the International Aeronautical Federation, which makes it necessary for an aviator to fly 100 meters higher than the existing altitude record before establishing a world's record, Mr. Drexel will not be credited with a new world's altitude record, but the federation will be asked to accept the figures as an American record.

The best previous record was 9,714 feet, made by Ralph Johnstone at the Belmont Park meeting. Mr. Drexel contended that he reached an altitude of 9,970 feet.

The important committees elected yesterday were:

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—The President, ex officio; the First Vice President, the Treasurer, William W. Miller, Col. Samuel Reber, U. S. A.; Col. Jerome H. Joyce, James A. Blair, Jr.

CONTEST COMMITTEE—Col. Samuel Reber, U. S. A.; W. Redmond Cross, Dr. J. Wesley Bovee, Henry H. Clayton, with two other members to be added by the committee.

HOUSE COMMITTEE—Robert A. C. Smith, Fred S. Battershall, Ira Barrows, Lawrence L. Gillespie, J. Laurens Van Alen.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE—Lawrence L. Gillespie, J. Parke Channing, George F. Baker, Jr., Charles E. Knoblaugh, Nicholas F. Brady.

LAW COMMITTEE—Lyttleton Fox, William W. Miller, Philip T. Dodge, (two others to be appointed.)

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS—Cortlandt F. Bishop, Frank S. Lahm, Edward W. Mix, Hart O. Berg, Dave H. Morris.

COMMITTEE ON AVIATION GROUNDS—A. Holland Forbes, Augustus Post, Harry S. Harkness, G. F. Campbell Wood, Philip W. Wilcox.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEE—John F. O'Rourke, S. Marsh Yound, Hugh L. Willoughby, Edgar Meyer, Clifford E. Dunn.

COMMITTEE ON SPHERICAL BALLOONS—Alan R. Hawley, J. C. McCoy, A. Holland Forbes, Luke J. Minehan, James W. Bemis.

COMMITTEE ON DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS—Lieut. Frank P. Lahm, U. S. A.; Charles J. Glidden, Augustus Post, A. G. Batchelder, Cortlandt F. Bishop.

COMMITTEE ON AVIATION—Charles M. Manly, Charles A Munn, Robert J. Collier, Charles J. Bell, H. La V. Twining.

The representatives of the Aero Club to the National Council will be Dave Hennen Morris and William W. Miller, with James A. Blair, Jr., and Charles J. Edwards as alternates.

ACTOR CONFESSES TO THEFT.

Stole $70 While Working as a Bartender, He Tells Police Here.

Flashily dressed, William J. McBride, 24 years old, of 2,348 Huntington Street, Kensington, Penn., walked into the Oak Street Police Station last night and asked for the "High Mucky-muck." Lieut. John Collins, who was on the desk, asked what the trouble was.

"Well," said McBride, according to the police, "I am an actor, a bartender, and a thief. I am an actor by profession. Friday last I broke into the bartending business, and Saturday I found myself a thief."

McBride, the police say, said he was out of work and penniless when he went into the saloon of a friend, J. T. Butterfield of 2,661 East Cumberland Street, Philadelphia, last Friday. Butterfield put him to work. On Friday night Actors' Union Local 56 had an entertainment in the saloon. McBride, for old time's sake, got drunk, and feeling that he must have some money, took $70 from the till, so he is said to have confessed. The next thing he knew he woke up in another saloon on Saturday.

He came over to New York and fell in with bad company, and then his conscience smote him.

"I am a fool to do this," McBride is alleged to have said to Lieut. Collins. "I am well dressed and bear a good reputation, and I believe I could get away with it. Besides, I have a wife and baby in Philadelphia."

McBride was locked up on the strength of his own statements, and the Philadelphia authorities were notified.

MAY BE LEWIS'S BODY.

Remains of Man Buried in Foster, R. I., to be Exhumed for Identification.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 5.—The body of William Lewis, who lived in Foster, R. I., for four years until he met his death from a fall from a wagon a month ago, was ordered exhumed to-day in an effort to identify him as the William Lewis who is sought by the New York police for the murder of Albert C. Callier, an artist. Miss Ellen Enright, a nurse, who was to have married the New York Lewis, has been asked to come to Foster to view the body. The photograph sent out by the New York police has been identified by acquaintances as that of the Lewis buried here.

Assistant District Attorney Rubin said yesterday he had seen the dispatch from Providence telling of the proposed exhumation of Lewis's body. He admitted that in a general way the description of the body corresponded with that of Lewis, who is missing from here, but that some of the details did not coincide. The police have determined definitely that the suspected Lewis worse false teeth. If the body of the Lewis who is buried in Foster is found to have natural teeth, as has been reported, it cannot be that of the suspect. The police further believe that on leaving New York the Lewis they are seeking took an assumed name.

BIG KAISER WILHELM DROPS SCREW AT SEA

German Steamer Coming Slowly Into Port and Will Be More Than a Day Late.

MAKING 15 KNOTS AN HOUR

Only Damage to the Liner Is Loss of Propeller—Passengers Reported by Wireless to be All Well.

The North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, incoming from Bremen, is disabled at sea by the loss of a propeller. She is coming slowly into port under one screw, and instead of arriving here this afternoon, as was expected, will probably not reach her Hoboken pier until late on Wednesday. News of the accident came to the officers of the line here yesterday in a wireless message from Capt. Polack, sent by way of Halifax. This is the message:

"At 2:15 P. M. to-day lost port propeller. Working starboard engine. Making 15 knots an hour. No other damage. Propeller apparently dropped off. Passengers all well. Expect to dock Wednesday afternoon."

The message, which is signed by Capt. Polack, does not give the locality where the accident happened. A wireless message received from the steamer at 6:45 A. M. yesterday gave her position then as 850 miles east of Sandy Hook.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has had an active career. She left here on Oct. 22, 1907, and when off Newfoundland on the 25th she lost her rudder. Capt. Polack continued his voyage and brought his vessel in safety to Bremen, using his propellers to steer with. For this act of seamanship he was decorated by the German Emperor. In 1906 the steamer collided in Cherbourg harbor with the Royal Mail liner Orinoco. Capt. Cuppers, in charge at that time, was exonerated. It was on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse in August that the attempt was made on the life of Mayor Gaynor.

On this trip the vessel is bringing about 200 cabin and 650 steerage passengers. Among those of prominence on board are Col. John Jacob Astor and his son Vincent; Mrs. Dippel, wife of the director of the Chicago Opera House; Congressman Henry S. Boutell of Illinois, Mrs. Boutell, Lieut. and Mrs. R. D. Black, Prof. and Mrs. Engelbrecht Humperding, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Eager, Comte Jean de Kergolay, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Levy.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse left Bremen on Nov. 29 and Cherbourg and Bremen the following day for New York.

Protest at Socialist Editor's Sentence.

A resolution protesting against the recent sentence of six months at hard labor and a fine of $1,500, imposed upon Fred D. Warren, editor of The Appeal to Reason, for offering a reward for the kidnapping of ex-Gov. Taylor of Kentucky and his deliverance to the authorities of the State of Kentucky while he was under indictment for the killing of ex-Gov. Goebel, were passed at the last meeting of Branch 5, New York Local, of the Socialist Party.

SHIPWRECKED SAILORS GET IN

Schooner Bowen Was Run Down After Battling Five Days with Storm.

The steamship Bermudian, in yesterday from Bermuda, brought six members of the crew of the four-masted schooner William E. Bowen, Jr., which was run down on Nov. 30 by the British steamship Rokeby.

Josiah Boyes, second mate of the schooner, said that on the 25th she was caught in a strong northwest gale which drove her off her course. For five days she battled with the gale. Her sails were blown away, and the seas, which ran very high, were continually pounding her. About daybreak of the fifth day the hull of the steamer shot out of the mist, and the bow of the Rokeby went crashing into the side of the schooner.

Capt. H. C. Hinckley, in command of the schooner, had his wife with him, and she was as calm as ony one on board. Alexander Robinson, the one-legged negro cook, had taken off his wooden leg for comfort. As soon as the vessels came together he hopped from the galley to the Captain's cabin to see whether Mrs. Hinckley was all right. She assured him she was. He than hopped about the deck doing a share of the work until the boat from the Rokeby came alongside. Then he went into his cabin and strapped on his wooden leg preparatory to being rescued.

The work of transferring the crew was a difficult task in the heavy sea. It took time and skillful handling to bring the steamer's small boat alongside the fast filling schooner. The crew was rescued without accident.

It was near Bermuda that the accident happened. The Rokeby put in there with the Bowen's crew. Capt. Hinckley, his wife, and the first mate remained in Bermuda. The men arriving yesterday are: Josiah Boyes, second mate of the schooner; Oscar Schwenzer, Harry Anderson, Frank Anderson, "Tony" Soterger, and Alexander Robinson, the cook.

SCHOOLBOY STRIKE FIZZLES.

Polish Mothers Attended to All the Trouble There Was in Jersey City.

The so-called strike of the schoolboys of Public School 21, in Jersey City, died an easy death yesterday, and the opening of the new public school at Coles and Seventh Streets, the storm centre, was quiet and orderly.

"The only trouble," said a policeman, "was when a few little Polish boys played 'hookey.' Their parents gave them the slipper treatment, and now all is well. If there is any strike around here, this precinct certainly has no knowledge of it."

TWO BURGLARS HURL POLICEMAN OFF AUTO

Trying to Arrest Them in Tarrytown While they Were Escaping in a Machine.

HAD TRIED TO ROB A CHURCH

Policeman Martin Had Jumped on Running Board of the Car, but Was Felled by a Blow on the Jaw.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Policeman Edward Martin was badly hurt at 2 o'clock this morning when he was knocked off the running-board of an automobile while trying to arrest two burglars who were making a desperate effort to escape in their car after an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Highland Garage in Church Street.

Martin was patrolling his beat in South Broadway when he noticed a large red touring car on the opposite side of the street with only one lamp lighted. On investigation he found it empty, so he crossed the street to await developments. He had just reached the sidewalk when two men came running out of Church Street and made a dash for the car. Martin jumped on the running board and told th emen to drive to headquarters.

One of the men then struck Martin on the jaw and he dropped like a log, and the driver putting on full speed dashed away. Martin fell heavily on the hard pavement and was rendered partly unconscious. His wrist was sprained, his hip injured and his uniform torn.

He made his way back to headquarters and an alarm was immediately sent out for the two men, but they were not apprehended.

Chief of Police William J. Bowles found that the men had broken open a window of the garage and had collected a number of new tires, tubes and other accessories, but were surprised at their work by the night watchman.

Last year burglars in a large red touring car operated in the county, and the police believe that the same gang is at work again.

PRESBYTERIAN UNION DINES.

Dr. Parkhurst and Seth Low Speak at Annual Gathering.

"The Edinburgh Conference, Its Influence on Nations, Churches, and Missionary Bodies," was the theme of discussion at the annual dinner of the Presbyterian Union of New York at the Plaza Hotel last night. About 200 members, their wives, daughters, and invited guests were present.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst opened the speaking with an invocation. Then Seth Low made an address on "The Conference: Its International Significance." He was followed by the Rev. Dr. George Alexander, on "The Conference: Its Religious Significance." The Rev. Dr. Francis Brown then pronounced the benediction.

During the evening Mrs. William R. Moody sang a solo, and while the dinner was in progress music was furnished by Mrs. Robinson, the harpist of the Madison Square Church, assisted by Miss Stanford, violinist, and Miss Vojacek, pianist.

The President of the union, Fleming H. Revell, presided. Sitting on the Dais were the first two Presidents of the Union, Warner Van Norden and Scott Foster, and the last two Presidents, William E. Stiger and Frederick A. Booth.

SOME MAGISTRATES WEAK.

But Judge Kempner Says These Are Being Eliminated.

Chief Magistrate Otto Kempner of Brooklyn says that there are a few "weak specimens" among the police Magistrates. He accompanied Charles J. Dodd, who succeeds Magistrate Higginbotham, to City Hall yesterday to be sworn in, and took the occasion to express himself rather freely on his opinion of the men on the police bench.

"The appointment of Judge Dodd is an excellent one," said he. "Mayor Gaynor has rendered an inestimable service to the city by placing this clean-cut lawyer and high type of citizen on the Magistrates' bench.

"Owing to the notoriety that one or two Magistrates have brought upon themselves, all the Magistrates of the Second Division have unjustly fallen into disrepute. This odium is not deserved, because the majority of them are men of true merit and are rendering excellent judicial service. Of course there is still a sprinkling of weak and unworthy specimens in the Board of Magistrates, but fortunately they are being weeded out, and in due time the city will be rid of their presence in the criminal courts."

Democratic Club Elects Governors.

The National Democratic Club at a meeting held last night at the club house, 617 Fifth Avenue, elected this Board of Governors, terms to expire December, 1913: Eugene L. Bushe, Judge Warren W. Foster, Roger Foster, Nathan Straus, Charles S. Guggenheimer, Richard Croker, Jr., John H. Campbell, Magistrate Henry Steinert, John D. Crimmins, Michael Daly, and John E. Hasslacher.

BANKS GET AFTER RAILROADS

Insist Upon Compliance with Cotton Validation Plan.

At a meeting of representatives of eighteen of the principal exchange-buying banking institutions held at the Corn Exchange Bank yesterday the decision was reached that the banks cannot afford to pass over the requirement recently agreed upon that all cotton bills of lading accompanying exchange purchased by the banks should have attached to them the validation certificates which the railroads undertook last September to attach to all bills of lading on cotton intended for export. Since this plan went into effect it has been found that some of the railroads have been slow to apply it or have been negligent in the methods of issuing the certificates. The refusal of bankers to accept cotton bills which do not carry these certificates will compell strict compliance with the plan.

The bankers also considered the recent ruling of the Inter-State Commerce Commission forbidding the railroads to issue bills of lading until after the actual receipt of the merchandise covered by the bills. The strict application of this rule and faithful compliance with the validation plan will, the bankers believe, afford all needed protection to the buyers of cotton bills.

NO THIRD AVE. REHEARING.

Public Service Commission Confirms Its Denial to the Bondholders.

The Public Service Commission gave out an opinion yesterday confirming its denial of a rehearing to the Third Avenue Railroad Bondholders' Committee on the application for the approval of the reorganization plan, which the commission rejected several months ago.

At hearings on the application just denied, the committee submitted evidence to show gains in earnings and on the betterment of the Third Avenue's financial position since the hearing on the original plan. These considerations, however, the commission now holds, are not sufficient to affect the proposal on which it based its decision rejecting the reorganization plan.

A fight in the courts will be the next step, unless the Legislature, which will meet on Jan. 1, passes the bill, which is almost certain to be introduced in the interest of both the Metropolitan and the Third Avenue reorganizations, taking practically all power away from the commission in respect of securities issued in a reorganization.

400 TENNESSEEANS AT SOCIETY'S DINNER

Keynote of the Gathering Was That All Hands Were New Yorkers as Well.

GAYNOR COULDN'T ATTEND

Corporation Counsel Watson in His Speech Says There's Too Much Greed for New Laws.

Some 400 former residents of Tennessee, fully one-half of whom were women, crowded the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night, where the Tennessee Society held its sixth annual dinner. There was a departure from former dinners in that the keynote was "Let us be New Yorkers now that we are here."

This New York idea was emphasized throughout. Mayor Gaynor was to have been the guest of honor, but he sent a letter saying he couldn't be present on account of the snowstorm.

The principal speaker was Archibald R. Watson, Corporation Counsel of New York, and others were Dr. Allen G. Hall, Dean of the Vanderbilt Law School at Nashville; Brode B. Davis, a Chicago lawyer, and Joseph T. Howell, President of the Carnegie Trust Company. Charles C. Cowan, President of the society, was toastmaster.

Among those at the guest table were William G. McAdoo, President of the New York Southern Society; Jennings S. Cox, President of the Maryland Society of New York; Roland R. Conklin, Vice President of the Missouri Society of New York; George Gordon Battle, Augustus Van Wyck, James F. Allen, President of the Georgia Society of New York; Dr. Virgil P. Gibney, President of the Kentuckians, and Dr. George Tucker Harrison, representing the Virginians.

Carrying out the idea of making the function a representative New York affair as well as a Tennessee one, the menus contained photogravures of the downtown skyline of New York and the souvenirs were miniature statuettes of Father Knickerbocker.

United States Senate Timber.

In his speech, Corporation Counsel Watson emphasized the importance of New Yorkers carrying out the doctrine of local self-government. He pointed out that it was unwise to have too many new laws while there were plenty of old ones to enforce, and stirred up enthusiasm by declaring that New York must send men of moral and intellectual calibre to the United States Senate.

"If the fundamental doctrine of local self-government is to endure," said Mr. Watson, "all local problems must be locally solved. The practical problems peculiar to the South cannot be solved in New England; and problems of prime and peculiar importance to the people of the State of New York may not be satisfactorily solved in Washington, even though their solution be essayed by some great apostle of a new nationalism; and questions of especial and intimate relation to the people of New York City should not be finally disposed of at Albany.

"The American appetite for legislation, against which Gov.-elect Woodrow Wilson has recently declaimed, has been allowed to feed too often at the crib of home rule. But the way to satisfy this appetite is not by its overindulgence. We should rather, as Mayor Gaynor long ago pointed out, and as he has done much to demonstrate during his Mayoralty term, seek to allay the craving for more and new laws by the proper and normal and impartial and fearless exercise of the functions of the other branches of Government—the executive and the judicial branches.

"Such a travesty of justice, for example, as we recently had when the United States Court in Pennsylvania fined the Glass Trust $10,000, whereupon the trust immediately reduced the wages of its employés 30 per cent. to pay the fine, is likely to excite the American appetite not merely for legislation but also for rude and primitive justice, which when aroused is less easy to satisfy and more dangerous in its desires than any appetite for legislation alone can ever be."

"The South," said Mr. Watson, "will have to solve the race question by itself, without any outside interference. Citizens of other States, he said, were slow to understand the much-discussed and bitter problem.

The Rural Influence.

"There is far greater danger that we shall have too much than that we shall have too little law in the United States," he went on. "Much may safely be left to an enlightened public sentiment, without which we know that no law can be enforced, even though it be enacted. And the great cities, as centres of thought and influence, may accomplish much in the creation and promotion of a just and intelligent public sentiment; far more than can be done by the citizens of the sparsely settled or country districts or even of the smaller towns and cities in the United States."

Mr. Watson took the position that experience has shown that men and women of rural birth and bringing up wielded a preponderance of influence, even in the large cities, in all fields of activity.

"In the North Atlantic States," he said, "the proportion of city population is more than 50 per cent., and in New York State it is perhaps 75 or 80 per cent. For you know that New York City alone contains over half of the more than 9,000,000 people in the State of New York. And you know that New York City alone contains more people than the combined populations of Maine, New Hampshire, West Virginia, Colorado, and Delaware, and you may then throw in for good measure Florida, with more than 750,000, and the District of Columbia, containing the National capital, with a little over 331,000, and you will still have enough left over to populate Nevada, Wyoming, Alaska, and last but not least, Utah, which alone has a population of more than 250,000.

"And you know, perhaps, that as to Utah the good people of that State have lately voted down prohibition, thus, as it has been suggested by some unkind newspaper, refusing to deny to themselves their only remaining consolation for having Reed Smoot in the United States Senate.

"So it is that New York State, with only two Senators, but with a population about equal to that of twenty of the less populous States, with forty Senators in the aggregate, must equalize that inequality, so far as she is able, by the moral and intellectual calibre of the men she sends to the Senate. If she doesn't, we shall have a grief and disgrace of our own requiring consolation."

Dr. Hall had everybody laughing when he told about his experiences in New York. This city, he said, furnishes the largest opportunities for success. "The great genius and the great humbug," he said, "should come here, for it is only mediocrity that fails." He didn't begrudge the large sums of money New Yorkers made, he said, because it required plenty of money for them to live, and particularly to pay their alimony. New York, he said, didn't impress the outsider half as much as it does the man who draws a salary from the city.

The average New Yorker, he said, was too self-centred and too ignorant about his own city. It is not wholesome, he said, when the people know more about foreign cities than they do about their own. There were half a dozen men in Wall Street, for instance, he said, who don't even know where Sing Sing is. He admitted, however, that New York is a great place to live, since it produced Theodore Roosevelt.

Discussing New York women, Dr. Hall declared that if the average woman feels the way she looks she ought to insist upon a surgical operation. He saw one woman, he said, who looked as if she wore the contents of a Colonial mattress on her head.

WON AT HORSE SHOW, POLICE MISSED HIM

Davie, Boston Broker, Borrowed One Entry and Traded Auto Not His for Another.

NOW ON HIS WAY TO PERU

Financier Sails Away, Leaving Many Bad Checks and Unpaid Bills—Many Victims in Boston.

Robert E. Davie, a young stock broker of Boston, who after a "frenzied financial" career disappeared from that city, leaving many clamoring for his arrest, figured rather conspicuously here during Horse Show week. With a horse which he obtained from a New York dealer in trade for an automobile not his own, young Davie was an exhibitor at Madison Square Garden. He failed to carry off a prize. He also brought a coach and four from Boston and entered it in the coach race from Arrowhead Inn to the Garden, getting second prize.

While he was in this city Davie lived in the Hotel Astor. He entertained lavishly, and disappeared without the formality of settling his bill. Some of his effects are held by the management as security for the bill. Davie also circulated checks here which the police say are worthless. There are several warrants out for his arrest, but according to information last night given by one of his Hotel Astor guests Davie is on his way to Peru.

During his stay in New York, while he was appearing daily in Madison Square Garden, detectives were looking for him to serve a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Anna L. Greenwood of Somerville, Mass., charging him with the larceny of securities valued at $10,000.

There is a showgirl appearing in one of the Broadway productions who received the attentions of Davie during most of his brief sojourn in New York, but her name has not yet been learned by those anxious to get a clue to the young broker's whereabouts.

Davie is supposed to have reached here some time about the first of November. At any rate on that date he visited 212 West Fiftieth Street, the local headquarters of the Florham Stud Farms Company of Madison, N. J., and informed George Watson, the proprietor, that he was deeply interested in horse shows and wished to purchase a pair of prize winners. Mr. Watson showed him a handsome pair, Florham Sovereign and Florham Lady. The price was quite satisfactory, Davie said, and he proffered in payment two checks for $4,500 on a bank in Tennessee.

After the sale, but before the horses had been delivered, Mr. Watson became suspicious, and when Davie next called at his office he was told to return in a week. In the meantime the checks were sent to the Hudson Trust Company for collection, and J. Campbell Thompson of 63 Wall Street, counsel for the Farms, said they were returned marked "No funds."

Trades Auto for Horse.

"When Davie came back at the end of the week and was told that his checks were worthless, he informed Mr. Watson that he had an automobile which he was willing to trade for Florham Lady, a fine mare, which won in the ladies' phaeton class in the Syracuse Horse Show last year," said Mr. Campbell last night. "Davie made an affidavit that the automobile was his own property and that there was no mortgage against it. We have the affidavit now. We agreed to allow him to show Florham Lady in the Garden and hold the automobile as security.

"Florham Lady was entered by Davie as the 'Ayreshire Farm' entry. He also sent to Boston for a Mr. Mason, for Henry Coulter, a well-known whip, and his four horses, a coach and harness. He entered all of these from the 'Ayresdale Farm.' In the coach race from Arrowhead Inn Coulter drove and Davie rode beside him. The 'Ayresdale Farm' coach beat Mr. Vanderbilt's entry and was a close second to Paul A. Sorg's, which won."

Thompson said that Davie entertained Coulter and Mason in the Astor. During his stay in the hotel he offered the management a check on an out-of-town bank, and when it came back unhonored the Astor management seized his luggage. Thompson added that Coulter and Mason were obliged to pay their own bills.

But the tangle did not end there.

"Just after Davie disappeared from the hotel, leaving his bill unpaid," he said, "an attachment was placed on Coulter's horses, Davie having given a chattel mortgage on them."

The automobile end of the story was told by B. D. Coyne, a lawyer, of 29 Broadway.

"Late in October," said Mr. Coyne, "Davie obtained an automobile from George W. Jones, representative of the firm of George R. Bascon, an automobile dealer of Boston. Davie paid about one-third of the purchase price and went away. The firm held a mortgage on the machine, and when Davie did not pay the balance search was made for him. It was found that he was appearing in the Horse Show.

Tried to Sell the Car Too Cheap.

"When found Davie said the automobile was in a small town near Philadelphia, Penn., he having leased it to a friend for a couple of weeks. The lease, he said, expired on the following day, Nov. 19. Davie said that next day he was going to the Harvard-Yale football game, and that he would have the machine at the New Haven House directly after the game and would surrender it. He was not there. The machine was found in a Park Avenue garage, and it developed that Davie had exchanged it for a show horse. Mr. Thompson was notified and steps were taken to have the machine returned to its owner.

"Davie made several attempts to sell the car, but in each instance his price was so low that purchasers were frightened off. Davie even borrowed a license for the automobile and used a number to which he had no right."

Coulter, the Boston whip, says that Davie owes him $650. He says that while being entertained by Davie in the Astor, he was surprised at the religious side of his host's nature.

"Every night Davie would kneel and pray God to make him a better man," he said. "Following his prayer Davie would read the Bible for awhile before retiring."

MANY VICTIMS IN BOSTON.

One Firm Says It Lost $10,000—Davie Entertained Evangelist Chapman.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Among the suits on file in the Superior Court against Robert E. Davie is one in which it is alleged that he is indebted to a Congress Street firm for securities loaned and sold to the amount of $10,000. The complaint states that for collateral Davie made an assignment of 1,070 shares of stock in the American News Co. The suit also names as defendant William H. Jackson, Henry I. Harriman, and The Federal Trust Co.

The bankers say they were fleeced by Davie, and ask the court to prevent the Federal Trust Co. from disposing of the stock. Jackson asserts that he delivered the stock to Davie for the purchase of stock, and that it was Davie that agreed "the shares were to be accounted for."

Mrs. Hannah L. Greenwood, the wife of the Rev. Lawrence B. Greenwood, is the only person who so far has asked for a warrant for the arrest of the young financier. Her experience illustrates his amazing ability to abuse confidence. She says:

"I still believe that Mr. Davie did not intend to defraud, but that he got into financial difficulties and ran away." This is the keynote of her story and the keynote of the other tragic stories of those less able to bear their losses.

It also developed to-day that Davie was the man who entertained Chapman, the evangelist, upon his last visit to this city. The evangelist stayed at Davie's home in Brookline for two nights.

No Louisiana Senator by Direct Vote.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 5.—The Louisiana General Assembly to-night voted down a resolution to submit the election of a United States Senator to succeed the late H. D. MsEnery to the popular vote. The so-called insurgent forces responsible for the resolution lost the motion by a vote of 45 to 60 in the House, and 8 to 27 in the Senate.

Democrat Mayor in Portland, Me.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 5.—Following the example of the State in the September election, Portland went Democratic to-night. Oakley C. Curtis, Democrat was elected Mayor over the present incumbent, Charles A. Strout, Republican, by 703 votes. The Cit Council, now Republican, went Democratic, 20 to 16.

SAYS MOORE WAS INSANE.

Expert Answers 12,000-Word Hypothetical Question in Gibson Trial.

VINCENNES, Ind., Dec. 5.—Testifying as an expert in the defense of Menlo Moore, a theatrical manager, on trial for the murder of Charles Edward Gibson, a wealthy oil field operator, Dr. W. H. Davenport declared to-day that in his opinion Moore, at the time he shot Gibson, was insane as the result of his wife's confession. The physician's testimony was given in answer to a hypothetical question of 12,000 words, in which Mrs. Moore's confession to her husband was repeated.

Mrs. Moore left the court room while this part of the question was read, and Moore sat with his face buried in his arms.

Mrs. Moore's father, A. J. Padgett, testified that he had told Moore that if he could not forgive his wife he should leave her, and that Moore replied "he would die first."

Moore imagined Gibson was plotting to kill him, Mr. Padgett said, and after he shot Gibson he told Mr. Padgett that Gibson had struck him in the back just before the shooting took place.

Credit Men to Dine.

The Business Meetings Committee of the New York Credit Men's Association will hold a special general meeting and dinner at Delmonico's on Dec. 16. Among the speakers will be United States District Attorney J. Whitaker Thompson, Philadelphia; United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise, New York; District Attorney Whitman, Hon. George W. Whiteside, Council New York Credit Men's Association, and the Rev. St. Clair Hester, D. D.

That Suit for Libel

Against the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Gave a Splendid Chance to Bring Out Facts

A disagreement about advertising arose with a "Weekly" Journal.

Following it, an attack on us appeared in their editorial columns, sneering at the claims we made, particularly regarding Appendicitis.

We replied through the regular papers and the "weekly" thought we hit back rather too hard and thereupon sued for libel.

The advertisement the "weekly" attacked us about claimed that in many cases of appendicitis an operation could be avoided by discontinuing indigestible food, washing out the bowels and taking a predigested food Grape-Nuts.

Observe we said MANY cases not all.

Wouldn't that knowledge be a comfort to those who fear a surgeon's knife as they fear death?

The "weekly" writer said that was a lie.

We replied that he was ignorant of the facts.

He was put on the stand and compelled to admit he was not a Dr. and had no medical knowledge of appendicitis and never investigated to find out if the testimonial letters to our Co. were genuine.

A famous surgeon testified that when an operation was required Grape Nuts would not obviate it. True.

We never claimed that when an operation was required Grape Nuts would prevent it.

The surgeon testified bacteria [germs] helped to bring on an attack and bacteria was grown by undigested food frequently.

We claimed and proved by other famous experts that undigested food was largely responsible for appendicitis.

We showed by expert testimony that many cases are healed without a knife, but by stopping the use of food which did not digest, and when food was required again it was helpful to use a predigested food which did not overtax the weakened organs of digestion.

When a pain in the right side appears it is not always necessary to be rushed off to a hospital, and at the risk of death, be cut.

Plain common sense shows the better way is to stop food that evidently has not been digested.

Then, when food is required, use an easily digested food, Grape Nuts or any other if you know it to be predigested (partly digested before taking.)

We brought to Court analytical chemists from New York, Chicago and Mishawaka, Ind., who swore to the analysis of Grape Nuts and that part of the starchy part of the wheat and barley had been transformed into sugar, the kind of sugar produced in the human body by digesting starch (the large part of food.)

Some of the State chemists brought on by the "weekly" said Grape Nuts could not be called a "predigested" food because not all of it was digested outside the body.

The other chemists said any food which had been partly or half digested outside the body was commonly known as "predigested."

Splitting hairs about the meaning of a word.

It is sufficient that if only one-half of the food is "predigested," it is easier on weakened stomach and bowels than food in which no part is predigested.

To show the facts we introduced Dr. Paul Outerbridge of N. Y., Dr. Thos. Darlington, former chief of the N. Y. Board of Health, Dr. Ralph W. Webster, chief of the Chicago Laboratories, and Dr. B. Sachs, N. Y.

If we were a little severe in our denunciation of a writer, self-confessed ignorant about appendicitis and its cause, it is possible the public will excuse us, in view of the fact that our head, Mr. C. W. Post, has made a lifetime study of food, food digestion and effects, and the conclusions are indorsed by many of the best medical authorities of the day.

Is it possible that we are at fault for suggesting, as a Father and Mother might, to one of the family who announced a pain in the side: "Stop using the food, greasy meats, gravies, mince pie, cheese, too much starchy food, &c., &c., which has not been digested, then when again ready for food use Grape Nuts because it is easy of digestion?"

Or should the child be at once carted off to a hospital and cut?

We have known of many cases wherein the approaching sign of appendicitis have disappeared by the suggestion being followed.

No one better appreciates the value of a skilful physician when the person is in the awful throes of acute appendicitis, but "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Just plain old common sense is helpful even nowadays.

This trial demonstrated Grape-Nuts food is pure beyond question.

It is partly predigested.

Appendicitis generally has rise from undigested food.

It is not always necessary to operate.

It is best to stop all food.

When ready to begin feeding use a predigested food.

It is palatable and strong in Nourishment.

It will pay fine returns in health to quit the heavy breakfasts and lunches and use less food but select food certainly known to contain the elements nature requires to sustain the body. May we be permitted to suggest a breakfast of fruit, Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, and some hot toast and cocoa, milk or Postum.

The question of whether Grape-Nuts does or does not contain the elements which nature requires for the nourishment of the brain, also of its purity, will be treated in later newspaper articles.

Good food is important and its effect on the body is also important.

ERRED IN DISMISSING HEINZE INDICTMENTS

Hough's Ruling Against Counts in Mercantile National Case Is Reversed by Supreme Court.

BANKER MAY BE RETRIED

Wise Will Consider Refiling the Restored Charges—Decision Has Important Bearing on Future Bank Cases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day held that the Federal Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York had erred in dismissing certain counts of indictments against F. Augustus Heinze, charging misapplication of funds of the Mercantile National Bank of New York.

One of the points which the lower court held the indictments insufficient was that they did not show a conversion by the recipient of the proceeds of certain notes discounted. After reviewing the previous cases touching on this point, Justice McKenna, in announcing the decision of the court, said:

"It follows that the Circuit Court erred in considering as necessary not only that there should be alleged a conversion by the officer of the bank, but also of the recipient of the proceeds of the discount. The conversion may be to the use of either, and the indictment fulfills the requirement."

The constitutionality of the act of March 2, 1907, allowing the Government an appeal in adverse decisions on preliminary pleas in criminal cases, was upheld by the court, which reiterated the statement that the right of appeal was not "essential to due process of law."

Henry A. Wise, United States District Attorney here, who prepared and prosecuted the case against Heinze and appealed to the Supreme Court when the case was dismissed, said last night that the Supreme Court ruling will have an important effect upon future procedure against bank officials accused of misapplication of funds. He said he was much gratified at the result of his appeal.

"Prosecuting attorneys all over the United States now have a guide in making prosecutions for misapplication of bank funds," said Mr. Wise. "If the rulings of Judge Hough had been sustained it would have been impossible to secure convictions of bank officials on such charges. That is the reason I appealed to the Supreme Court."

Mr. Wise was asked if the decision of the Supreme Court is likely to result in a new trial for Heinze.

"That is a matter I have under consideration at present," he said. "I am not ready to say just at present that we will try Heinze again on the counts in the indictment which were ruled out by Judge Hough, but I can say this much—I do not believe that Heinze's lawyers could successfully plead that the ruled-out counts of the indictment would be a bar to a new trial because the trial of Heinze, which resulted in his acquittal, was not on the counts stricken out."

Lawyers who followed the Heinze trial say that the Supreme Court decision is one of the most important delivered recently, as it settles a point which has caused great uneasiness among prosecuting attorneys throughout the country. The efforts of District Attorney Wise to convict the well-known financier were followed with interest by lawyers, bankers, and others interested in financial institutions.

Heinze was first indicted in 1909, as President of the Mercantile National Bank of New York City, on a charge of intent to defraud the bank by causing the bank to discount improperly single-name commercial paper amounting to about $1,500,000. Many of the counts were stricken out of the indictment by Judge Hough on technical grounds. The court held that the indictment was defective because it did not charge "conversion" and that "the word supplied the legal measure, which the court has not been able to find in willful misapplication."

When Mr. Wise succeeded Henry L. Stimson as Federal District Attorney here he found an indictment against Heinze. This indictment Mr. Wise decided was not sufficient to take the Heinze case to trial with reasonable expectation of conviction. Hence he drew a new indictment. Judge Hough held that this indictment did not charge criminality. A second indictment was drawn. But when the matter came before the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, Judge Hough held that the fact that an expert accountant had been in the Grand Jury room was improper. So the second indictment was dismissed.

For the third time Mr. Wise drew up an indictment against Heinze. This time he incorporated two sets of counts, one based on misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National, the other upon alleged overcertification of the bank's paper. In this second set of counts it was alleged that several notes, not properly secured, were discounted just before the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. figured in bankruptcy proceedings. One this third indictment the case went to trial. Eight of the counts were struck out by Judge Hough.

These eight counts, which constituted the basis for Mr. Wise's appeal to the Supreme Court, concerned notes aggregating about $1,000,000 which Heinze discounted. With what was left of the original third indictment Mr. Wise continued the trial. But, as he stated afterward, the remaining counts were based largely upon the eight which were dismissed, and had been drawn to meet Judge Hough's objections to counts in the first and second indictments.

As the charge stood when Judge Hough finished reducing the counts, Heinze was accused of having misapplied the funds of the bank in inflating the stock of the United Copper Company, he having loaned money to the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. on notes which, the prosecution alleged, he knew were no good. It was charged in the remaining counts that Heinze and others were engaged in a stock juggling game. But it devolved upon the prosecution to prove that the funds which Heinze applied to the schemes of Otto Heinze & Co. were really to inflate the stock of the United Copper Company. It also devolved upon Mr. Wise to prove that Heinze, the defendant, was a member of a pool formed for this purpose.

When Mr. Wise attempted to have the books of the United Copper Company produced he learned that they had been removed beyond his reach. Without them he was unable to prove that Heinze had a guilty knowledge of the transactions alleged in the indictment, as it stood after the eight counts had been dismissed.

Judge Hough held that it had to be proved that Heinze had a personal interest in each transaction named. He also held Mr. Wise had not proved that Heinze, as the President of the Mercantile National Bank, had a guilty knowledge of the stock deals.

Lawyers who have closely followed the case said last night that while the Federal District Attorney could well bring Heinze to trial again, he may figure that Heinze's punishment during the last four years had been sufficient.

LAWSON ATTACKS HEINZE.

Says Latter Played False in Agreement to Support Ohio Copper Stock.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Thomas W. Lawson testified to-day in the hearing before Frank R. Hall, as Master of the case against A. D. F. Adams, a broker of this city, charged with disposing without authority of stock held by him as collateral for a loan.

Lawson said that in May, 1909, he entered into an agreement with Carlos Warfield, representing F. Augustus Heinze of New York, by which Lawson, James R. Keene, and A. C. Burrage were to have an option on a large block of the stock of the Ohio Copper Company. He said that the agreement provided that these three men should support the market for this stock.

After purchasing several thousand shares of the stock, Lawson said he became convinced that stock controlled by Heinze and his associates was being sold to him. He considered this contrary to the terms of the agreement, from which he thereupon withdrew.

The hearing was adjourned until Saturday, when Mr. Lawson [illegible] further.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Ground Talc or Talcum Is Held Dutiable as "Chalk."

The classification of ground talc or talcum was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers when in overruling claims made by several importers, it was held that the commodity in question is probably dutiable by the similitude clause of the tariff act of 1909, under paragraph 13, which provides for ground chalk.

The decision fails to indorse the return made by the Collector of Customs under paragraph 95, which provides for earthy or mineral substances, nor is the claim filed by the importers for duty under paragraph 480 as a "non-enumerated manufactured article" upheld by the board. When the issue came up for hearing before the board, however, the Government counsel, without attempting to justify the Collector's assessment, maintained that the talc in controversy is dutiable under paragraph 13 as "chalk." This claim Judge Hay, who writes the decision for the board, sustains.

The General Appraiser states that the testimony placed before the board fairly establishes that the commodity in question is commercially known as talc, and is bought and sold as such. The testimony shows further, accordng to the decision, that talc or talcum and French chalk are the same thing, and this is borne out, though probably not clearly established by the authorities.

"We therefore conclude," says the decision, "that the commodity in this case is either specifically provided for in paragraph 13 of the tariff act of 1909, or is made dutiable under that paragraph by the application of the similitude clause of paragraph 481. Hence paragraph 480, which may be invoked only as a last resort in the classification of merchandise, is not applicable to this commodity. The protests are overruled."

The importers figuring in this test litigation are L. A. Salomon & Brother, the C. J. Osborn Company, and Innis, Speiden & Co.

TYPHOID SPREAD BY FLIES.

Columbia Lecturer Attributes Autumn Danger to Insects from Piers.

Flies from water-front piers were blamed for the so-called "autumnal occurrence" of typhoid fever, in a lecture by Dr. D. C. Pease, sanitary expert for the Board of Water Supply, at Columbia University last night. Besides typhoid fever, he said, the fly carries also the germs of tuberculosis and other troubles. The common house fly, one of those that feed on vegetable matter, said Dr. Pease, is least dangerous, while such flies as the fruit fly, flower fly, the biting fly, which is bred in stables, and the green and blue fly, are most to be dreaded. They have a predilection, he said, to thrive on patients in the typhoid fever wards of hospitals.

Dr. Pease declared that the many burnt offerings and sacrificial ceremonies of the ancient Hebrews were designed with a practical view of exterminating the fly and other insect pests from the meat of slaughtered cattle when the sacred rites were performed.

EXHIBIT TO HELP CHILDREN.

Photographs and Charts Will Portray Evils of Life in Tenements.

The Child Welfare Exhibit will be held next month in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, beginning on January 18 and will last four weeks. The object of this convention is to suggest well-thought-out ways and means of fostering agencies for the welfare of infant life and remedying conditions that militate against the health and education of city children.

More than 45,000 square feet of space will be devoted to photographs and charts of the conditions that exist in tenement districts. One exhibit will show with actual garments how a child may be dressed comfortably for $7 a year. Another will prove that a flat can be furnished artistically for $100.

Because no floor space will be rented to any commercial enterprises the committee is forced to make an appeal to the public for $13,000. While $50,000 has already been subscribed the Committee finds that that amount will be insufficient to comply with all requirements.

ANTI-SUFFRAGIST HEAD QUITS

Mrs. Francis Scott Resigns and Notice of Election of a Successor Is Served.

Mrs. Francis Scott, President of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, handed in her resignation yesterday afternoon at the fifteenth annual meeting of the organization at the home of Mrs. Fritz Achelis, 9 East Fifty-seventh Street. Mrs. Scott was the first President. The association presented Mrs. Scott with resolutions of appreciation and regret.

The meeting was a private one, and in the typewritten report sent out at its conclusion were the words, "Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, for many years Chairman of the Executive Committee, was elected to take Mrs. Scott's place." The lines were then scratched out, and there was no announcement made of the election of a President.

NO 59TH ST. TRANSFERS YET.

Company Says They're Coming, Delay Being Due to Printer.

Despite the recent order of the Public Service Commission, the exchange of transfers between the Central Park, North and East River Railroad Company crosstown cars and intersecting lines of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, which were to have been granted yesterday, was not forthcoming. Oren Root, General Manager of the Metropolitan System, said there was no intention to refuse to comply with the commission's order, but that the transfer blanks had been delayed by the printer. He said he hoped the new transfer system would be in operation in a few days.

Street car patrons, who expected that the new transfer rule would go into effect on time, showed some irritation when they were refused by conductors. The conductors had evidently received instructions to treat the public patiently, and make the necessary explanations. Several persons who insisted on either a transfer or a free ride, were carried free.

METZ TALKS OF TAXLESS CITY

New York Could Be One, He Says, but Won't, and He Tells Why.

Ex-Controller Herman A. Metz was in a buoyant mood list night while talking in the Temple Israel at 120th Street and Lexington Avenue.

"If we ran our town with decent economies," he said, "we would make it a taxless town in twenty years, paying all the cost of government from our docks, ferries, water, and other paying propositions. But as it is, we won't do it.

"Once the Street Cleaning Department had a quarrel with the Aldermen, and Mayor Low, who was a Republican, went to Albany about it. The result was we fed the horses their oats on fifty-year bonds. We pay the Staten Island Ferry skippers on fifty-year bonds. We pay the bands that play on the recreation piers in the same way, and so now nearly a third of all our revenue goes to paying interest. The band music doesn't last fifty years, but the bill for it does.

"Just now the Department of Education is in its annual sorrow, and you hear a great furore about dropping some study—about dropping German. No, my friends, they won't drop German. They'll get some bonds. That's what they're after, and they're taking the old, old way.

"How? In a way to make the annual budget a lie, which it has always been. Why not give the people a square deal, and tell 'em just what their budget is in the first place, and get a tax rate that'll give us a clean slate on current expenses every year?"

Most of what Mr. Metz had to say was about subways. He said the Interborough would have been extended years ago if it hadn't been for the rush of folks to Albany to get a bill through preventing the construction of the extensions, just as the bids were being advertised for.

"And it's the surest thing in the world," he said, "that when private capital doesn't bid on subway operation it means that capital can't see a profit. And where the experts of the capitalists can't see a profit it is a dead certainty the city will never be able to find one.

"You're all roaring now because the Interborough makes too much profit. Well, Mr. Whitney wouldn't touch the subway proposition with a ten-foot pole when the Interborough took it. We couldn't get anybody to touch it. We absolutely failed to foresee the present profits."

In ten years, Mr. Metz asserted, there will not be a residence in Manhattan south of Fifty-ninth Street.

NEW COTTON POOL CHARGE.

Second Indictment Forestalls the Quashing of the First.

To forestall the quashing of the first "cotton pool" indictment, returned in May last by the Federal Grand Jury, through the defendants' plea in abatement, which alleged that the Special Federal Grand Jury had been organized irregularly, a second indictment of the sort, found on Aug. 4 and placed under the seal of the court, was opened late yesterday afternoon, while three of the five defendants named in it, James A. Patten, Eugene Scales, and William B. Brown, were before Justice Hough in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court for pleading. The others named were Frank B. Hayne and Col. Robert M. Thompson.

The original indictment last May named besides these, Morris B. Rothschild, Sydney J. Herman, and Charles A. Kittle, and contained five counts. The number of counts was increased to eight in the indictment yesterday. The defendants are charged with conspiring among themselves and with Kittle, Fuller E. Gallaway, Lewis W. Parker, James W. Cannon, and others to monopolize inter-State commerce and trade in available cotton during the last four months of the crop year ended September, 1910, by purchasing sufficient cotton in a manner calculated to raise the price thereof, with agreements to hold it off the market and finally sell it at arbitrary and excessive rates.

Judge Hough gave the defendants' counsel till Dec. 19 to demur to the new indictment, and set Jan. 2 for argument.

TELLS OF BRAZILIAN MUTINY.

Deserter Here on Steamer Says Navy Is Undermanned.

On the Lloyds Brazilleiro liner Sergipe, in yesterday from Rio Janeiro and other ports, came Arturo Daromes, who, according to his own account, was recently a sailor in the Brazilian Navy. Though he left Brazil before the successful mutiny on the warships in the Rio Janeiro Harbor, Daromes was a fireman on the new dreadnought Minas Geraes. He said that he had practically been forced into the navy as a fireman.

Plans for the mutiny, he said, were made many months ago, and were perfected with great detail. These were carefully thought out by the leaders, and the men agreed to carry them out. According to Daromes, the outbreak was to occur on Nov. 15, the day when the new President was inaugurated. Word came to the leaders that there was danger of their plans leaking out, and the date was accordingly set forward to Nov. 9. This plan, however, was not carried out. Two days before the mutiny was to have taken place Daromes deserted, he says, and booked on the Sergipe as a steerage passenger.

Conditions in the Brazilian Navy were very bad, he said. Sometimes the men had to work thirty-six hours at a stretch, as the vessels are undermanned. For the slightest thing a man would get the rope's end.

On the Sergipe came seven American actors who have been appearing in a vaudeville sketch in South America.

BROOKLYN TIMES SOLD.

John M. Cruikshank of The Carthage Republican the Purchaser.

The Brooklyn Daily Times, established in 1848, has been purchased by John M. Cruikshank, editor of The Carthage Republican, from the estate of Bernard Peters, who started the paper with George C. Bennett and later bought out his half interest. The papers of the new incorporation were filed in Albany yesterday, giving the new capital stock of the company as $350,000. The purchase price of the paper was not divulged.

Mr. Cruikshank will edit the paper, in place of Thomas P. Peters, a son of Bernard Peters, who will retire from journalistic work to practice law. Associated with Mr. Cruikshank as publisher and business manager will be Richard C. Ellsworth, his partner in The Carthage Republican. Both Mr. Cruikshank and Mr. Ellsworth were formerly Brooklyn newspaper men until they took over the paper in Carthage, their home town, about four years ago.

Mr. Cruikshank said yesterday that there would be few changes in the editorial or reportorial staffs of the paper. The transfer of the property will be made in a few days.

DINERS ROUTED BY SMOKE.

Columbus Circle Fire Ties Up Traffic for an Hour.

Shortly before 10 o'clock last night fire was discovered in the basement of the Thoroughfare Building at Broadway and Fifty-eighth Street, and before firemen arrived it had eaten its way into several automobile supply stores. The dense volumes of smoke caused great excitement in several hotels and restaurants near by. The first store in the arcade to catch fire was that of the Dorian Rim Company. The flames then spread to the Oakland Motor Car Company, and from there to the Schebler Carburetor Company. In all $5,000 damage was done.

In the barber shop in the arcade were several customers being shaved. When smoke filled the shop the men ran out into the street, their faces covered with lather. Across the street, in Pabst's and Reisenweber's restaurants, the diners fled in alarm when heavy clouds of black smoke poured into the rooms, and the congestion was so great in Broadway and Columbus Avenue that all traffic was held up for nearly an hour.

Ticket Agent Retires After 33 Years.

J. C. Kalbfleisch, ticket agent of the New York Central lines at Rochester, N. Y., will resign that post on Dec. 31 after thirty-three years' continuous service. He has served under General Passenger Agents Meeker, Kendrick, Monett, Richards, Daniels, Fairlamb, Fort, and Vosburg. He entered the service of the New York Central on April 26, [illegible] clerk.

WANT 7TH AVE. EXTENDED.

But Property Owners Most Benefited Want the City to Pay for It.

At a hearing held last night by a special committee of the Board of Estimate on the area of assessment for the Seventh Avenue extension, it was demonstrated very clearly, so the city officials say, that the property owners of the neighborhood most directly affected are anxious for the improvement, but want the city to pay for it. It was even charged that the persons who have talked most loudly for the extension do not own any property to be assessed.

The improvement includes the extension of the avenue south from Greenwich Avenue to Carmine and Varick Streets, the widening of Varick Street from a sixty to a one hundred foot street to Canal, and its extension from that point to West Broadway. The cost is estimated at $5,100,000, to be paid for according to the tentative plan of the committee, 50 per cent. by the city, and 50 per cent. by assessment on the property in the area bounded by a line running between streets from Leroy and Clarkson Streets and the North River, up Washington and Hudson Streets, between Ninth and Eight Avenues to Seventeenth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues to Forty-second Street, and downtown, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues to Seventeenth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues to Bleecker Street, in a zig-zag line southeasterly to Broome and Greene, south between Broadway and Church Street, and to the North River, between Fulton and Cortlandt.

All of the speakers argued that this area is too small. Some of them asked that it be extended to include the whole of Manhattan, and nearly all thought that it should take in all the west side of the island between the Battery and Fifty-ninth Street. A good deal was said about the depreciation of property in Greenwich Village and the "poor property owner struggling to pay his taxes."

"We have waited for years for this improvement," said Michael J. Horan of the Ninth Ward Taxpayers' Association, "and now you give it to us only to tax our life's blood away. This improvement will benefit the whole city, and it does not seem fair that old Greenwich Village should bear the burden of it."

W. G. Buxton, a property owner in the district, stated that the "damnable subways" are responsible for the depreciation of values in Greenwich Village. "You have allowed McAdoo to tap the blood and bread of the property owners in the Ninth Ward," said he, "and take the people out of the district to Jersey. Our stores are vacant, and it takes all the property will produce to pay the taxes and assessments on it." John F. O'Neil, another property owner, said that all the extension would be good for would be as an automobile highway.

STRANGE SUICIDE AT SEA.

Unknown Stowaway Jumps Off Steamship in Midocean.

The strange story of a suicide at sea is told by the officers of the freighter Walton Hall, now at Bush Stores, South Brooklyn, after a trip from the Far East. In October, when the Walton Hall was on her way to Bombay, and running through the Indian Ocean, a great noise was heard between decks and a man was heard screaming. Immediately after a Laskar, shaking as though in great fear, climbed to the deck from an after hatch. The man paused near the rail to shake off his shoes and then climbed quickly to the top of the rail and jumped as far out into the sea as he could. Almost as the man jumped the officers signalled to stop the vessel. The Laskars ran to the rail, gesticulating wildly, and Second Officer Griffith caught a glimpse of the man as the sea carried him astern.

Within a few minutes a boat was in the water. The crew rowed about for some time, but caught no sight of the suicide. As soon as the boat was again on the davits the roll was called, but not a man was missing. It is believed the man who jumped overboard either stowed away, or was brought on board by some of the crew when the vessel was at Karachie. It is believed the heat of the hold and the noise of the machinery crazed him.

BUFFALO LITHIA SPRINGS WATER

PHYSICIANS of the old school agree with physicians of the new school that Buffalo Lithia Springs Water has no equal as a corrective of all disorders of the Kidneys and Bladder. It is wonderfully effective in the treatment of Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, Gout, Rheumatism, Pyelitis, Cystitis, Gravel, etc. Eliminates any excess of Uric Acid in the system. It is a natural spring water bottled at the springs. Let us mail you endorsements, showing the consensus of opinion among high medical authorities.

Sold by druggist and general mineral water dealers.

Guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906. Serial No. 15055.

THE INTERBOROUGH'S OFFER.

It would seem as though the offer of the "Interborough Rapid Transit Company, by T. P. SHONTS, President," might accomplish the incredible task of starting an era of good feeling on the most important and vexed problem in the city's present and future. Its dimensions may be gauged by the fact that it contemplates an expenditure of $53,000,000 by the city against $107,000,000 by the company. It must be remembered that this sum, more than anybody except its critics dared to mention in connection with the late Triborough plan, is not calculated on the inflated basis of that ill-fated plan. Accordingly the larger expenditure named will provide proportionately a larger mileage, open to the city's use "for a single five-cent fare with free transfers." And it is provided that "work shall be begun in each borough and upon all sections at once." This includes the Brooklyn Fourth Avenue route, which even Mr. McADOO would not touch. Mr. WILLCOX has done wonders to elicit an offer such as that, and just at the time when it seemed as though all his labors had failed. Hardly second in deserving public acclaim is President SHONTS, who has at last prevailed upon his company to see and do its duty to the city. There are those who will have to turn short corners in approving this proposal. That, however, is not our concern, and whoever will may claim priority in seeing and supporting the proposition that this is the only way to get rapid transit worthy of the name.

By this time everybody is either familiar with routes, or weary of them. It needs to be said here only that the "H" system in Manhattan is completed by taking, generally speaking, the Triborough route north of Forty-second Street, and the Seventh Avenue route south of Forty-second Street. No use is made of any bridge, but there are two tunnels, one to Queens and another to Brooklyn, the Pineapple Street tunnel. The Lafayette Avenue (Brooklyn) route is followed to Broadway, and the existing subway is continued through Eastern Parkway to Buffalo Avenue. The present subway mileage is doubled. Including the third tracking and extension of the elevated lines, the capacity of the entire Interborough system is doubled. At last New York is to have an opportunity to loosen its garments and take a full breath without snapping off buttons.

Generous as are these proposals, they are rivaled in importance by the method by which they are reached and the future provided for. The bitterness against the Interborough heretofore has been that it seemed content with its profits, and would not rise to the duty those profits imposed. At last it does so. It would not be well at the threshold of this halcyon time to ask whether this result has been reached by the application of a club, or by offering suitable inducements. The fact is that the city and the Interborough have dealt at arm's length, or rather at swords' points. The Interborough proposes now an arrangement whereby similar questions regarding its duty to extend its lines may be prevented or may be settled. It proposes the immediate application of this system to the almost impossible Fourth Avenue route, and to all other routes which the city hereafter may desire built and operated. In consideration of the city's assuming deficits (if any) upon its own bonds, the Interborough will operate under an accounting system, and will divide profits equally. But the Interborough will assume deficits upon its own bonds. It is our opinion that the Interborough would contribute to such joint undertaking as much as the city, and that irrespective of such contribution it would earn whatever it received through its exempting the city from the perils of a business for which it is not fitted.

This plan both in its present proposal and in its future provisions means the substitution of regulated monopoly for the principle of competition. But those wedded to competition are not asked to take the plunge at once. The Interborough has confidence enough in its own plan to offer to provide the very best means of competition if the city hereafter thinks competition would be better. The system provided in Manhattan completes the original plan. It has a downtown leg on the west side, and an uptown leg on the east side. It is a symmetrical complement to the uptown leg on the west side, and downtown leg on the east side, in the present system. It needs only a midtown crossover, say somewhere convenient to the Pennsylvania Station, to be of itself as profitable as the existing system.

The plan contemplates the reservation to the city of an option to take over this system after ten years, at a 15 per cent. premium over cost. And the Interborough is willing that its present so-called seventy-five-year franchise shall be converted into a forty-nine-year term, sacrificing the twenty-five-year extension, beginning with the expiry of the original fifty-year term. The company is safe enough. Public opinion would never consent to deprivation of its enjoyment of universal transfers in exchange for the delights of competition.

The large profits of the Interborough, heretofore its chief offense, are now the buttress of this plan. If its credit were less it could not afford to make this liberal proposition with the same confidence of public belief in its fulfillment. The $53,000,000 which the Interborough asks the city to contribute is the amount of present subway bonds released from the city debt limit. This sum is now to be spent over again, and in due time doubtless similar deductions will be made hereafter. It is true that the Interborough absorbs approximately the available borrowing power of the city, and so far forestalls competition with the aid of the city. But there is not the least chance that the expenditure of that sum would provide a like amount of rapid transit in any other way. And the city's spending power in the future is released for other demands for the use of public funds. The idea of piecemeal construction, building each year whatever the city could spare, and starving every other use of public funds, is as dead as the Triborough route. The Interborough is, indeed, "ready to act." Now or soon let the dirt fly on all sections and in each borough.

THE STRAP AND THE STRIKERS.

What has been called a "strike" of schoolboys in Jersey City was effectually settled yesterday by one Police Sergeant, who used his leather belt as an instrument of castigation. A schoolboys' "strike" cannot be classed as an industrial disturbance. In fact it can be called a "strike" only in a humorous sense. These boys had learned that their schoolhouse was to be abandoned, and they wanted to be transferred to a particularly nice one nearby, a schoolhouse with a gymnasium and swimming tank. They are not to be blamed, perhaps, for wanting the best, but the authorities had picked out a school building for them, and yesterday, through the agency of the Sergeant's leather belt, a compromise was effected. The boys will go to the school selected by the authorities. There was no arbitration.

We rarely lack sympathy with the men who engage in industrial strikes. Their claims are often just. But when they resort to methods of enforcing their claims which, while they are obviously without influence upon the employers against whom they have grievances, yet subject to discomfort and peril a large part of the community utterly powerless to aid them, and in no way responsible for any wrongs they have suffered, we cannot help wishing that some appropriate agency could be employed to settle the trouble with them as effectually as the Police Sergeant settled the Jersey City trouble.

The streets of Manhattan are at present actually unsafe. One of the foremost livery companies refuses to send out its carriages if its customers wish to ride far to the east or west or to remain out after nightfall. The men employed by this company are not striking, but coupés and coaches owned by it have been smashed by the strikers, and the drivers threatened. Other livery companies have also been intimidated. The omnibus service on Fifth Avenue and the Riverside Drive has been crippled, and all because a few chauffeurs of taxicabs have grievances. The condition of affairs they have managed to create in this city is intolerable, and has deprived them of any share of public sympathy.

ALIENS WITH RAILWAY TICKETS.

Senator DILLINGHAM, who is Chairman of the National Immigration Commission, said in Boston, at the annual dinner of the North American Civic League for Immigrants, that over 94 per cent. of aliens landing at Ellis Island come to join friends or relatives, 99½ per cent. of them are bound for a definite address, and nearly 80 per cent. have railroad tickets in their pockets when they leave the ship. But Senator DILLINGHAM'S report, which was submitted to Congress yesterday, shows that the immigrants who possess railroad tickets go "to the centres of the great industries." They do not go to settle upon farms.

The majority of these aliens were reared on farms, and they can make the soil yield from half again to twice as much as American farmers produce. They come without money to invest in farms. They know nothing of agricultural conditions here. The inducements offered to farm laborers are not so tempting as the inducements to settle in the centres of the great industries, where money can be earned and saved, and invested in European farms, to which the thrifty immigrants return.

The European farms cost double the price of American farms. They are not more fertile. Their markets are not so eager, and their crops command a lower price. There is no American agency that actively advertises, among the 400,000 aliens who now annually return with their hundreds of millions of dollars to European countries, the superiorities of investment in American farms. If they knew them, they would invest. And they would send passage money and railroad tickets to their friends to come directly to their newly purchased farms.

THE WORK OF THE TARIFF BOARD.

It was a happy idea of Prof. EMERY, Chairman of the Tariff Board, to go out to Chicago, on the eve of the meeting of Congress, and at a dinner of the Association of Commerce practically to make his preliminary report. A very interesting report it is, and discloses the possibility of great usefulness in the board. And as to actual accomplishment, that has been quite remarkable when we consider the queer complications surrounding the creation of the board and the development of its work.

What the board has done so far is substantially to map out its system, applying it as far as possible to three schedules, paper and pulp, wool and woolens, and farm products. The first step in the system, undertaken at the express direction of President TAFT, is the compilation of what he calls a "glossary of the tariff." This is intended to supply for each item of the tariff simple information as to its nature, use, sources of supply, methods of production, statistics of production, imports and exports, and, finally, which is most important, the ad valorem equivalent of all duties. For instance, when this is completed any one can know that white fancy muslin, made by Mr. LIPPET's mills in Rhode Island, under a protective duty of 8 cents plus 2 cents plus 1 cent, really enjoys 64 per cent. protection, which is an increase of 83 per cent. upon the rate of the original Dingley tariff. Such a "glossary" will go far toward confounding some of the knavish tricks of the favorites of the tariff.

But this, of course, is but one step in the system. A more important and difficult one is the inquiry into the cost of manufacture. It has been said, and in a measure it is true, that the board cannot get at the true cost of manufacture at home and still less abroad. But Chairman EMERY believes that they can come near enough to it to make the results valuable for purposes of comparison. The task is intrusted to experts in cost accounting, who have been at work for a long time, assisted loyally in many cases by manufacturers, in planning a system that may reasonably claim confidence for the uses to which it is to be put. Prof. EMERY does not discuss the direct application of the principle of difference in cost to the tariff. But it is plain that such a system as the board is devising will aid in the application of that principle, not so much in fixing the duties that ought to be levied under it as in disclosing those that are practically condemned by it. It would not be unreasonable, even from the standpoint of the protectionists, to say that a duty should not exceed more than one-half the total cost abroad, whereas there are numerous duties in the Aldrich law that are from three to five times as much as the actual cost of manufacture abroad.

It is not to be expected that reform of the tariff will wait for the aid the board can give it in detail. Some of the worst abuses will doubtless be wiped out in a rather summary fashion, and for whatever confusion follows the extreme protectionists will solely be responsible, since they have stubbornly, openly, and secretly done all they could to defeat any change for the better. But that such work as the board is doing and can do will be of great value ultimately there is no question.

THE SILLY STAGE.

When Mr. BOOKER WASHINGTON declared, in an address in Chicago, that the Southern negro had "passed through the silly stage," he spoke as an idealist, of course, one who is determined to see the things he is interested in as he wants to see them. There is strong ground for believing that none of the nations of this earth, none of the peoples who inhabit the globe, have yet passed entirely through the "silly stage." But Mr. WASHINGTON is justified in his belief that his people in his environment are improving rapidly. If the young negro in extravagantly pointed patent leather shoes, and a gaudy waistcoat, has not entirely disappeared, (and the young white man similarly attired is certainly still in evidence,) the type so objectionable to Mr. WASHINGTON is assuredly no longer pointed out by any observant Southerner as representative of the "educated negro." The negro is getting real education, is acquiring thrift, is making appreciable progress in the industrial arts. Mr. WASHINGTON is justly proud of a race, lately enslaved, which has so greatly improved in less than half a century that the percentage of illiteracy among them has been reduced from 98 to 50; but 50 per cent. of illiteracy is large, and the problems to be overcome in effecting the education of the colored race in the United States are still formidable.

"Every race," says Mr. WASHINGTON, "has its silly stage." It is equally true that every race is subject to relapses into silliness. There is a great deal of silliness still extant. It permeates literature and art as well as politics, arrests social development, defeats benevolent intentions, and sometimes overthrows Governments. If Mr. WASHINGTON'S people had entirely and permanently overcome their natural inclination to silliness, they would be the wisest race in the world.

A HOT TIME.

During the recent campaign there was a good deal of disgust among temperate men over the heated language indulged in and the personal animosity shown, especially in this State. It was disagreeable, undoubtedly, but it was not unprecedented. One has but to glance at the diary of the venerable GIDEON WELLES, now running in The Atlantic, and especially at the extracts in the current number, dealing with the close of the impeachment trial and with the Presidential nominations of 1868, to realize that in those days passion rose to a height that makes that of our time seem hardly more than the irritability of quick-tempered children.

Imagine a Cabinet officer speaking of a colleague in the tone taken by Mr. WELLES as to Mr. STANTON:

> STANTON has executive ability, energy, and bluster. He is imperious to inferiors and abject to superiors. Wanting in sincerity, given to duplicity, and with a taste for intrigue, he has been deep in the [impeachment] conspiracy and one of the chief instigators of the outrageous proceedings by Congress, a secret opponent of the President from the commencement of his Administration. A host of puffers and toadies have ministered to his vanity, and SEWARD made himself ridiculous by lauding him as "STANTON the Divine," "Carnot of the War."

Others are not more tenderly treated: "GRANT has lost moral strength by his untruthfulness, and COLFAX is very weak and superficial." "SEYMOUR has intellect, but not courage. His nomination has been effected by duplicity, deceit, cunning management, and sharp scheming." Mr. EVARTS "can accommodate himself very readily to any party and any set of principles; views them much as he does their clients." BUTLER, of course, is "violent, cunning, unscrupulous, devilish." All the Senators who voted for conviction "are either partisan knaves, or weak, timid blockheads, the tools of knaves." It may be that these are the words of a weary old man, unwillingly retained in an intensely unpopular Administration, but they show the temper of the times and the stress of the storm through which the ship of state passed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Anonymous Letters Have Uses.

For the common assumption that all anonymous letters ought to be ignored there is, of course, a good deal of justification in the fact that they are a safe and easy means of making false accusations. Even when the charges they contain are true, the bringing of them in this particular way usually implies that the writer is seeking a personal revenge for private wrongs, real or imaginary, rather than the exposure and punishment of a sinner, as such, in the public interest. It would be going a little too far, however, to say that in no circumstances should anybody write a letter which he was unwilling to sign.

There are at least a few cases when knowledge of wrongdoing that ought to be stopped is possessed only by persons in one way or another so much in the power of the wrongdoer that the latter, either before or after he has paid the penalty of what he would call betrayal, could inflict punishment severer than anybody can reasonably be expected to invite. On the other hand, the rule of ignoring anonymous letters cannot judiciously be made an iron one, to be followed without exception. Truth is truth, regardless of its source or of the motive which leads to its presentation, and in practice, however it may be in theory, the unsigned communication has to be judged on its intrinsic merits, and with due, but not undue, regard for its suspicious origin.

Nowhere more than in newspaper offices, where anonymous letters continually arrive, are they viewed with dislike, and yet practically every newspaper prints one of them, now and then, in acquiescence with the author's expressed or implied reasons for concealing his identity, and still oftener investigations thus suggested are found to have been worth while. Not a few of the recent discoveries as to corruption in the municipal departments have resulted, it seems, from inquiries prompted by anonymous letters sent to the Commissioner of Accounts. To have paid no attention to them would have been a grave mistake, and yet it may well be that the writers of most of these letters sent them, not out of righteous indignation at the robbery of the city, but because their own further participation in the profits of such robbery had been made impossible. When thieves fall out, one of them is apt to seize a pen, and that sometimes helps good men to come into their own.

An Opportunity to Pay an Honest Debt.

Secretary MEYER in his annual report gives generous recognition to the fact—which has not been and can not be reasonably or honestly denied—that by discovering the north pole, after years of patient and arduous endeavor, ROBERT E. PEARY added to the country's credit and honor, and therefore deserves a formal and official reward such as only Congress can give. What the Secretary recommends is that the conqueror of the difficulties which so many brave men found insuperable be commissioned a Rear Admiral in the Corps of Civil Engineers, under date of April 6, 1909, the day when the great quest was achieved, and that he be retired as of that day.

Compliance with this recommendation would be, we think, justified and more than justified. On general principles, indeed, something is to be said against the practice of giving promotion within the army or navy for services or achievements outside of the performance of military duty. Especially is it objectionable to do this when the promotion prevents or delays the rise of faithful and efficient officers who have stuck to their regular work, and by doing it have earned advancement. But it was as a naval officer that PEARY went to the arctic. He had the encouragement as well as the consent of his superiors in the department, and his carefully kept observations are of practical use to the navy, it being an organization, not merely for fighting purposes, but vitally interested in the solution of hydrographic problems and those connected with astronomy as applied to navigation.

PEARY was, therefore, "on duty" while in the north, and only in a very narrow and technical sense would his promotion and retirement be a violation of the principle to which reference has been made—a principle, by the way, which has not been so carefully observed in either army or navy that rigidity in applying it to him is enforced by regard for consistency. Moreover, Congress in its representative capacity is under a special obligation to make up in part—to do so wholly would now be impossible—for the wrongs and losses inflicted upon PEARY by Dr. COOK and the amazingly credulous thousands who believed in Dr. COOK'S story long after it had been disproved. They will not make restitution, and Congress should do it for them.

Let Them, Not Make Them.

Recent inquiries have revealed that of the boys entering the University of Pennsylvania, 48 per cent. do not know how to swim, and that almost 30 per cent. of the freshmen at the College of the City of New York are ignorant of this useful and pleasant art. The average for the two institutions is 42 per cent.

So gravely is this showing viewed that it is proposed to make swimming a compulsory "course" in schools and colleges. That would be a commendable plan if it were the only way to attain the highly desirable end of making a great increase in the number of swimmers, for it is quite true that there cannot be too many of them. The fact is, however, that it is not compulsion to learn how to swim that is needed by boys, or by girls either, for that matter. Mere opportunity is usually enough. That can be provided without burdening the schools with an addition to their already too numerous tasks.

To do it is cheap and easy in the country, and not difficult, though sometimes rather expensive, in cities and large towns. With a competent instructor the ability to swim can be acquired in a few hours by boys, and even more quickly by girls, and they all ought to have a chance to learn it. They will be more, rather than less, likely to do so if the idea of privilege, not of compulsion, be emphasized.

SAVINGS BANK INTEREST.

Its Reduction from 4 Per Cent. to 3½ Per Cent. Is Again Mooted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A million and a half savings bank depositors in New York County, with savings aggregating close to a billion dollars, are anxiously awaiting the action of the Trustees of these institutions in declaring the semi-annual interest dividend rate. A hot controversy prevails as to whether it shall be 4 per cent. or 3½ per cent.

In this county there are thirty-two savings banks. Of these eight of the older and larger banks have a surplus of more than 6½ per cent. of their deposits, while the remaining twenty-four range in percentage of surplus downward to practically nothing. In the past fifteen years all but two of the savings banks authorized in the entire State have been in the metropolitan district. Naturally, these newer banks, in order to attract deposits, have been obliged to pay as high a rate as the older and larger banks having large accumulated surplus funds. This, together with their proportionately higher cost of maintenance, has made it impossible for them to acquire much surplus. Their showing has been, during the past three or four years, made all the worse by the enormous shrinkage in the value of the bonds in which a large portion of the funds of all savings banks is invested.

A smal coterie of savings bank men has for two or three years been conducting an agitation with a view to having the larger and stronger banks come down in their interest rate in order that the smaller and weaker banks might also come down and save money for their surplus account without great loss of deposits. Last December, and again last June, some of the larger banks were persuaded to lower their rate to 3½ per cent. on this account. But the small banks having, some of them, almost no surplus, in their eagerness to build up in size, adhered very generally to the old 4 per cent. rate, with the result that the reducing banks suffered heavy withdrawals of deposits, much of the money going into the very banks for whose improvement in the matter of surplus the agitators had labored.

Now the movement is again on foot to bring about a general reduction in interest rate, in the hope that the small banks will also come down, and save for their surplus fund the difference between 3½ per cent. and 4 per cent. But depositors in the larger and stronger institutions are getting tired of being told that while their moneys have been so invested as to warrant the payment of 4 per cent., only 3½ per cent. will be paid because a number of smaller and weaker banks that have come into the field cannot yet afford to pay more than that rate. Let, they say, the Superintendent of the Banking Department, who authorized these banks to open when there were already enough savings banks in this county, provide ways and means for building up their surplus, or let the Trustees who founded them, and who are generally men of large means, advance for ten to twenty years without interest the money necessary to bring their surplus fund up to a proper level. If, they claim, the older banks, having, most of them, surplus funds the interest on which alone more than pays all their running expenses, are able to pay 4 per cent., let them not fail to pay it. PRIVATE CAPITAL FOR SUBWAYS.

From The Financial Chronicle.

During the seven years since this work [the Pennsylvania station] began there has been no new subway construction, except some extension work and the McAdoo line. The subway situation is irresistibly brought to mind. To-day, that is in discussion and conference, with one journal criticising the Mayor as being all that estops the triborough scheme from movement, and the "Triborough League" angry with him because he acknowledges no pledges and insists on carefully studying before acting.

The Chronicle has refrained from discussing the claims of any particular routes, because those are in an unhappily bitter controversy, and because large as is the question of routes, the question of the basis of action is much larger and further reaching. Put aside for the moment all feeling toward corporations, and the Interborough in particular; put together three undisputed facts: the great demand for subways, the desire of private capital to meet that demand, and the certainty that private capital (if permitted) could and would carry the work through to operative readiness most speedily and most thoroughly. Then why, considered coldly, as a matter of practical business, might not the work be offered to the free capital of the world, subject, necessarily, to proof of responsibility and to making sure that no clash arose between rival constructors and no obstacle to expansion in the future became interposed?

It is promptly assumed that the city will undertake, as a matter of course, the unprofitable things, (such as ferries,) which private capital refuses; but—laying aside all heat, and all feeling, and all pulling to and fro by private interests which want work that shall come their own particular way—can any sound reason be given for dragging the city into subways when private capital is ready to supply the demand?

There is a reason, evidently; the desire which has been wrought up, by various methods, to have the city go into "business" by municipal ownership and operation. We submit that this is not a good reason. The city is already overloaded with work of its own which it cannot turn over to others, and the borrowing power now legally open to it (whether $57,000,000 or something more) is not larger than ought prudently to be held in reserve for other needs which are growing needs. While the estimated figures of increased assessable values and borrowing power which have just been put out look impressive in headlines, and may be caught up to sustain the easy contention that the city has plenty of money for all purposes, it should be noted that these figures are only an estimate for the future, and that constitutional authority to borrow is neither cash in hand nor a guaranty of [illegible] favorable terms.

ATTACKS OF SUFFRAGISTS.

Why Men Do Not Sign Their Letters Against Movement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not often that Alice Stone Blackwell gives an anti-Suffragist an opportunity to give her a straight answer. In most of her sayings she quibbles. In THE TIMES of Dec. 2, however, she says:

> During many years the opponents of woman suffrage have been diligently gathering all the adverse testimony that they could find. So far as appears by their published literature they have not found, in all our enfranchised States put together, a dozen respectable men, residents of those States, who assert over their own names and addresses that it has had any ill effects.

This is a broad statement. As a matter of fact, the great majority of men in Colorado do not like woman suffrage and when they write and tell of its failure there they always sign their letters, as did the late Gen. Palmer when he wrote: "Woman suffrage is a failure here."

If more men do not openly proclaim woman suffrage a failure it is because they know how malicious the women suffragists are in their denunciation of a man, his family and everything pertaining to his past history. Even here in the East a man has simply to express his opinion against woman suffrage and the papers are immediately filled with abuse on the part of our leading woman suffragists—one of them called ex-President Roosevelt a "tree toad" from the Carnegie platform in consequence of his saying that "he did not think woman suffrage in New York State would be expedient." ONE WHO KNOWS.

New York, Dec. 5, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To those of us who are seriously endeavoring to ascertain the truth in regard to the success or failure of the enfranchisement of women in the States where it has been tried the very conflicting testimony at our command is most perplexing. It apparently simmers down to a question of veracity on the part of the various witnesses. On the one side are the suffragists who are always willing to stake their names and reputations on their testimony; on the other side are the anti-suffragists who so rarely sign their names to such testimony as they give, so that one cannot help but wonder whether their apparent shyness may not be enhanced by an uncertainty in regard to the truthfulness of their statements.

A letter appeared in your issue of Dec. 2 by a woman who claims to have voted for nineteen years in Colorado who signs herself "A Colorado Woman." She apparently feels strongly on the subject, and for the benefit of those seeking the truth will undoubtedly be willing to give her name and address while living in Colorado so that her record as a reliable witness may be looked up.

KATHARINE HOUGHTON HEPBURN.
Hartford, Conn., Dec. 3, 1910.

A Statement from Mr. Sprague.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to correct an inadvertant slip, due to some misunderstanding, in the interview in this morning's issue on the subject of the Triborough, which as given would be an overstatement on my part and an injustice to others.

I am not responsible for all "motor construction" now used on the subways, but I believe the fact is generally accepted in the engineering profession that I first introduced the basic method of motor mounting and the system of train control now characteristic of electric train operation.

For many years, however, I have had no financial interest in either, having long ago, much to my regret, parted with my rights, nor have I any present responsibility in details of construction, which are the outcome of a long time continuous development on the part of the very able engineers of the great electrical manufacturing companies.

In passing, permit me also to say that I do not assume to represent in any way the views or intentions of the Interborough Company, as I am personally no more concerned with the fortunes of that interest than I am with the individual futures of the members of the Public Service Commission.

I am, however, intensely interested from the practical standpoint of an engineer who has on two or three previous occasions, effectively I believe for ultimate good, intervened at what seemed to me critical periods of rapid-transit development. FRANK J. SPRAGUE.

New York, Dec. 5, 1910.

Jane Austen and Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent "T. H. P.," in to-day's issue, is desirous of knowing whether women would agree with him in his opinion that Jane Austen is a good author for study in a girls' school. I heartily indorse his choice. Although the "plots" of Jane Austen's books are neither intricate nor wildly exciting, the deficiency in this respect is more than atoned for by the general interest, the gradual unfolding and development in the characters so vividly and clearly portrayed, the purity of style and language and the delicate humor to be found in all her books, especially in "Pride and Prejudice." The study of this and similar literature will surely create and foster a taste that later on will not brook the trashy stuff of which the majority of present-day novels consist.

Turn About Is Fair Play.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The barbers have applied to the Government for the suppression of the manufacture of safety razors. It is now the turn of the manufacturers of safety razors to apply for the suppression of barbers. J. P.

New York, Dec. 3, 1910.

London Says We Are Snobbish.

From Vanity Fair, (London.)

Democratic America has an undercurrent of snobbery in her services, even more marked than exists in those of the old countries. Commander Peary, of whom any nation might be proud, does not belong to what we should call in England the executive line. Therefore is his career likely to suffer from the usual jealousy, and he is being relegated to an engineering billet far from commensurate with his distinguished services. Many are the stories that could be told of the injustice done to officers in our own navy during the past thirty years—officers who have not had the good fortune to belong to what is snobbishly called the "royal" line. In his Majesty's ship Excellent, some years ago, a young engineer showed his Captain a clever invention connected with gunnery, and asked whether it could be brought before the notice of the Admiralty. It found its way to Whitehall safely enough, and was much appreciated. But any one acquainted with the service would not be surprised to hear that it was not the ingenious young engineer who gained the kudos.

AUF WIEDERSEHEN.

The dead leaves crackling underneath my feet,
The bare boughs bending on the chilly blast;
The stormy sky, sullen and overcast,
Tell me that Winter once again is here,
Summer is past.

Those days of dreamy happiness, of which
Naught now remains to me but memories,
Have slipped away as on the gentle breeze
That rocked to sleep the robins in their nests,
High in the trees.

Season of sunshine, must you leave us so?
Pause in your flight, O Time, for but one day,
One hour, ere you hasten on your way,
Grant that the Summer for this little while Longer may stay!

Was that a voice that answering seemed to say,
"Time cannot stop, wishing is all in vain,
At your command Summer cannot remain"?
No, 'twas the whistling of the wintry wind,
The drip of rain.

But still I hear it, faint and far away,
So low the words can scarcely reach my ear,
Take heart and grieve not, for the Winter drear
Must also in its turn pass on, and soon
[illegible] will be here.

COLUMBIA TRUSTEES ANNOUNCE RICH GIFTS

University Receives $186,000 in Money and Property Within Short Time.

320-ACRE FARM INCLUDED

Sum of $130,000 to Promote Relations with Germany—Dr. Hill to Lecture.

Edward D. Adams of New York and an anonymous donor have contributed the sum of $130,000 to Columbia University for the purpose of promoting the educational relations between Germany and the United States. This was made known yesterday by the Columbia Trustees, who announced gifts to the university amounting to $186,000.

Mr. Adams, who is President of the Germanistic Society, gave $30,000 to purchase and equip a "Deutsches Haus." This will contain an academic bureau of information, under the direction of Prof. Rudolf Tombo, Jr., now absent in Germany, which will work in co-operation with a similar bureau at the University of Berlin, conducted by Prof. Puszkowski.

At these bureaus of information intending students will be able to obtain all possible information regarding various institutions in Germany and the United States.

The work will be begun very soon, and the house at 421 West 117th Street has been purchased for this purpose. It will be ready for occupancy before the opening of the next academic year.

A Germanic Institute will be placed in the "Deutches Haus," under the direction of a competent scholar, with whom will be associated the Kaiser Wilhelm professor of each year. In addition, the building will contain a private apartment for the Kaiser Wilhelm professor during his term of service, and the Germanistic Society will be invited to make use of the building in connection with the Germanic Institute.

Of even greater significance is the donation of $100,000 by a person whose name was not made public, to be added to the general endowment fund of the university, the income being available for promoting the educational relations between Germany and the United States.

By the aid of this fund it will be possible for the Trustees to extend relations with other university centres in Germany, including Leipsic and Munich. Arrangements to this end are now under consideration.

With the acquisition by gift of a 320-acre farm, the establishment of a Columbia Agricultural School is assured. This farm, valued at $15,000, will be used as an experimental institution in connection with instruction in agricultural engineering. It was said at the university last night that the development of the farm will be undertaken at the close of the present Winter.

Other gifts made public by the trustees were: $20,000 from an anonymous donor to the endowment fund of the Avery Architectural Library, increasing that fund to $50,000; $20,000 from the estate of the late Caroline Phelps Stokes to form a permanent fund, the interest of which is to meet the cost of lectures; and $1,000 from anonymous donors to be devoted to the payment of salaries in the Department of Music.

It was announced yesterday that Hon. David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador to Berlin, had been appointed lecturer on the Carpentier Foundation for 1910-11. It is expected that Dr. Hill will deliver his lectures during April, 1911. His subject will be "The Political Organization of the World." The Carpentier Lectures for 1911-12 will be given in October and November, 1911, by Sir Frederick Pollock, the English Common Law authority. His subject will be "The Genius of the Common Law."

To succeed Professor John G. Curtis, retired June 30, 1909, Frederick S. Lee, now Professor of Physiology, was appointed head of the Department of Physiology. Walter Henry Hall was appointed Conductor of the University Chorus. He will devote himself to the development of a large university chorus that will from time to time give public recitals.

LOW PRICES FOR ETCHINGS.

A Haden Sold for $6—Durer's "Melancholia" Brings $225.

Etchings went for a song and dealers were the chief purchasers at the sale of the first half of the collection of Dr. Charles Hitchcock at the American Art Galleries last evening. The prices ranged from $1 for a lot of etchings from five or six to a dozen in the lot up to $240, the highest price of the evening, paid by Keppel for a fine Seymour Haden. This last was the large plate of the "Shere Mill Pond," second state, a signed artist's proof on Holland paper, from the Ellingwood collection. It was started at $200, the second bid being $225. Kennedy, another dealer, gave $160 for another Haden, "A Sunset in Ireland," second state, fine impression with a slight reparation. The Keppels bought a number of the Hadens. Some of these went low. One of the Haden etchings, a small plate proof, unsigned, on Chinese paper, sold for $6.

A Dürer brought the next highest price of the evening, "Melancholia," dated 1514, going to Keppel for $225. "St. Hubert," by Dürer, brought $190, and "Peasants at Market," a clear print, dated 1512, and slightly repaired in one corner, brought as low as $11. Robert Scoville paid $100 for "Portrait of Erasmus of Rotterdam" and $60 for "The Virgin Crowned by Two Angels," and Keppel gave $100 for "The Virgin with the Monkey."

"Environs of Rome," J. B. C. Corot, proof on Japan paper, brought $17. "Les Grandes Chaumieres," Buhot, sold for $12. "Piazza San Marco," Canaletto, $12, and Keppel bought Daubigny's "Sunrise," "The Marsh with Storks," and "Springtime" for respectively $10, $15, and $11. "Mme. Recamier," signed artist's proof on India paper, gold frame, went to Keppel for $7.50, and a very large engraving by Giovita Garavaglia, "Jacob and Rachel," mentioned as being one of the artist's six best works, framed in black and gold, with difficulty found a purchaser at $1. Rembrandt and Whistler will be represented in to-night's sale at 8:30. The total for last night's sale was $2,120.

W. A. CLARK PRIZES AWARDED

First of $2,000, with Corcoran Gold Medal, to Edmund C. Tarbell.

The William A. Clark Prizes at the Corcoran Exhibition of Contemporary American Oil Paintings have been awarded as follows: The first prize of $2,000 has gone to Edmund C. Tarbell for his picture entitled "Interior." This prize is accompanied by the Corcoran Gold Medal. The second prize of $1,500, accompanied by the Corcoran Silver Medal, has gone to Gari Melchers for his picture "Penelope." The third prize of $1,000, with the bronze medal, was awarded to Childe Hassam's "Springtime," and the fourth prize of $500, with honorable mention, to Daniel Garber's "April Landscape."

The first three of these successful competitors are much bemedaled artists and have been for many years familiar to exhibition visitors. Mr. Garber has more recently established his claim to public attention, but for the last [illegible]

MUSICAL MORNING DRAWS GREAT CROWD

MELBA ILL, FARRAR SINGS

Organ Sonata by Gaston Dethies, 'Cello Playing by Boris Hambourg Instrumental Features of the Programme.

The large ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria was crowded yesterday morning at Mr. Bagby's 181st Musical Morning, every bit of floor space was taken, and a number were standing against the walls before the concert was half over. These musical mornings were started twenty years ago in Mr. Bagby's studio.

Mme. Melba, who was scheduled for yesterday's concert, arrived in New York Sunday night ill, and was unable to take part, so that on a notice of only a few hours the programme was changed very materially, Miss Farrar taking Mme. Melba's place and M. Clement being added. The new organ, recently installed in the ballroom, was another feature of the morning.

An organ sonata, in the style of Haendel, by Wolstenholme, was played by Gaston Dethier, and followed by Edmond Clement singing a rondel by Dubois and Bemberg's "Il Neige." Miss Farrar then sang Mozart's "Batti," and Boris Hambourg, 'cellist, played a cantabile by Cui and "Petite Valse," by Victor Herbert. Miss Farrar and M. Clement then did Massenet's duet from "Manon." Mr. Hambourg then rendered Schumann's Andante Op. 129, Saint-Saens's "The Swan," and Popper's "Spinning Song." Miss Farrar followed with Massenet's "Ouvre tes Yeux Bleus," McDowell's "The Blue Bell," and Bemberg's "Aime-Moi." Mr. Clement sang Massenet's "Pensee d'Automne," and Pessard's "L'Adieu du Matin," and Miss Farrar and Mr. Clement sang the duet from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet." Miss Farrar also sang a Scotch song as one of her encores.

The attendance was a fashionable one, and among those at the concert were Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, Mrs. Frederick C. Penfield, Mrs. Frederick Pearson, Mrs. C. D. Stickney, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. J. E. Parsons, Mrs. William Grosvenor, Mrs. J. J. Emery, Mrs. L. J. FAIR FOR A DAY NURSERY.

Tea, Toys, and Folk Dances at Waldorf to Help Bloomingdale Babies.

A fair will be held at the Waldorf on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 14 for the benefit of the Bloomingdale Day Nursery in West Ninety-ninth Street. The entertainment is under the management of the women of the Bloomingdale Day Nursery Association, the officers of which are Mrs. Thomas Dimond, President; Mrs. George C. Pennell, Mrs. Eugene Frayer, Mrs. William Gordon Verplanck, Mrs. Valentine Schuyler, and Mrs. Howard L. Hildebrandt.

There will be dolls, toys and Christmas novelties for sale, and a picturesque "grab bag" feature called the Mouse and the Cheese—the mouse being a small boy dressed for the part. To the usual charity fair features will be added also folk-dances by Miss Marguerite Verplanck, Miss Dorothy Fenn, Miss Blanche Lavo, Miss Gwendolin Despard, Miss Katharine Wodell, Miss Marjorie Baird, Miss Nichols and Miss McRae. Tea and ices will be served.

The purpose of the fair is to get funds to continue and extend the usefulness of the Bloomingdale Day Nursery, which is maintained by the association to give proper care to the children of mothers who have to go out to work. The nursery at 154 West Ninety-ninth Street is now filled every day with babies, while each day many more babies are turned away for lack of space and means.

Miss Anita Merle Smith's Debut.

Mrs. Wilton Merle Smith introduced her second daughter, Miss Anita Merle Smith, at a tea yesterday at 29 West Fifty-fourth Street. Mrs. Smith and the débutante, in white satin and chiffon, had assisting them at the reception the Misses Marjorie Sturgis, Aileen Osborn, Sara McAlpin Pyle, Helen Auerbach, Julia Dick, Lydia Butler, Mary Edgar, Alice Damrosch, and Susan Colgate. HORACE H. BROCKWAY DEAD.

For Forty Years Proprietor of the Ashland House in Fourth Avenue.

Horace H. Brockway, 74 years old, for forty years proprietor of the old Ashland House, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, which was torn down a year ago, died yesterday at the Park Avenue Hotel after a lingering illness. For half a century Mr. Brockway was a prominent figure among the hotel men of the country. His first experience was in Cleveland, Ohio. About forty-five years ago he became manager of the old Broadway Central in this city. Five years later he purchased what was then known as Ashland Farm, in Fourth Avenue, and opened the Ashland House.

Every morning Mr. Brockway went to one of the big markets and personally made all the purchases of food for his hotel. To this he attributed his success and the fame that the old Ashland House gained.

Mr. Brockway was made a Mason in Cleveland City Lodge No. 15 in 1865. Upon his arrival in New York he affiliated with Republic Lodge No. 690 and Phoenix Chapter No. 2. In 1886 he became a member of Kane Lodge No. 404. He was a member of Palestine Commandery No. 18, of Adelphic Council No. 7, and all the Scottish Rite bodies up to and including the thirty-second degree, and for many years President of the Knights Temipar Mutual Association.

Mr. Brockway was a Director of the Mutual Reserve at the time of its investigation by the Armstrong committee in 1907, and immediately sent in his resignation. He testified before the committee.

He was born Nov. 24, 1836, at Sutton, N. H. He married Mrs. A. A. Pillsbury of that place, who, with one son, Horace H. Brockway, Jr., survives. Mr. Brockway was for several terms President of the Hotel Mutual Benefit Association, Treasurer and Trustee of the Garfield Safe Deposit Company, a Director of the Apollinaris Agency Company, one of the founders of the Hoboken Turtle Club, a member of the Lotos Club, and for many years Quartermaster of the Old Guard. He was at one time a Vice President of the United States Hotel Association and Chairman of the legislative committee of the New York State Hotel Association.

Mr. Brockway was a great lover of horses and had owned three of the fastest trotters in this section. One of them, Jack Cutler, had a record of 2:09.

Miss Anna Clements Introduced.

Mrs. George H. Clements gave a coming-out reception yesterday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Anna H. Clements, at her residence, 27 West Sixty-seventh Street. Mrs. Clements, in a yellow gown, and the débutante, in white chiffon and valenciennes lace, had receiving with them the Misses Frances Wendell, Isabel Baird, Dorothy Warren of Flushing, Susette Long of Boston, and Mary Ware of Boston, Mrs. Boudinot Keith, Miss Pauline Prevost, Miss Roberta Colgate, and Miss Eleanor Jacobs.

TETRAZZINI WINS OVER HAMMERSTEIN

Court Allows Her to Sing for Manager Leahy, but She Must Deposit $1,250 Each Time.

BOTH SIDES ARE PLEASED

Hammerstein Gets the Money and Is Relieved of Troubles of Management Leahy's Lawyer Jubilant.

Judge Lacombe settled the Tetrazzini-Hammerstein controversy yesterday morning. The singer is to be allowed to sing in concert under the management of W. H. Leahy of San Francisco, but for every performance that she sings she must deposit $1,250 in bank pending the settlement of the case.

Both sides yesterday regarded this verdict as favorable, which is a triumph for any Judge to have achieved.

"I am to get $1,250 every time Mme. Tetrazzini sings and not have any trouble about managing her," said Mr. Hammerstein. "I consider it a remarkable decision."

Benjamin F. Spellmann, the attorney for Mme. Tetrazzini, said: "The decision is a victory. It means that Luisa Tetrazzini is not forced to sing under Hammerstein's management. We will gladly comply with Justice Lacombe's suggestion that Mme. Tetrazzini deposit one-half of her earnings with a trust company in this city, pending the end of the suit."

The decision, in part, follows: "If complainant were granted preliminary injunction precisely as prayed for, he would practically be securing judgment in advance of trial, and meantime defendant would be exposed to the payment of such heavy damages for the breach of her contract with Mr. Leahy that even if she should finally prevail in this suit she might be a loser. On the other hand, if complainant were refused all injunctive relief and relegated solely to his claim for damages for breach of contract he might, if ultimately successful, find himself with a judgment which he could not collect, since defendant is a bird of passage and may not be here when the case, probably many months hence, is decided. In view of all these circumstances it seems the most equitable course to dispose of this motion as follows:

"Complainant may take an injunction as prayed in the bill, unless defendant shall stipulate that one-half of all moneys received under the Leahy contract shall forthwith, upon receipt, be deposited in an interest bearing fund in some trust company in this city, to await the final disposition of this suit. If the parties cannot agree upon a trust company this court will select one. Defendant shall file monthly sworn statements of moneys received under that contract.

"In the event of the failure by the defendant to file any statement or to deposit any such money the court will entertain an application by complainant to modify the provisions of this order. In the event of complainant's unreasonably delaying to prosecute this case to final hearing the court will entertain a similar application by defendant."

As Mme. Tetrazini is stated to receive from W. H. Leahy $2,500 a performance, one-half that amount she will be forced to deposit in some bank in Mr. Hammerstein's favor, pending a final settlement.

ANDREAS DIPPEL HERE.

Director Says Chicago Opera Is Now Assured a Definite Existence.

Andreas Dippel, the director of the Chicago Opera Company, arrived in New York yesterday for a few days' stay.

"I have come here for two reasons," said Mr. Dippel to a reporter for THE TIMES, "to meet my wife, who arrives from Europe to-morrow, and to arrange a definite répertoire for the appearance of the Chicago company here in the Winter.

"The Chicago company is now assured a definite existence. We have been doing much better than was expected. We have had success with our singers and with our operas.

"To-morrow night we put on 'Thais'; next week 'Les Contes d'Hoffman,' the week after 'The Girl of the Golden West'; 'Les Jongleurs de Notre Dame' follows that. Some time during the Chicago season Miss Garden will sing 'Carmen.'

"She found that she had altogether too much to do to appear in 'The Girl of the Golden West,' and so we have given that part to Carolina White, a young American signer who looks very much like an Italian and who has made a very great success. Miss Garden will sing in 'Natoma,' however, when that work is presented in Philadelphia.

"We decided to take 'Salome' off without any discussion about the matter after two performances. There seemed to be a distinct feeling against it in some quarters, and that is exactly what we did not want—any feeling. We wish to give the Chicago people what they want. However, we will present 'Salome' in Milwaukee next Friday night.

"The rest of the season is an assured success. We have guarantees in all the cities in which we are going to appear. I feel sure that the Metropolitan will be sold out during every performance which we give here."

"Aida" Repeated at the Metropolitan.

"Aida" was repeated last night at the Metropolitan Opera House with the same cast which had appeared in the work before this season, with the exception of Mrs. Rappold, who sang the title part. Mrs. Homer and Messrs. Caruso and Amato sang the other principal rôles, while Mr. Toscanini conducted.

Gov. White Unable to Dine with Taft.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Owing to important engagements in New York, Gov. and Mrs. White have been compelled to decline an invitation from President and Mrs. Taft to dine at the White House on Dec. 15.

Gov. and Mrs. White will entertain at dinner at the Executive Mansion to-morrow night in honor of the Judges of the Court of Appeals and their wives. Gov.-elect and Mrs. John A. Dix will attend. Former Chief Judges Charles Andrews and Alton B. Parker, with their wives, will be special guests.

LAZARUS KOHNS'S FUNERAL.

Trustees of Temple Beth-El Among Pallbearers for Retired Merchant.

The funeral of Lazarus Kohns, a former member of the firm of L. Straus & Sons, who died on Saturday, was held yesterday from the Temple Beth-El, Seventy-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue. The Trustees of the Temple and the oldest employes of the mercantile firm with which Mr. Kohns was so long connected acted as pallbearers.

Mr. Kohns was born in 1824 in the village of Giebelstadt, near the City of Wuerzburg, in lower Franconia, Bavaria. He came to the United States in 1847, and began his first mercantile ventures in Wilkesbarre and Tunkhannock, Penn. When he took up his residence in New York he joined the crack cavalry troop, the Washington Grays, which subsequently became merged in the Eighth Regiment, N. G. N. Y.

Before the war he established himself at Auburn, Ala., and at Columbus, Ga., where he remained until 1865. In 1863 he married the daughter of Lazarus Straus, who became the founder of the firm of L. Straus & Sons, which is allied with the firms of R. H. Macy & Co. and Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn. In 1866 Mr. Kohns started in the dry goods commission business in this city, and in 1871 became identified with the Straus firm. He became one of the firm's partners in 1873, and remained in active association with it until his retirement, in 1897. He remained in close touch with the firm, however, until he was stricken with his fatal illness last May.

For years Mr. Kohns was Vice President of the Temple Beth-El, and was connected with many charitable enterprises. He is survived by his wife, a son, Lee Kohns, and a daughter, Mrs. Edmund E. Wise. He was one of the founders of the Hardware Club, and since 1891 a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the Reform Club, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and a number of other organizations.

DIES IN EDEN MUSEE STUDIO.

Constance Thys, Designer, Stricken While Working on Wax Santa Claus.

Constance Thys, designer and maker of most of the wax figures at the Eden Musée, in West Twenty-third Street, died suddenly of heart disease in his studio at the Musée yesterday. At the time he was working on a group called "Christmas," a huge wax Santa Claus, surrounded by figures representing every country in the world. Among his best-known wax reproductions are those of Col. Roosevelt, the late President McKinley, Queen Victoria, and the late King Edward.

Two of Thys's assistants, Marie Jaeger and Frederick Dannell, were in an adjoining room when they heard him fall, and ran to his assistance. A call was sent to the New York Hospital, and Dr. Cowan, who responded, said Thys was dead.

Thys was 56 years old and came to this country from Belgium forty-six years ago. He had been engaged by the Musée for more than twenty years. He lived at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., and was a member of the Board of Education of that place and a prominent member of the Royal Arcanum. He is survived by a widow, three sons, and a daughter.

Lewis H. Hershfield.

Lewis H. Hershfield, who became prominent in connection with the financing of the World's Fair in Chicago, and for many years had been identified with finance and politics in Montana, died Sunday in his home at 265 Central Park West of Bright's disease. He was 74 years old. Born in Utica, N. Y., in 1836, Mr. Hershfield attended Hamilton College, where he was graduated in 1860. He immediately went West to seek his fortune. He settled at Helena, Mon., and opened the first bank in the then Territory. It is to-day known as the Union Trust Company. For twenty years he was Chairman of the Republican State Committee. After Montana's admission to Statehood, he was Chairman of the State Constitutional Assembly, and did much to advance the financial interests of the young State. He was appointed National Commissioner and Chairman of the Chicago World's Fair. For many years Mr. Hershfield was President of the Yellowstone National Park Railroad and Transportation Company, but advancing years necessitated his retirement from business, and in 1897 he came to New York with his family. He is survived by a widow and four children, Henry G. and Lewis H. Hershfield, and Mrs. J. Lester Lewine and Mrs. Guy Wallace Levy.

Dr. Christian A. Herter.

Dr. Christian A. Herter, Professor of Pharmacology and Therapeutics at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home, 819 Madison Avenue. He was the author of many works on medical subjects, and devoted much of his time to research in the field of clinical pathology. Prof. Herter was born in Glanville, Conn., in 1865. He was graduated from Columbia Medical College in 1886. Following his connection with Bellevue Hospital, Dr. Herter in 1903 became a member of the Columbia Faculty.

Wealthy Woman Hermit Found Dead.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Dec. 5.—Miss Emily Williams, who for years had lived the life of a hermit, was found dead in her home yesterday, sitting upright on an old sofa. She was 70 years old, and had been known locally as "Old Maid Williams." She had probably been dead two days. She was reputed to have wealth to the extent of about $40,000. One of her habits was to carry concealed about her person a package of bankbooks, but these books have not been found though searched for.

Isaac Stern's Funeral To-morrow.

The funeral of Isaac Stern, who died at his apartments in the St. Regis Hotel early yesterday morning, will be held at 9:30 to-morrow morning at the Temple Emanu-El, Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue. The interment will be private. Former employes of Mr. Stern and representatives of the many charitable organizations in which Mr. Stern was interested will attend the funeral. All the details of the funeral have not been completed.

Obituary Notes.

Mgr. JOHN A. OSTER, who was ordained a priest by Bishop Cretin, the first Bishop of the Diocese of St. Paul, Dec. 13, 1856, died in St. Paul, Minn., yesterday. He was 76 years of age.

DUKE OF CHARTRES DEAD.

Grandson of King Louis Philippe Served in Union Army in Civil War.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The Duke of Chartres, a grandson of King Louis Philippe of France, died to-day. He was born in this city in 1840.

Robert-Philippe-Louis-Eugene-Ferdinand of Orleans, the Duke of Chartres, was the youngest son of the late Duke of Orleans, and in childhood was driven into exile by the French Revolution. He was reared in Eisenach, Germany, and afterward joined his family in England. He served in the Italian Army in 1859 and in the Federal Army in the first campaign of the American civil war.

Following the revolution of 1870 he returned to France and served incognito in Gen. Chanzy's army. He married Francoise Marie Amelia of Orleans, eldest daughter of the Prince de Joinville. They had two sons and two daughters, one of the sons being the explorer Prince Henri d'Orleans.

STERN.—THE MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mount Sinai Hospital, held on Dec. 5, 1910, the announcement having been made of the death of Isaac Stern, the President of the hospital, and for many years actively devoted to its service as Director and Vice President, it was resolved to record upon the minutes of the institution this sentiment of his colleagues:

Isaac Stern, our President, who has been taken from among us while in the full exercise of his powers, had served this institution faithfully and well for more than a score of years. His untiring devotion and ceaseless thought were given to the upbuilding of the hospital and to the care and comfort of its patients.

As Chairman of the Building Committee he gave unsparingly of himself and was largely instrumental in rearing the magnificent edifice which will ever be a monument to his unselfish zeal.

His death is a blow to the hospital no less severe than sudden, and we, his colleagues, feel a deep sense of personal loss at being deprived of his sound advice and counsel.

To the members of the bereaved family, whose loss is so much greater than ours, we extend our deepfelt sympathy and the assurance that the name of Isaac Stern will forever live in the institution which he so dearly loved.

As a further mark of respect it was resolved that the Board of Directors attend the funeral in a body and that the flag of the hospital be placed at half mast for a period of thirty days.

PHILIP J. GOODHART, Vice President.
EDGAR A. HELLMAN, Secretary.

The members of the Mount Sinai Hospital are invited to attend the funeral of the late Isaac Stern on Wednesday morning, Dec. 7, at half-past nine o'clock at Temple Emanu-El.

STERN.—THE MOUNT SINAI TRAINING SCHOOL.—At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mount Sinai Training School for Nurses, held on Dec. 5, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We have learned with deep sorrow of the passing away of our esteemed and beloved friend and colleague, Mr. Isaac Stern, who had served this institution from 1894 to 1898 as President, and since then as one of its Directors, and

Whereas, We desire to record our appreciation of him and his services to our institution; it is therefore

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the death of one who had always manifested a deep interest in the welfare of this institution, and we extend our heartfelt sympathy and condolence to his bereaved family, who have lost a devoted husband and father, the Directors of the Mount Sinai Hospital a wise, indefatigable presiding officer and co-worker, and the patients a tender and generous sympathizer.

Resolved, That this board attend the funeral in a body; that these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, and that a copy thereof be transmitted to the bereaved family.

KALMAN HAAS, President.
LOUIS AUERBACH, Secretary.

STERN.—Ladies' Auxiliary Society of Mount Sinai Hospital. The officers, Directoresses, and members are respectfully requested to attend the funeral of the late Isaac Stern, President of Mount Sinai Hospital, which will be held at the Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and 43d Street, on Wednesday morning, December 7, at half-past nine o'clock.

Mrs. M. H. MOSES, President.

Rutt-Stol	558	7
Georget-Pouchois	558	7
West-Demara	558	7

The former record, 553 miles 9 laps, made by Root and Fogler in 1909.

Pedaling around the saucer-shaped track at a speed which distanced all previous figures from the eighth hour, fourteen of the fifteen teams which started on the 142-hour grind Monday at 12:01 A. M. completed the busiest twenty-four hours on the six-day calendar at midnight. They had been hitting up the hardest kind of a pace since the early morning and were rewarded with seventeen new records—from the eighth to the twenty-fourth hour, inclusive. There was no leader in that field of fourteen, as all had been on even terms from 8 o'clock, when Germain and Verlinden had left the track after trailing behind the other teams for three hours. The other teams to a man seemed thoroughly at home in the midst of the hottest sprint, and none of them even threatened to fall behind at any stage of the race. It seemed to be the aim of Jackie Clarke and Walter Rutt, veterans at the game and sterling pace setters, to hit up a clip which would wear out some of the less rugged performers, but the plan failed completely during the twenty-four hours save for the enforced retirement of the French-Belgian team.

Throughout the evening Clarke and Rutt took turns at leading the procession of riders around the black mark, and to these may be given credit for the ever-increasing figure over previous records. At 6 o'clock the field was 2.5 miles ahead of the best previous figure for eighteen hours. At 7 o'clock they were 3.2 miles ahead, at 8 o'clock they had made the difference 3.5 miles, and at 9 o'clock the riders were 5.4 miles ahead. They dropped back to 4.7 miles, the figures being 481.4 miles against 476.7 miles, made by Anderson and Vanoni a year ago.

At 10:25 o'clock Eddie Root started a sprint which brought out the hottest pace so far shown. Relieving his partner he shot to the front, with Rutt in close pursuit, and for three laps the chase was continued until Bobby Walthour, turning onto the Madison Avenue side of the track, suffered a loose tire and went down. The bell rang for the first time since the race began, announcing that no laps could be gained, and the pace died down. As soon as the field was again complete the Root-Moran team started another sprint, which was carried on while the field covered half a mile. But there was no weakening by any of the riders and nothing was gained.

The crowd, while not up to the opening night, comfortably filled the Garden all evening. The gallery seats were crowded early, and the reserved section was well filled. Within the track the crowd was always large. The attendance during the day was fully up to that of the opening days in previous years. More than 5,000 remained in the Garden from the start at midnight Sunday until yesterday morning. The usual number of sleepers could be seen last evening. It was a hard day for the "boarders," as the record-breaking pace kept up the excitement all day and left little quietness during which sleep could be had.

In spite of the grueling pace, the teams were holding up remarkably well. In no previous six-day race has the entire field proved itself so capable of following all kinds of pace, and it is generally predicted that the high figure of 2,737.1 miles, made by MacFarland and Moran in 1908, will be passed this year. Practically all the record holders are competing in this year's race, and are usually in the front during the sprints. Clarke seems to be the most consistent leader, and one of the French pair, Georget and Pouchois, can usually be found at the end of the procession.

Records began to go under early in the morning, and there was no let-up. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning the entire field of fifteen starters were about three miles behind the figures hung up by De Mara and Hill a year ago. The sprint, started by Georget and later taken up by Clarke and Root, soon began to pull the riders near the 1909 figures, and an hour later they had reached 141 miles, which is three laps ahead of last year's mark for the sixth hour. It was, however, two laps behind the figures established by the Bedell brothers in 1902. During the next hour the fast work was kept up, and the 7 o'clock score just equaled the record for the first seven hours, 163.5 miles, made by De Mara and Hill two years ago.

More sprinting between 7 and 8 o'clock kept the riders up to the record, and less than a minute before 8 o'clock the record had been passed. Goullet of the Kangaroo team, led the field at the end of the eighth hour with a score of 185.5 miles. This is one lap ahead of the figure established by MacFarland and Moran in 1908. At the end of the ninth hour the advantage had been increased to one mile and one lap, and at 10 o'clock the riders were one mile and seven laps ahead of the best previous figures. At 11 o'clock the fourteen teams were three miles and four laps ahead of the 1908 figure hung up by Logan and Downey, but in the next hour the pace slowed considerably, and at noon the riders were only one mile and one lap ahead of the record.

During the first hour of the afternoon the riders dropped back to within six laps of the record, but more fast work by the pacemakers between 1 and 2 o'clock sent them two miles and eight laps ahead of the previous record, 312.4 miles, mad by MacFarland and Clarke last year. At 3 o'clock they had fallen back considerably, the figures showing 335.7, against 334.4 miles by Pye and Hehir last year. At 4 o'clock the field, led by Clarke, was only four laps ahead of last year's mark, and then came another hour of fast riding, which added another mile to the lead by 5 o'clock. The figures for eighteen hours, up to 6 o'clock last evening, showed the fourteen teams on even terms at 398.2 miles. The best previous figure was 395.7 miles, made by Pye and Hehir last year.

The first break in the field of fifteen teams occurred yesterday morning at 8:06 o'clock, when Germain and Verlinden, the French-Belgian team, was ruled out of the race, having lost fourteen laps. This team had led at the first mile and also at the one hundredth mile, besides furnishing most of the excitement in the early minutes of the race. A sprint, started by Georget at 5:15 o'clock, cost the team one lap, and two more were added before 6 o'clock. Between 6 and 7 o'clock seven more laps were gained by the field against this team, and the remaining four were collected during the next hour. Germain worked hard, but his partner did not do his share. At 12:06 both men were officially declared out of the race, the allotted four hours allowed for reteaming having expired.

The first eighteen hours of the race, while productive of new figures, were not marked by any sustained sprint. The spurts started by Georget, Rutt, and Clarke between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning were the most exciting, but none lasted more than two minutes. During the day there were occasional bursts of speed, but they were short lived. In spite of the speed there were no spills in the first eighteen hours except that of Hehir in the second mile. The scorer's bell was not sounded once. All the riders appear to be in first-class condition except Lawrence of the Wiley-Lawrence combination, who appears very drawn. Georget of the French team is doing most of the riding for his team on account of the inexperience of his partner, Pouchois, who has not figured in any of the previous six-day events. The management is having difficulty making the teams live up to the regulations regarding the colors they are to wear during the long grind.

Our Christmas ship has come in!

Our LEATHER GOODS and NOVELTIES Dept. is a very well grown youngster for a two-year-old.

We started last year with quite a generous stock selected by an expert we sent abroad, and representing the newest ideas of England, France and Germany in leather goods and metal novelties for man's personal comfort at home, for travelling, motoring, his office desk, or bridge prizes.

Just a few of a kind.

The unusual character of the collection—and the very moderate prices, did the trick.

The stock which we had expected to be ample for all the first year was practically sold out in the month before Christmas.

So this year we sent our buyer abroad early—told him to buy three times as much as last year.

Provided he could find that much of the right sort of things.

He did.

Among our hundreds of useful and unusual gifts for men must be something for every one of those men who already have everything they want and are a headachy puzzle to the good ladies of their families.

A postal request will bring you a list of suggestions.

NEW AUTO ASSOCIATION.

Independent Motor Car Manufacturers Will Organize Next Week.

The National Association of Motor Car Manufacturers, comprising the major portion of nearly 150 independent automobile makers, will be permanently organized during the coming week. A temporary organization was effected at the Belmont Hotel in November. No announcement was made at that time because details were not then perfected.

Since the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association was disrupted, by reason of several members joining the so-called licensed association, the independents have had no organization. But for the individual efforts of several prominent independent manufacturers, there would have been no auto show in Grand Central Palace Dec. 31 to Jan. 7. Part of the plan is to take over the management of this annual motor car exposition as well as to foster independent trade bodies and run other shows in the larger cities for the benefit of local independent dealers.

The independents, who have been working alone for the last year, are enthusiastic over the prospects of an organization to protect their interests. An "open door" policy is the keynote of the new body; any reputable maker of motor cars being eligible to membership.

Aero Club for Hackensack.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—The Aero Club of New Jersey, with headquarters at Hackensack, was incorporated by the Secretary of State to-day. One of the trustees and incorporators is Harry P. Ward, Speaker of the Assembly. The objects of the new company will be to qualify aeronautic pilots, promote aviation meets, conduct aviation schools, and generally to advance the science of aviation. As it will not engage in the manufacturing branch, it has no capital stock. The other incorporators and trustees are William M. Jacobus, James King Duffy, Augustus Post, M. R. Brinkman, Theodore Poettger, William P. Eager, Alfred Morrell, and Wendel J. Wright.

Navy Gymnastics and Wrestling.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 5.—On Feb. 11 the Naval Academy and Yale will meet in a joint gymnastic and wrestling tournament at Annapolis, and a week later the midshipmen will compete in the same sports against the representatives of the University of Pennsylvania. The "gym" team loses several of its last year's men, but a great deal is expected of the wrestling team, which loses but one man. Notable additions to the wrestlers are Brown and Gilchrist, the fourth classmen who did good work on the football team. Brown weighs 206 pounds and will supply a long-felt want in the navy team, as they never have had a man the equal in weight of the heavyweight representatives of the larger instiutions.

Baltusrol G. C. Governors.

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Dec. 5.—The Baltusrol Golf Club has re-elected sixteen of its Board of Governors for another year. The only one to retire is Charles B. Beckwith, who is succeeded by Jose V. Onativia, Jr. Mr. Beckwith did not wish to be a member for another year. The other members of the board are Louis P. Bayard, Sr., Louis Keller, Frederick E. Walker, J. Edgar Bull, A. Fridge Riach, Harold W. Hack, Thomas C. Enniver, Adolphe de Barry, Samuel P. Davidge, William Fellowes Morgan, Parker W. Page, Thomas Reid, George W. Rogers, William Palmer Smith, Louis P. Bayard, Jr., Cornelius J. Sullivan, and Edward G. Thompson. Officers will be elected in January.

Annual Meeting of Brooklyn Y. C.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Brooklyn Yacht Club will be held at the Hotel Knickerbocker to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. A number of amendments to the constitution will be acted upon, and a luncheon will be served after the meeting. The Nominating Committee has chosen the following list of officers: Commodore—William Randolph Hearst; Vice Commodore—Conrad V. Dykeman; Treasurer—Willard Graham; Secretary—John G. Faist; Measurer—Edson B. Schock; Trustees for three years—William C. Towen, Daniel A. Hawkins, and Charles I. McLaughlin; Trustee for one year—Frank A. Fox; Regatta Committee—Peter Bentley, Harvey B. Griffin, and Daniel J. Toffey; Membership Committee—Curtis Bell, [illegible] Mills, and Edward J. Steiner; Nominating Committee—William H. Fleming, Charles E. [illegible], and William A. [illegible].

CALIFORNIA BOXER GETS HARD BEATING

Tommy Houck Takes the Measure of Jimmy Carroll at the Olympic A. C.

Not even with the advice of Champion Abe Attell was Jimmy Carroll of California able to win from Tommy Houck of Philadelphia, but, on the contrary, he was badly beaten by the Philadelphian in the star bout of ten rounds last night at the Olympic A. C.

Carroll comes from the West with a reputation of winning over every boy who is willing to mix matters with him, but he met his match in his first appearance in the East. Attell sat through the preliminary contests, which were excellent, but when it came time for the final number he drew up close to the corner occupied by the Californian and gave him advice, which the spectators thought would surely carry Houck's opponent to victory. But it all went for naught.

In the first round Houck was certainly bewildered at the way Carroll worked his left jab, and on one occasion he rocked Tommy's head with a hard blow, but Houck went along calmly and fought on the defensive for the balance of the round. The work of Carroll easily entitled him to the round. Houck was exceptionally slow in getting started, and it looked to many as though he was out of condition or was afraid of Carroll, as he did not mix as freely as he usually does. He gradually found his bearings in the second round, and after the first few seconds of fighting he came back strong and exchanged blow for blow, getting over some hard blows to the body, while the best Carroll did was to jab. This work entitled the Quaker to an even round.

Carroll again took the upper hand in the third session and danced all around the ring, landing plenty of long straight jabs which had Houck at sea, as in the opening round, but when the Philadelphian got to close quarters he more than made up for lost time by beating Carroll hard, which the native son plainly showed that he did not like, but with all his infighting Houck was unable to score any real blows at long range, and Carroll mastered him in this round. In the next round both men fought well and met each other at all stages, with the result that the whole house was in an uproar as each scored. The round was exciting at all times, and ended on even terms, but this was the end of Carroll. Houck, who always shows strong as he goes along, came to himself, and from the fifth to the final round, with the exception of the seventh and last, which resulted in a draw, he completely outfought the Californian and beat him to a standstill.

In the sixth round Houck came out of his corner and was soon on top of Carroll, beating away at his body in whirlwind fashion, which caused him to hold before the round was out. Carroll's mouth and nose were bleeding freely. This was Houck's best round, as he almost had his man out, but was unable to finish the job.

The seventh round ended even, as both men were a trifle tired and gave in return what they received, but Houck was by far the stronger, and he came back to form in the next round, carrying the work in fast style and easily mastered Carroll. Houck also showed better in the ninth round by using a left jab to good advantage and working best in the clinches. Carroll was forced to hold before the round had gone far, while Houck battered away unceasingly. This was all Houck's round, but in the final both boys were tired after the fast work, and, although they mixed freely, one could not gain any advantage over the other.

The contest from the start was one of the best fights ever witnessed in this city, and a second meeting between these boys should prove one worth while going far to see.

JIM STEWART KNOCKED OUT.

Jack ("Twin") Sullivan Floors Brooklyn Fighter in Fourth Round.

Jack "Twin" Sullivan of Cambridge, Mass., knocked out Jim Stewart of Brooklyn in the fourth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the Marathon Athletic Club, in Brooklyn, last night. Sullivan, in the fourth round, hammered Stewart's body hard in the clinches, and floored him for a count of eight. When the Brooklyn man got up Sullivan sent a stiff right hook to the jaw, and Stewart went down for the count. Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, jumped into the ring and helped Stewart to his corner.

It was Sullivan's fight from the start. Stewart showed up well in the first round until Sullivan landed a wicked smash on the left eye. The eye began to swell, and another punch in the same place in the third round closed it. Sullivan played a tattoo of blows on Stewart's body, and did most effective work in the in-fighting. After Sullivan closed Stewart's eye in the third round he landed on him at will, and the Brooklyn man was weak when he went to his corner.

It did not take Sullivan long to finish him in the fourth round. Short, choppy smashes on the stomach and ribs had Stewart tottering, and one strong left to the body sent him down. He was very weak when he got up, and a right hook to the jaw ended the bout. A large crowd saw the contest.

Lew Powell and Young Otto in Ring.

The National Sporting Club will offer as a main attraction at its boxing show this evening, a ten-round glove contest between Lew Powell of California and Young Otto, the promising New Yorker. Powell has made something of a hit since he began to box at Eastern clubs, and a go full of action and interest is looked for when they meet. Young Otto has been improving of late, and he will go into the ring with the expectation of stopping the Californian. In the semi-final, Joe Rocks will meet Young Salzberg in a six-round bout, and this go will be preceded by several preliminary bouts.

Tommy Burns Retires from Ring.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 5.—Tommy Burns, former heavyweight champion pugilist, announced his permanent retirement from the prize ring in a letter received here last night. An injury to his knee received in a game of lacrosse some months ago is given as his reason for retiring.

Yale's New Football Manager.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 5.—At a meeting of the junior academic class to-night, W. K. Kaynor, 1912, of Sanborn, Iowa, was elected manager of the Yale University football team for the season of 1911. The sophomore academic class elected H. A. Snagg of Scranton, Penn., assistant manager.

Polo Players to Visit India.

Joseph B. Thomas and Louis E. Stoddard of the New Haven polo team are planning to take part in the English tournament, which is to be held in India next year. Prior to going to India the men will take part in several tournaments in both California and Aiken, S. C.

SLEIGHS OUT IN PARK.

Slight Fall of Snow Brings Out Fast Horses and Runners.

The merry jingle of sleigh bells was heard for the first time this Winter in Central Park yesterday, and there were lively brushes between horsemen in the race for McGowan's Pass Tavern, where a bottle of wine, magnum size, awaited the first sleigh to arrive. For the seventeenth consecutive time Mark J. Monheimer was the first one to arrive at the tavern on runners. He drove Hilda Strong, and drew up in a hurry before the tavern door at 6:10 o'clock. On the way to the Pass Mr. Mornheimer overtook a couple of sleighs on the same journey, but Hilda Strong soon left them far behind, and her driver carried away the magnum.

John T. Meehan of Fordham was the first one to arrive at Huber's, 163d Street and Jerome Avenue. As soon as the snow covered the ground yesterday afternoon he hitched his fast pacer, Dolando, to a sleigh and drove to the hotel, where he was presented with the bottle of wine, magnum size, for the first arrival to come on runners. Several sleighs were out in Central Park, but the fall of snow was not heavy enough for good sleighing.

SHOOTING FOR SCHOOLBOYS.

Interscholastic League Matches to Start in January Next.

Details are being completed by the National Rifle Association for an Interscholastic League of school rifle clubs and a tournament this Winter. The matches will begin about Jan. 1, and entries close with Albert S. Jones, Secretary of the National Rifle Association, at Washington on Dec. 19.

In addition to a trophy, the members of the winning team will each receive a silver medal. The firing, which is with small-calibre rifles, will be under the direction and supervision of a representative of the National Rifle Association. The annual schoolboy championship match will follow the completion of the league team matches, which are expected to last until Spring.

It was also announced that the Inter-Club Rifle League matches for the season of 1910-11 will begin the week ending Dec. 24 and continue for nineteen weeks. In this tournament nineteen civilian rifle clubs, representing fourteen States, will shoot each week, and the scores will be telegraphed to the association headquarters in Washington. The representative of this city is the Manhattan Rifle and Revolver Association.

Goff Wins Roller Skating Race.

Edward Goff of Newark won the two-mile roller skating race at the Metropolitan Rink last night. It was an amateur event, and Goff had a 70-yard handicap. Harry Wimmer of the Belleville Athletic Club of Newark, with a handicap of 40 yards, was second, and Joe Jordon, starting from scratch, was third. The winner's time was 6:12 3-5.

Chicago Billiardist Wins Game.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Dec. 5.—Chicago took its first game with Pittsburg here to-night, in the National amateur three-cushion billiard league tournament, when Rollin D. Organ of the Western city ran out his string of 50, while Joseph S. Wireback of this city reached but 40. Organ made two high runs of 6, while Wireback's high run was 5. Clarke Snyder of Chicago will play R. S. Strasser of this city to-morrow night.

71st Regiment Games Saturday.

One of the best indoor athletic meets of the Fall athletic season will be seen next Saturday evening, when the Seventy-first Regiment holds its indoor games in the armory at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. Fifteen events will be run off, including four open to all registered athletes. In the regimental races the entry is the best ever received for a Seventy-first meet. Some of the well-known performers who will start are Dorland, Egan, Goggin, Sweeny, Geis, Malone, Parke, Lovell, Wright, Van den Dries, Nerent, and Raleigh. One of the most exciting races of the evening will be the two-mile bicycle race handicap open to N. C. A. riders, in which sixteen riders will compete. W. Van den Dries, the flat-floor champion, will start from scratch in this race.

Amherst Swimming Schedule.

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 5.—The Amherst swimming team has been working out for a week in Pratt tank. Capt. Carter, 1913, of Brooklyn, has put the men through their paces, and reports encouraging prospects for the season. Manager Rugg has arranged a longer schedule than usual, which calls for the following contests:

Jan. 21—Interclass meet, at Amherst; Feb. 11—Williams, at Williamstown; 24—College of the City of New York, Columbia, and Amherst, at the College of the City of New York tank. March 4—Brown, at Providence, R. I.; 11—Williams, Brown, and Amherst, at Amherst.

Richards, captain of last year's Yale team, has promised to coach a water polo team, a new departure for Amherst swimmers.

Hockey at Amherst.

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 5.—The Amherst hockey team, under the leadership of Capt. Washburn, is rapidly rounding into shape preparatory to a hard schedule. The team lost by graduation centre San Souci, rover Cornell, point Henry, and goal Bedford. A nucleus of fast players remain in Capt. Washburn, Cranshaw, Chapin, Miller, Sibley, and Babcock. These players, together with Manager Yerrall, Patton, and King, have been put on the training table, which is at the Commons this year. Manager Yerrall has mapped out a hard schedule for his team. The Amherst seven will be coached by G. F. Cronan, who had the men in charge last year. The team will play the following schedule:

Dec. 17, Harvard at Boston Arena; Jan. 7, Springfield Training School at Springfield; 14, Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst; 20, West Point at West Point; 21, Williams at Williamstown; 25 or 26, Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston Arena; Feb. 4, Yale at Amherst; 11, Trinity at Amherst; 18, Williams at Amherst.

Columbia Leads Yale at Chess.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 5.—The chess match on six boards between Columbia and Yale played here to-day resulted in a score of 2½ to 1½ in favor of Columbia, with two unfinished games to be adjudicated. Those who won games for Columbia were Y. B. Smith and Sachs. Drawn games for Columbia were scored by Ramsdell.

Football Players Quit Cigarettes.

The University of Pittsburg football team, which scored 282 points this season, yet not allowing its own goal line to be crossed, has in breaking training decided to continue the ban on cigarettes which was in force through the entire season by orders of Coach Joseph Thompson.

With Thompson, members of the squad believe that cigarettes and athletics will never mix. The coach in a recent interview said: "I believe firmly that most of our wonderful success in football has been due to refraining from smoking cigarettes, and also from any dissipation whatever during the season. From the time we started to think of this year's team, and I announced that no candidate could smoke cigarettes and try for the team, nor could we have any one who even thought of taking a drink of intoxicants, there was not a cigarette smoked by a member of the squad, nor was there dissipation in any shape or form. This made us absolutely the best-conditioned team in the country."

YALE AND PRINCETON WANT HOCKEY HERE

Harvard Contests on Ice Probably Will Be Played at St. Nicholas Rink.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5.—Muddle exists regarding the Inter-Collegiate Hockey Association schedule, or at least that part of it that concerns the place of the Harvard-Princeton and Harvard-Yale games. It appears that Yale and Princeton are kicking over the traces at the arrangement that assigned both of them to play Harvard in Boston. The schedule adopted by the Intercollegiate Hockey Association assigned Princeton to meet Harvard in Boston on Jan. 20 and Yale to meet Harvard in Boston on Feb. 11. Harvard accepted this schedule and the home team's games were approved by the Harvard athletic authorities.

From what can be learned now, however, the Yale and Princeton people think Harvard should come to New York for a game, and before the matter is straightened out there may have to be a readjustment of some of the dates announced.

Harvard has been going to New York every season to play Yale and Princeton, and it is regarded as only natural that she should think it time for those teams to come here. Whether she will hold to that stand or not remains to be seen, but it isn't likely that the point made by the Yale and Princeton folks will be acceded to without further looking into the matter on the part of Harvard.

BILLIARDS AND POOL.

Tom Gallagher defeated George Moore in the first block of their handicap three-cushion carrom billiard match last night by the score of 46 to 37, in ninety-nine innings. The match is being decided at John Doyle's Forty-second Street Billiard Academy, and is of three nights' duration. Moore is to concede Gallagher a ten-point handicap, he playing 150 points to the veteran's 140. In last night's game both men made a high run of 4. Thomas Hueston officiated as referee.

In last night's game of the three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, Frank Becker defeated A. L. Cohen by the score of 40 to 39, in 168 innings. It was a close game throughout. At one stage of the contest Cohen was six points ahead of his opponent, but in the ninety-eighth inning Becker caught up, and the lead zig-zagged to the end of the game, with Becker finishing strong. Becker made a high run of 2 and Cohen's high run was 3. To-night Frank Becker will cross cues with C. H. Byers.

In the preliminary games of handicap Class B 18.2 balk-line billiards to decide the championship of Harlem, at the Riverside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, William Viertel defeated E. V. Parker last night by the score of 180 to 142. Viertel made high runs of 26, 22, and 20. Parker's high runs were 20, 24, and 18. Sylvester Levy and M. Rosenfeld, both scratch men, playing 210 points each, will meet to-night.

M. Clark defeated F. Tobias in a game of 18.2 balk-line billiards last night at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, by the score of 200 to 197, in forty-four innings. It was a close game from start to finish. Clark made a high run of 25 and an average of 4½. This evening S. Barnes and H. Hoffman will meet.

John Duffy of Newburg defeated James Ryan of Glens Falls in last night's game of the championship pool tournament that is in progress at the Union Billiard Academy, Forty-fifth Street and Broadway, to decide the pool championship of the State of New York, by the score of 150 to 117. Ryan made the highest run of the game, 24. Duffy's best efforts netted him a high run of 19.

Langford Columbia's Best Golfer.

W. B. Langford won the golf championship of Columbia University yesterday afternoon, defeating W. Crampton 4 up and 3 to play. The match was played over the Van Cortlandt Park links, and was closely contested for the first eleven holes. The men were all even at the ninth green, and Crampton won the tenth in three to Langford's four. Langford evened up matters again in the eleventh, just as the snowstorm began, and had little difficulty in winning the next four holes, as the snow seemed to bother his opponent. The third round was played on Saturday afternoon, and the semi-finals yesterday morning. The summaries:

Third Round—R. L. Morrow defeated M. Cooper, 3 up and 2 to play; W. Crampton defeated E. H. Downes, 1 up; L. S. Greenbaum defeated W. White, 4 up and 3 to play; W. B. Langford defeated H. P. Letton, 6 up and 5 to play.

Semi-final Round—Crampton defeated Morrow, 2 up and 1 to play; Langford defeated Greenbaum, 1 up, nineteen holes.

Final Round—Langford defeated Crampton, 4 up and 3 to play.

ATHLETICS AT COLUMBIA.

The Columbia lacrosse team is in a poor condition and upon a meeting to be held at the University on Wednesday will depend whether a team will be formed to represent Columbia next Spring. This action was announced by Manager Myers of the General Athletic Association yesterday as a result of the poor showing of the team in the past few years. In case a large number of men come out to the meeting, however, and declare themselves willing to play, Myers has promised that sufficient money will be voted to the Lacrosse Association for Manager Frambach of the team to obtain a coach who will build up the team from its present weak, disorganized form. At this meeting a Captain will be chosen in the place of H. J. Swallow, who has resigned.

Within the past two weeks the rowing practice has picked up, and Coach Rice yesterday stated that he was greatly encouraged in seeing the increase of interest that is being shown among the oarsmen in the indoor practice. There are now about sixty candidates rowing three times a week, twenty-eight of these being freshmen. The Columbia rowing directors have announced that the 'Varsity eight will row the Middies on the Severn on May 13, this being the only Columbia crew that will go down to Annapolis. On May 20 the second 'Varsity and freshmen boats will row in the Schuylkill Regatta.

The Columbia basket ball squad put in two hours of hard practice in the gymnasium last night in preparation for the Georgetown game next Friday.

BOSTON CLUB NOT SOLD.

Owner Harris Denies That He Has Disposed of His Holdings.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—John P. Harris of Pittsburg, owner of the Boston National League baseball club, who was in this city to-night for a few hours, denied the report that he had sold the club to James J. Phelan, a Boston banker representing a local syndicate. He said:

"It is true I have received many flattering offers, but I considered none of them seriously. I know that several parties would like to buy, but I am not at all anxious to sell."

Mr. Phelan, who has been quoted on apparently reliable authority in connection with the reported sale, to-night denied that he had any financial interest in the club, and said that the only way his name could be connected with the rumored negotiations is that he happens to know the parties contemplating the purchase.

Chance to Shake Up the Cubs.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Changes are coming in the Chicago baseball team. Manager Chance has told several members that it is time to put new life in the Cubs. "I want to build up before it is too late," he is quoted as saying. "A general shake-up will do us good." A new infield and changes in the pitching staff are looked for by the old-timers. Chance will be found on first base, Zimmerman on second, and Tinker on third, with Schulte the only outfielder so far decided upon as a fixture.

Rugby Football in Wales.

Rugby football has taken a great hold in South Wales and is at present not at the height of its popularity, but possesses a very complete organization. As many as sixty-two clubs are directly affiliated to the Welsh Football Union, and of the host of smaller clubs but a very few are outside a league affiliated to the union. Eleven district leagues are affiliated to a union of Welsh Junior Rugby Leagues, whose committee controls 174 clubs. There is also a union for elementary schools and an old boys' league. Up to last season the numerous county or intermediate schools favored the Association rules, but a conference of the head masters with the committee of the Welsh Union led to their adopting the Rugby game.

Lauderbach Scores with Cue.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Lauderbach of Brooklyn defeated Campbell of this city in the first game between Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the amateur National Three-cushion Billiard League to-night, 50 to 46. Each made a high run of 4.

HEWITT WINS AT RACQUETS.

R. D. Wrenn Beaten in Final Match for Tuxedo Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Several very interesting matches, both in court tennis and racquets, were played on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis Club on Sunday and were witnessed by a large and fashionable audience. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., defeated George F. Baker, Jr., in the second class racquet handicap club championship after a keen match by a score of 15—5, 15—12, 15—12, Baker giving Lorillard 5 aces.

In the finals for the club championship in racquets, Erskine Hewitt defeated Robert D. Wrenn, Hewitt playing exceptionally well, while Wrenn was in need of practice. Hewitt won by a score of 10—15, 15—5, 15—8, 15—7.

The finals were also reached in the first and second class court tennis handicap matches for the club championship. C. S. Lee defeated Richmond Talbot, 6—4, 6—1, and P. Lorillard, Jr., defeated T. F. Frelinghuysen by default, thus leaving C. S. Lee and P. Lorillard, Jr., in the finals, which will be played next Sunday.

In the second class club championship handicap matches to-day N. W. Tilron easily defeated Maurice Roache, both playing even, by a score of 5—7, 6—2, 6—2. The finals between Tilton and J. F. Pierson, Jr., will be played next Sunday. Tilton will give Pierson 15.

Clarence C. Pell easily defeated Stanley Mortimer in racquets in the first class club handicap by the score of 11—15, 6—15, 15—11, 15—7, 15—8. Both started even. Wrenn will meet Pell in the finals next Sunday.

The annual gold racquet championship in racquets will be played on the Tuxedo courts Feb. 11, 12, and 13.

PITTSFIELD EXPRESS RUNS INTO A DITCH

400 PASSENGERS SHAKEN UP

Few Hurt, but None Seriously—Engineer Saw No Signal to Indicate Danger.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Dec. 5.—The Pittsfield Express, consisting of two parlor cars, express baggage, and five day cars, which left New York at 3:31 to-day, ran into an open switch at Brookfield Junction, Conn. The engine and two parlor cars went over a turntable, the engine landing in a ditch within less than twenty-five feet from the front door of the farmhouse of Christopher McGinnis.

The train probably carried 400 passengers when it drew into Danbury. There 800 commuters boarded it for Brookfield Junction, Brookfield, Still River, and New Milford. At Brookfield Junction is a turntable twenty-five feet to one side of the track, the switch to which is about 600 feet distant. The express, though at reduced speed, was going rapidly so that the end car would stop at the station door. Dan Mahoney, the engineer in charge of the express, saw no warning light, and before he was aware of anything wrong his engine had entered the switch, covered the 600 feet and crossed the turntable, plunging down grade into the ditch.

The first parlor car, in which there were 14 passengers, followed, crashing into the stalled engine. The impact sent the car forward over its trucks, throwing both forward trucks to one side. No windows in the parlor cars were broken, but all the passengers were hurled from their seats. Frank Keeler of Brookfield Centre, 60 years old, was approaching the door of the car, and was thrown forward, striking the woodwork of the door on the top of his head. Dr. C. A. Ryder of Brookfield Centre, who was on the train with his wife, spent half an hour restoring him to consciousness. He was assisted by Dr. Benjamin F. Bostwick of New Milford.

Dr. Bostwick attended twenty women who had fainted and two other physicians were busy with other women.

The engineer, who stuck to his post, was badly scalded and cut. The fireman, Roy Martin, escaped with a few scratches.

As the train was approching Brookfield Junction the door of the baggage car was opened to throw off the mail. The purpose was effected by the sudden stop. Louis Richmond, about 30 years old, a hatter, and a regular commuter, jumped to the ground and stood guard over the mail.

FRAUD CRY IN MINE SUIT.

Cobalt Central Stockholder Wants a New Set of Directors.

Saying that he represented holders of 3,000,000 shares of Cobalt Central Mines Company stock, Hector M. Hitchings of 264 West Ninety-third Street urged Supreme Court Justice Amend yesterday to direct the Secretary of the company, Edmund F. Eldredge, to send out notices to the 8,000 stockholders of the annual meeting, which the by-laws set for the third Friday in December and for which ten days' notice is required.

Mr. Hitchings explained that only by such a meeting could the present Directors be voted out, and men voted in who would "protect the association." The need for immediate action, he urged, is to prevent the bankruptcy sale in Canada of $2,000,000 worth of Standard Cobalt property. Cobalt Central is the holding company for Standard Cobalt.

Louis Marshall, for the company, replied that the corporation was of Maine birth, and that the court might not interfere in the politics of a foreign corporation. He further asked the sense of moving against a moribund corpse, and announced that the corporation had been adjudged bankrupt in Maine on Nov. 21. This seemed news to Mr. Hitchings, who charged the Directors with having stripped the corporation of its assets, of having forced it into bankruptcy, as he asserts was done with Standard Cobalt, and he had something to say about "collusive bankruptcy" and a "fraudulent Board of Directors."

Mr. Marshall further pointed out that with only $39 in cash to command, Mr. Eldredge could not do much in the way of notifying 8,000 subscribers. If there was only $39, it was because hundreds of thousands had been stolen, Mr. Hitchings declared, and said that if they would bring to his office the notices duly addressed and ready to mail, he would pay the postage.

Justice Amend reserved decision in the mandamus proceedings, an order to show cause having been granted to Mr. Hitchings on Saturday.

EXPANSION IN LOANS OF NATIONAL BANKS

Controller Reports Increase of Over $300,000,000 During Last Twelve Months.

IS WIDELY DISTRIBUTED

Decrease of $16,500,000 Shown Between Calls of Sept. 1 and Nov. 10 Falls on City.

Returns of the National banks of the country under the call of Nov. 10, according to a summary issued yesterday by the Controller of the Currency, show that, compared with a year ago, the loans of these banks expanded over $300,000,000, while between Sept. 1 this year, the date of the previous call, and Nov. 10 there was a contraction of loans throughout the country of $16,500,000. This loan reduction, however, was due entirely to the diminution of loans by the National banks in New York City, which during this period showed a decrease of over $57,000,000. These figures show that outside of New York City there was an increase in loans of approximately $40,000,000. That this loan increase outside of New York was distributed over a wide territory is indicated by the fact that in the detailed returns loan increases are reported by the banks in the Western, Middle Western, Southern, and Pacific States.

The condition of all the National banks on Nov. 10 compares with the condition for Nov. 16, 1909, and on Sept. 1, 1910, as follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Quiet and Little Changed—Call Money Rates, 2½@2¾ Per Cent.

LAST WEEK'S PRESSURE GONE

Liquidation Not Resumed—National Bank Returns Show Further Expansion in Loans Outside of This City.

There had been some expectation on the Stock Exchange before the opening yesterday that the poor bank statement published after the close of business on Saturday, coupled with the sharp fall in prices last week, might produce a considerable volume of offerings, particularly from out-of-town points. Whatever selling arose from these circumstances was absorbed at fractional recessions from the closing level of Saturday, and before the noon hour the market as a whole had moved well above opening prices. Gains of a point or so in the leading shares were registered, but there was as little buying power as liberality of offerings, with the result that quotations sagged in the afternoon, closing off from the high of the day, and up somewhat as compared with Saturday. Dealings diminished in volume steadily, and the close was quiet, with a general disposition among the brokers on the floor of the Exchange to limit commitments. One of the matters in abeyance and upon which more light was desired before the undertaking of market operations was the President's message. As is usually the case, there were many reports about the financial district concerning the text of this document, these in the main agreeing in describing it as conservative in tone, while knowledge of the fact that the Judges of the Third Circuit Court who will render the decision in the Government's suit against the Temple Iron Company, the so-called anthracite trust, meet in Philadelphia to-day, also tended to check speculation in the shares of the roads involved and, to some extent, dealings in other directions.

From the combined figures of the National banks of the country published from Washington yesterday, only general deductions as to the country's banking position can be drawn; real interest centres in the showing to be made by certain sections of the country, notably the West, wherever expansion of credit is well understood to have been indulged in. The return is not unfavorable in many respects, for it shows a reduction of $16,516,000 in loans as compared with the returns of Sept. 1, whereas in the similar period of 1909 this item expanded nearly $20,000,000. Cash holdings, as a result of crop moving requirements, fell $35,600,000, but this is a smaller loss than that recorded in 1909. Offsetting this showing in the period between Sept. 1 and Nov. 10 for the country as a whole is the fact that in that same interval the loan reduction of New York City banks amounted to $57,000,000. It is obvious that credits with the banks in general expanded $41,000,000. The comparison of loans and cash in this return with the same items in the November return of 1909 reveals an expansion of nearly $302,000,000 in loans and of only a little above $11,000,000 in cash. In the absence of the detailed figures, therefore, it would seem to be the case that the effort to contract loans has been more successful in the East than elsewhere, but the exact situation cannot be known until the returns by cities and territorial divisions are published. Local banks yesterday reported the addressing of further demands upon them by the interior, particularly by Far Western and Southern cities, but the slight hardening in the money market has been due fully as much to the shifting of loans from out-of-town and non-reporting institutions to the Clearing House banks as a result of the less profitable rates prevailing.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call money loaned on the Stock Exchange at 2½@2¾ per cent., with the last loan at 2⅝ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 2½ per cent.

Time money rates, 4 per cent. for sixty days to six months.

Mercantile paper rates, 5@5½ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsed bills receivable, 5@5½ per cent. for choice four to six months' single names, and 5¾@6 per cent. for others.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

For the most part the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange ruled a trifle higher than that on the New York Stock Exchange. Speculative sentiment exhibited an improvement and the floor traders were working for higher prices, while commission houses were buyers of stocks in some volume. Business was quite active, the sales totaling 74,385 shares. Fifty-five different stocks were represented on the list.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday a generally easier tone was shown in all the leading commodities. Copper was down about ⅛c in the bid for nearby deliveries. Tin declined ⅜c in the bid and ¼c in the asking price in sympathy with London. Spelter was down 5 points.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	Monday. Bid.	Monday. Asked.	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.
Standard Copper—
Spot	12.40	12.50	12.45	12.60
December	12.40	12.50	12.45	12.60
January	12.45	12.60	12.45	12.60
February	12.45	12.60	12.52½	12.65
Lead	4.45	4.55	4.45	4.55
Spelter	5.80	5.90	5.85	5.95
Tin	37.45	37.75	37.80	38.25

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday transactions there in spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin are here noted in the following summary. These prices are the final figures of the day and compare with the close on Friday:

	Monday. £.	s.	d.	Friday. £.	s.	d.
Copper, futures	57	15	..	57	18	9
Pig tin, spot	170	17	6	172	7	6
Pig tin, futures	171	..	..	172	7	6

The market ended weak. Spanish pig lead was steady and unchanged at £13 1s. 3d. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 49s. 9d. Spelter was steady at £24.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Stocks Show Irregular Price Changes on Limited Trading.

RUBBER SHARES EXCEPTION

Sales of 2,100 Shares Up to 29⅛—Close at Best Price of the Day—Western Pacific 5s Heavy.

The outside security market was quiet and irregular. Intercontinental Rubber was the feature of the trading, and on sales of 2,100 shares rose 2⅝ points, to 29⅛, closing at that price. American Tobacco gained 2 points, to 406, and South Shore Traction rose ¾, to 61¼, a new high record for the year. Pittsburg Steel preferred closed unchanged at 101, with earlier sales at 100⅞. The copper issues were irregular, but net changes were confined to small fractions. The Cobalt stocks were firm. Western Pacific 5s lost ⅝ from the opening, with the final sales of the day at 92.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—The customary Monday rumor of a Supreme Court decision in the anthracite trust served as an excuse to raid the coal stocks in the early dealings to-day. Better support was forthcoming, however, than for a week past and prices quickly recovered all around. By midday Pennsylvania, Reading, U. S. Steel and Lehigh Valley were all above Saturday's final figures, while such purely local issues as Lake Superior, Tonopah-Belmont, United Gas Improvement, and the Tractions were quiet and firm.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Interest in President's Message.

On the Stock Exchange the quiet trading was explained as due in large part to a desire on the part of pretty nearly everybody to see the text of the President's message and to hear what the Third Circuit Court, which comes together in Philadelphia to-day, has to say regarding the Government's suit against the Temple Iron Company. As usual, there was a great deal of confidential information on tap regarding the text of the message, but it must be a rather curious document in a market sense for those who pretended to know all about it also professed inability to tell anxious inquirers what the market was going to do upon its publication. This, however, has happened before with Presidential messages, even with those of Mr. Roosevelt, and certainly the accusation of writing a colorless communication to Congress was not often justly laid at his door. As for the Temple Iron case there seems to be a decided difference of opinion concerning the effect of an adverse finding upon the companies interested in that corporation, but the example furnished by the commodities clause incident will probably prevent any ruthless sacrificing of coal road securities if the outcome is adverse.

⁂

More Winter Wheat Seeded.

Among the crop investigators, few in number, who really receive respectful attention from the financial community is Chicago's favorite expert, Mr. Snow, who issued yesterday his findings regarding the December Winter wheat crop position. He makes the acreage seeded 4 per cent. greater than that put under cultivation last year, and this percentage used with the Government's estimate makes the area this Fall 34,822,000 acres, against 33,483,000 acres last year, an increase of 1,339,000 acres. This area is 5,777,000 acres larger than the harvested acreage this year. Mr. Snow says that while there has been insufficient moisture in many parts of the Winter wheat belt—resulting in a condition of 82.8 for the plant as against a Government figure of 95.8 last year at this time—December condition figures are of minor importance, as they merely reflect the small growth of crops. Records show that a small top growth resulting from a dry seed bed is usually accompanied by increased root vigor from the plant in its effort to strike down deep for moisture.

⁂

Banks Lose More Cash.

The demands upon the New York banks for cash for shipment to the interior were unabated yesterday. One large bank sent $400,000 to New Orleans and another large shipment to that same quarter was made by another Wall Street institution. These further demands upon the banks were watched with the keener interest because of the large decrease in surplus reserve reported by the Clearing House banks on Saturday, which then had only a trifle more than they reported in the way of surplus at the beginning of October, before they had yet felt the drain of cash incident to the necessities of the crop-moving period. In addition to the direct shipments which the local banks were called upon to make yesterday the Sub-Treasury again drew a large amount of cash from the banks, which have now since last Friday lost over $2,400,000 to that institution. The loss to the Sub-Treasury so far this week is greater by about $250,000 than the similar loss reported up to this time last week.

⁂

Heavy Iron Ore Shipments.

Despite the relatively quiet times which the steel trade experienced last Summer and Fall the shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior region by water in 1910 exceeded the shipments in 1909 and established a new high record in this iron ore movement. The total shipments by water this year, according to figures compiled by the Iron Age, were 42,620,206 tons, compared with 41,683,599 tons in 1909. The operation of the units of the Gary plant of the United States Steel Corporation so far completed, helped to swell the demands on ore shipped by water from the Lake Superior region. The apparent anomaly of record shipments of iron ore in a year, which included several months of slack business in the steel trade, is partially, at least, accounted for by the fact that the capacity of the steel mills of the country and of the Steel Corporation in particular, has been greatly increased within a few years, so that a tonnage of ore which formerly would have supplied the mills with iron and steel for work at full capacity, is consumed now with the mills of the country operating at much below their maximum.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Money and discount rates were easy to-day.

The Bank of England and India shared the $3,000,000 new gold available.

Operators on the Stock Exchange professed disappointment over the results of Saturday's elections, and prices declined under realizing. Consols lost seven-sixteenths and home rails sagged. Copper shares, foreign bonds, and Kaffirs closed firmer.

American securities opened about unchanged, and then advanced on light covering. A forecast of President Taft's message helped the improvement. The market weakened when Wall Street opened, but recovered in the late trading and closed steady.

Bar silver steady at 25 5-16d per ounce.

Money, 3@3¾ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3⅞@4 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅞@3 13-16 per cent.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 87½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 27½c for checks.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Prices were quiet and steady on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 4 per cent.

Private discount rate, 4⅜ per cent.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—After a series of irregular price movements and a session of uncertainty, values closed with insignificant changes as compared with Saturday's finals. News factors were of a mixed character, but it was the consensus of opinion that the bearish developments predominated, and although this was not altogether reflected in the trading, the effect on sentiment was surely noticeable. At the outset a lower range of values was in evidence, with considerable selling pressure, induced by the beneficial moisture reported at many points in the Winter wheat belt. Numerous dispatches were received relative to the improvement which would be derived from this precipitation, but it is to be remembered that the Government report to be issued on Dec. 7 will not record in its observations the recent rain and snow. Liverpool advices were also accountable for the decline, as, notwithstanding rather unfavorable crop reports from Russia and France, light world's wheat exports, and cables stating that France was buying there, the foreign market was below expectations. With the firmness in corn, however, and on early advices reporting a good cash demand, a moderate rally ensued. There was fair buying in anticipation of a favorable visible supply statement, but this report proved to be confusing, and its effect on prices was unimportant. An increase for the week was reported of 505,000 bushels, against a decrease last week of 834,000 bushels, and an increase a year ago of 1,668,000 bushels. The total in the American and Canadian visible supply at present aggregates 53,209,000 bushels, against 41,479,000 bushels last year, and 56,791,000 bushels two years ago. Expectations were for a decrease this week, but it appears that the stock of wheat on lakes and afloat for Buffalo showed large increases. The consensus of opinon, however, seems to be that this wheat represented Canadian grain which is en route for seaboard ports, a large portion of which has already been sold for export. There was, however, an increase of pressure in the late trading on rather unsatisfactory flour advices from the Northwest, an easier late tendency of cash markets, and on the absence of export business. Snow issued a crop report on the Winter wheat condition, placing it at 82.2, against 95.8 a year ago, as given by the Government. An increase in acreage of 4 per cent. is given. Another prominent commission house also issued a report which was slightly more bearish. Export business nil. Cash No. 2 red quoted at 98c elevator and 99c, free on board afloat; export No. 2 hard, $1.02½; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.19, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.04¼.

CORN.—After showing pronounced strength during the early trading, the market eased and closed with but unimportant price changes. At the outset there was good buying on the less favorable weather, with a continuation of absorption by large commission houses thought to be covering of shorts. The demand petered out, however, in the afternoon, with quite free selling on the weaker technical position, easier cash situation, and on knowledge of the fact that farmers will dispose more freely of corn as prices advance. While there are some disappointing yield reports, and also advices claiming unsatisfactory quality, the majority of dispatches are to the contrary. The visible supply showed an increase of 93,000 bushels, against a decrease of 903,000 bushels last week and an increase of 918,000 one year ago. Export sales amounted to 88,000 bushels. Cash No. 2 corn quoted at 59c, elevator, and 53⅝c forward shipment, free on board afloat for export.

OATS.—The market was firm in the early trading with corn, and on short covering, but later developed an easier tendency on reports of freer country offerings, slackening in the cash demand and on the visible supply statement, which showed an increase for the week of 256,000 bushels, against a decrease last week of 179,000 bushels, and a reduction last year of 106,000 bushels in stocks. Cash standards were quoted at 39¼c, No. 2 white 39¾c, and No. 3 white 38⅞c.

PROVISIONS.—Decided strength prevailed throughout the session, with covering of shorts proceeding earnestly. Stop loss orders were reached in pork, which added to the excitement, and there was considerable buying, influenced by the firmer hog market. At the close offerings showed a slight increase on profit taking and with other markets.

COTTONSEED OIL.

[illegible] manifest in the oil [illegible] yesterday's session. Local operators were disposed to work for a rally, encouraged by the better lard market and strength shown in cotton. There seemed to be a better demand from cotton and Western interests, while shorts were also disposed to cover with a good part of the offerings in the way of realizing. In the meantime, oleostearine has been quiet in absence of demand, and competing oils and greases as a whole are also suffering from the hand to mouth buying which is in evidence in most all trade circles.

COTTON.

A fair degree of strength was manifest in the local market during yesterday's session, and although net gains for the day were not large the undertone was unmistakably firm, with offerings well absorbed. At the outset prices received their impetus from Liverpool advices, which were slightly better than anticipated, with private cables stating that the foreign market was favorably influenced by the fact that German spinners were buying more freely. Although there was quite a little realizing in the way of making preparation for the issuance of a Government report, sellers found that their cotton was being well absorbed, and the opinion seemed to be quite unanimous that weak holders had fairly well liquidated. Prominent spot interests, Southern bulls, and Western interests were among those to be identified on the buying side during the course of the day, while at times there was also cotton bought for the account of some of the largest commission houses in the Street. Selling was discouraged by insistent reports from the South stating that from 90 to 95 per cent. of the crop had been picked and ginned, and those assertions did much to offset reports to the effect that the National Ginners' Association would show an amount of approximately 10,100,000 bales ginned to Dec. 1. There were also rumors current which were crediting Mrs. Burch with having issued an estimate of 11,100,000 bales, and that the National Ginners' Association would also give about the same amount as their idea for the final outturn. Neither of these reports could be confirmed, but it was evident that sentiment was bullish and that where there was antipathy displayed toward taking the buying side, the willingness to sell short was far from being pronounced. Bears admit that trade conditions abroad are good, but are pessimistic relative to conditions at home, stating that it will be impossible for a good business to transpire until a readjustment is seen between the price of raw cotton and cotton goods. The present price of futures is also given as one of their arguments. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged to 3-16 lower, with New York spot cotton quiet and unchanged from the previous close. Middling uplands 15.05. There were 9,800 bales delivered on contract.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Trading in the local market was rather light to-day, and fluctuations were confined within narrow limits. Butte Balaklala was the feature among the low-priced copper shares, advancing over a point, to 7½. The balance of the list is generally fractionally higher. The market closed steady and with stocks in fair demand.

RETIRE RUBBER PREFERRED.

Withdrawal of $500,000 Reduces Stock Outstanding to $1,500,000.

The Directors of the Intercontinental Rubber Company at a meeting yesterday voted to retire $500,000 more preferred stock on Jan. 1, making a total of $2,700,000 retired since the beginning of this year in addition to the $700,000 of back dividends which were liquidated. This will leave outstanding only $1,500,000 of preferred stock. The usual quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred stock yesterday, payable Jan. 1, and a second dividend of 1 per cent. was declared on the common stock payable Feb. 1. The first dividend on the common was declared three months ago and was paid on Nov. 1.

This statement regarding earnings and the prices at which the company's output is being sold was issued:

The net earnings of the Intercontinental Rubber Company for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1910, amounted to over $1,100,000. The business of the company continues good, and notwithstanding the shrinkage in the prices of rubber generally, the contracts which the company already has entered into for 1911 insure a profitable year, as 75 per cent. of its product is already sold for next year at approximately this year's prices.

Giles W. Mead was elected a Director yesterday to fill a vacancy.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Joseph C. Baldwin, Jr.'s election as a Trustee of the Washington Trust Company was announced yesterday.

Lehman Brothers, Goldman, Sachs & Co., and Kleinwort Sons & Co. announced yesterday the closing of the subscription list to the $3,000,000 issue of Stern Brothers 7 per cent. preferred stock, the issue having been oversubscribed.

SOME INVESTORS do not distinguish clearly the difference between stocks, bonds, and mortgages. An investor in Stocks becomes a partner in the business, subject to all business risks—dull times, increased operating costs, poorer markets, Federal supervision, &c. An investor in Bonds loans money to a corporation for a fixed period at a fixed rate of interest. If the period is a long one and if interest rates rise, the value of the Bonds falls in proportion to the capitalization of the rise in interest rates. GUARANTEED MORTGAGES are safer than stocks, pay better than bonds and since they run for short periods the investor has the chance every three or five years of taking advantage of interest fluctuations in the reinvestment of his capital.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

To the Stockholders of New York Tanning Extract Company.

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of said company will be held at its office, No. 17 Battery Place, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 23d day of December, 1910, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of voting upon a proposition:

(1) To increase the capital stock from the sum of four million ($4,000,000) dollars, consisting of 40,000 shares of the par value of one hundred ($100) dollars each, to the sum of six million ($6,000,000) dollars, to consist of 60,000 shares of the par value of one hundred ($100) dollars each.

(2) To classify into Common and Preferred stock the authorized increase of capital stock of said Company, amounting to two million ($2,000,000) dollars; so that one million four hundred and forty-one thousand seven hundred ($1,441,700) dollars thereof shall be Preferred stock and five hundred fifty-eight thousand three hundred ($558,300) dollars thereof shall be Common stock; said Preferred stock to be entitled to preference and priority over the Common stock as follows, to wit: to receive cumulative dividends at the rate of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in each year, before any dividend on the Common stock shall be paid, and upon dissolution after all the debts of the corporation shall have been paid, the assets, property and effects shall first be applied to the payment of the said Preferred stock at par, with any unpaid accumulations thereon, before any payment is made to the holders of the Common stock. The Preferred stock shall have no voting power. The Company shall have the option in the discretion of the Board of Directors, of retiring any part or all of the Preferred stock, at any time by paying the same off at par, with any unpaid accumulations thereon and in that event the stock so retired shall be called in from all the holders of the Preferred stock in the same proportion as near as may be, without making fractional shares. The Common stock shall be entitled to all net earnings and profits in excess of the cumulative dividends of six per centum per annum, payable on the Preferred stock, and in excess of the amount, if any, used for the retirement of Preferred stock as above provided.

Dated New York, December 3, 1910.
WILLIAM M. BALDWIN, President.
WILLIAM C. LOW, Secretary.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Market Opens Strong and Promising—Upper Broadway Apartment Sold—Y. M. C. A. Gets Old Church Site—A $325,000 West Harlem Deal—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

The week's realty market opened with considerable activity, revealing a well-continued demand for investment and improvement property. A deal which involved features of both these characters involved the sale of an upper Broadway corner in the heart of the recent apartment house building operation. The executors, E. Ritzema De Grove, Hugh T. Goodwin, and Theodore W. Sheridan, of the estate of Greenleaf K. Sheridan, which has owned for many years the southwest corner of Broadway and 100th Street, sold the plot to a client of Joseph M. Adrian for investment. E. H. Ludlow & Co. were the brokers.

The property has a frontage of 40.8 feet on Broadway and 219 feet on 100th Street. It is occupied by a two-story business building. The plot has been held at $250,000, and it is leased for thirteen years to a restaurant proprietor. An interesting feature of the deal is that it represents a cash sale, no mortgages being carried by the late owner, and it will be continued in that manner by the recent purchaser.

George Vanderbilt Sells.

George W. Vanderbilt, it was said yesterday, has sold the four-story and basement residence at 9 West Fifty-third Street, on plot 23 by 100.5 feet. The house is a few doors west of St. Thomas's Church, and was purchased in 1886 by Mr. Vanderbilt from Mary H. Watts for $62,500. The selling price now is said to have been about $125,000. St. Thomas's Church last year bought the dwelling at 8 West Fifty-third Street to use as a rectory. The adjoining house, No. 5, was transferred a year ago by John D. Rockefeller to his daughter, Alta R. Prentice.

370 Broadway Sold.

The five-story mercantile building at 370 Broadway has been sold by Col. John Jay. The building, which occupies a lot 25 by 150, runs through to Cortlandt Alley, between Franklin and White Streets. The buyer is an investor.

Sale in Greenwich Village Section.

The two old-fashioned three-story dwellings 106 and 108 West Thirteenth Street, near Sixth Avenue, have been sold by Margaret L. Jaegar. The two buildings occupy a plot 40 by 103.3, and it is the intention of the buyer to erect an eight-story fire-proof bachelor apartment house.

Private Dwellings Sold.

Private dwellings continue to be in good demand, six sales of this class being reported yesterday.

William C. Flanagan & Co. sold for T. J. Brady 219 West 139th Street, a four-story dwelling, on plot 32.6 by 99.11, one of the King model row.

Elizabeth Vian has sold 307 West Fiftieth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 19.2 by 100.5.

Van Vliet & Place have sold for the estate of Eliza A. Banta 23 Stuyvesant Street, the three-story dwelling on a lot 16 by 59 by 62.8 by irregular.

Mrs. Susan W. Seguin has sold, through Horace S. Ely and the Taylor Sherman Company, 47 West Fiftieth Street, a four-story and basement high-stoop dwelling, on lot 15 by 100.5, Columbia College leasehold. The buyer is a physician, who will occupy the house.

Gift of Church to Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. A. D. Juilliard has purchased the old Church of the Disciples of Christ at 323 West Fifty-sixth Street, and will present it to the West Side branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, whose property it adjoins on the east.

The old church, which occupied a plot 60 by 100.8, will be demolished and in its place will be erected a twelve-story dormitory containing about 200 rooms. It is estimated that the new structure will cost about $200,000.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Charles S. Kohler, in conjunction with Hughes, Wetmore & Van Winkle, has sold for Ada M. Ramos and others the five-story triple flat, 971 Columbus Avenue, on lot 25 by 100, to the Flow Realty Company, Henry L. Wolff, President.

Adolph Humpfner, in conjunction with Mr. Erckmann of the Ems Realty and Construction Company, has sold the six and one-half-story and semi-fireproof apartment house with stores, 344 East 118th Street, Manhattan, for a client of theirs, to the Dorey Realty and Construction Company of Brooklyn, for an investment.

M. Salmanowitsh has sold for Mrs. Frances Hein to a client for investment 209 East Twenty-second Street, a six-story tenement, on lot 25 by 105.

Delancey Street Sale.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. have sold for Lowenfeld & Prager to Michele Brigante the vacant plot at the southwest corner of Mulberry and Delancey Streets. The property will be improved with a tenement house with stores. This is the property recently reported sold by William Gullery.

A $325,000 West Harlem Deal.

The six-story elevator apartment at the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Terrace and 129th Street has been sold for the Central Building Improvement and Investment Company, by A. Blumenthal. The structure, which is one of a number of similar buildings which the company has erected in this vicinity, occupies a plot 100 by 143. It was held at about $325,000.

Bronx Sales.

Lauter & Blackner sold for the Levinson Improvement Company, the recently completed five-story and basement apartment house, 1,313 Clinton Avenue, on a plot 28.10 by 138, to a client for investment.

S. Cowen has sold 881 Irvine Street, two-family brick dwelling, to I. Miller, also 885 Irvine Street, two-family brick dwelling, to J. Goldberg, also 882 Irvine Street, two-family brick dwelling, for A. Lowy.

Sterling & Sterling have purchased from Mary A. Darson and others, 682 East 136th Street, a three-story dwelling.

M. A. Armond sold for M. & J. Monday 4,524 and 4,526 Park Avenue, two four-story triple flats on a plot 48.9 by 100, to a client as an investment.

Brooklyn Sales.

Adolph Humpfner, in conjunction with Mr. Erckmann, has sold for the Dorey Realty and Construction Company, the two-family house, 236 Thirty-fifth Street, adjoining the southwest corner of Tilden Avenue and East Thirty-fifth Street, Brooklyn. This is one of the two-family high-class modern houses newly completed in this fast growing section, and this completes the sale of forty-eight houses, comprising a block front, and has been purchased for an investment and will be occupied by the owner.

The same firm has also sold for the Charles J. Geisser Company, the three-story brick apartment house, with stores, 1,700 Seventy-fourth Street, corner of Seventeenth Avenue, known as The Ideal, to a client of theirs for investment.

Staten Island.

Cornelius G. Kolff has sold for Gracia Tadesca to M. Fuller a plot 40 by 100 on the southeast corner of Cedar and Madison Avenues, Arrochar, Staten Island.

Suburban Sales.

H. T. Metcalfe & Sons report the sale of a plot of land on the easterly side of Hillside Avenue, Great Kills, to H. P. Wells, who expects to build a residence on it in the Spring.

Lauter & Blackner have sold for Emma Dillberger the plot of lots fronting 150 feet on the south side of McLean Avenue, 150 feet east of Martha Avenue, Yonkers, to a client.

New Jersey Sales.

Albert Higson has purchased from the West Side Development Company a plot of four lots on the northeast corner of Beach Street and Germania Avenue, Jersey City. The purchaser will start immediately the erection of five two-family houses on the site. The buildings will be of brick, two stories in height and contain apartments of five and six rooms and bath. Specifications will call for all modern improvemnts, and the cost of the buildings will be $19,000.

George A Foye has sold to John Shaughnessy six two-family houses in the Greenville section of Jersey City. Four of the houses are on the southerly side of Lembeck Avenue, between the old Bergen Road and the Hudson Boulevard, and the other two on Myrtle Avenue, near Bergen Avenue.

300-Acre Sale at Pennington, N. J.

One of the largest real estate transactions that has been made in the vicinity of Pennington, N. J., in a score or more years has just been completed by one of the largest construction quarry companies in this State. It has purchased a 200-acre plot from the Right Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul of the Trenton Diocese, which the latter secured over a year ago for the purpose of erecting a sanitarium. In addition the company has bought of Samuel Cox his farm of about 90 acres. The total depth of the land is about 2½ miles, or from the railroad to the Woosamonsa Mountains. The frontage along the railroad is about one mile. The construction company expects to lay a spur or side track from the Reading Railroad, which fronts on their property, to the foot of the Woosamonsa Mountains.

$185,000 for Jersey Buildings.

Twenty permits for the construction of new buildings were issued by the Tenement House Commissioners of New Jersey during the last week. The aggregate cost of the improvements is $185,000, a decrease of $120,400 from the previous week, when eighteen permits were granted calling for the expenditure of $306,000. Of the permits four are for Jersey City amounting to $38,000, nine for Newark, $75,600; two for Bayonne, $19,000, and one each for the following: Atlantic City, $20,000; Bloomfield, $7,000; Caldwell, $12,000; East Orange, $8,000, and Passaic, $6,000.

New $150,000 Plant for Kearny, N. J.

Mendel Samuel & Sons, junk dealers, of 157 Commerce Street, Newark, have purchased from H. Schultz & Sons Company of the same city a large tract of land in the town of Kearny. The property is located on the northerly side of Harrison Avenue just east of Sandford Avenue and has a frontage of 550 feet on Harrison Avenue, and extends nearly a mile in depth. The purchasers will erect a number of buildings for smelting, and when they are completed the cost of the land and plant will be about $150,000.

Fifth Ave. Association Meeting.

The Fifth Avenue Association will meet in the Holland House this afternoon to consider plans for the handling of the increasing traffic on Fifth Avenue. William Phelps Eno will discuss the subject with the aid of diagrams, and others qualified to talk of the problem will present their views.

Leases.

Louis Schrag has leased for Ida L. Churchill the fourth loft in building 147 and 149 West Twenty-sixth Street to the Stitching Company for a term of years; also for Louis Spiro the first loft in building 134 West Twenty-third Street to Stark & Trattner.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for Charles Brogan, Inc., the sixth loft in the new building at the northeast corner of Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street. The lessees are Robischon & Peckham, underwear manufacturers, for a great many years located at Broadway and Leonard Street.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. have leased for Mary E. G. Carroll to Dominick Abbate the property at 180 Mulberry Street for a long term of years.

Notes.

Charles Sooysmith is the buyer of 12 West Fifty-seventh Street, sold recently by Henry D. Winans & May for Frank W. Savin.

Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet Thursday evening at 147 East 125th Street.

Edward P. Meany is the buyer of the new eight-story loft building at the southeast corner of Morton and Greenwich Streets.

Pease & Elliman have been appointed renting agents for the twelve-story cooperative apartment house at 471 Park Avenue, southeast corner of Fifty-eighth Street, of which Harold de Raasloff is President.

James K. Holly has moved to 2,379 Broadway.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. were associated with Collins & Rowe in the recently reported sale of 120 Mulberry Street, and they have resold the property to an investor.

Samuel K. Jacobs denies that the southwest corner of Forty-eighth Street and Broadway has been leased.

The Hilltop Land Company of 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City, has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with a capital of $200,000 to deal in real estate. The incorporators are Charles H. Leonard, Elizabeth; Marion Hill, Bronx, N. Y., and Robert Ferrier of Jersey City.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

ALOIS STANDT.—Judge Hough has appointed William F. Allen receiver in bankruptcy for Alois Standt, carpenter, of 162 East Fifty-second Street.

LEO KLEIN.—Leon Klein, a jeweler of 49 Maiden Lane, has made a settlement with creditors at 50 cents on the dollar, payable in notes of 12½ cents each, at three, six, nine, and twelve months after Jan. 1, and yesterday Judge Hand confirmed the composition. The liabilities were $4,514.

ISIDOR BRODSKY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Isidor Brodsky, clothing dealer, at 53 Bayard Street, show liabilities of $7,144 and assets of $316, consisting of stock, $225; machines, $75; cash, $5, and fire insurance rebate, $11. Of the liabilities, $2,660 is for rent and unexpired lease of 53 Bayard Street.

NICOLA GALGANO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Nicola Galgano of 87 Macdougal Street, formerly a dealer in groceries and liquors, by Beninati & Montana, creditors for $2,377, on a judgment of Nov. 7. It was alleged that he is insolvent, refused to pay the judgment, and that he said he had transferred all his property to other persons whose names he refused to give.

IDEAL ART NOVELTY COMPANY.—Edward E. Burtis and Edward Denivelle, who were partners in the Ideal Art Novelty Company, manufacturers of dolls' heads and novelties at 79 East 131st Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,698, and no assets. Edward R. Gould, the other partner, refused to join in the petition. The largest creditors are Hahn & Amberg, $2,867, deficiency on a foreclosure sale of a chattel mortgage on the stock, machinery, and fixtures. Mr. Denivelle has personal debts of $345.

JOHN E. COONAN.—John E. Coonan, a clerk of 404 West Fifty-first Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,567 and no assets. Among his creditors are Samuel Gray, $1,500, and Haaren & Meinken, $1,518. The debts were contracted between Jan. 1, 1905, and Jan. 1, 1910. Helen J. Coonan, his wife, who is a dressmaker, at 404 West Fifty-first Street, also filed a separate petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,286 and no assets. Of the liabilities, $1,881 is a judgment obtained by the State Excise Commissioner in April, 1906, as surety on an excise bond.

PETER L. BRETZ.—Peter L. Bretz, undertaker, living at 1,517 St. Peter's Avenue, the Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $14,886 and assets of $990, consisting of three horses, $475; two coaches, $500, and harness, $15. Among the creditors are Carrie Klausner, $2,875, chattel mortgage; Mrs. John Curren, $40, coach hire; Mrs. B. Firth, $885, cash; Carrie Joseph, $500, cash; Mrs. James Dunn, $500, cash; Frederick Cook, $3,489, grain and feed; Peter A. Roos, $1,627, carriages; Fritz Herdt, $255, horseshoeing, and Joe Widder, $210, coach hire. He has been in business since April, 1906, had a place on East Seventy-second Street, another on Tenth Avenue, and a stable on West Forty-ninth Street.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The storm that was central Sunday night over extreme Northeast Texas reached Mississippi by Monday morning, and storm warnings were ordered for the Atlantic Coast from Boston southward. Heavy snow warnings were also issued for the mountain districts of the Middle Atlantic States.

On Monday night the storm centred over Northwest Georgia, with increased development and general rains and snows occurred from the Mississippi Valley eastward. An extensive and cold high pressure area closely follows the storms, and temperatures are from 4 to 16 degrees below zero in North Dakota, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan.

The Southern storm will move eastward during Wednesday, and snow will continue east of the Mississippi River.

The high area will follow rapidly, accompanied by falling temperature, and cold waves may be expected Tuesday and Wednesday throughout the South as far as Florida.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate to brisk northeast, probably high over south portion; Middle Atlantic Coast, brisk to high northeast, becoming northwest by Wednesday; South Atlantic Coast, brisk to high southwest to northwest.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have brisk, possibly high, northeast to north winds, with snow or rain to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Snow Tuesday. Wednesday fair in southeast, snow in north and west portions, colder in south portion; increasing northeast to north winds.

New Jersey—Snow in north, snow or rain in south portion, Tuesday, with increasing northeast to north winds. Wednesday, fair and colder.

New England—Snow Tuesday, except fair in North and East Maine. Wednesday, local snows; increasing northeast to north winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Snow Tuesday, with increasing northeast to north winds. Wednesday, fair in south, snow in north portion; colder.

	1909.	1910.		1909.	1910.
3 A. M.	33	30	4 P. M.	52	31
6 A. M.	37	30	6 P. M.	49	28
9 A. M.	38	33	9 P. M.	45	27
12 M.	47	32	12 P. M.	43	26

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 30; for the corresponding date last year it was 44; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 37.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 32; at 8 P. M. it was 27. Maximum temperature, 34 degrees, at 1:10 P. M.; minimum, 26 degrees, at 10:30 P. M. Humidity, 61 per cent. at 8 A. M., 82 per cent. at 8 P. M.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

NOTICE OF SALE.

SUPREME COURT, QUEENS COUNTY.—CHARLES G. MAHLER, Plaintiff, against EDWARD MAHLER, GUSTAVE MAHLER, individually and as surviving Executor of the last will and testament of Matthew Mahler, 1st, deceased; KATHERINE MAHLER, wife of said Gustave Mahler; SOPHIA MAHLER, JUSTINA MAHLER, EVA MAHLER, MATTHEW MAHLER, 3d, JOSEPHINE C. MAHLER, HELEN D. MAHLER, GRACE E. MAHLER, HARLEM SAVINGS BANK, Defendants.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 5th day of November, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of December, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

PARCEL NO. 1.

All that certain tract of land with the improvements thereon, situate in Ward One of the Borough and County of Queens, City and State of New York, and being lots Numbers 33, 34, 35, 36 and 37 and the northeasterly half of lot Number 38 as known and distinguished on a map entitled "Map of 161 Lots of Ground situate in the Village of Astoria, Queens County, L. I., belonging to A. and W. H. Jackson, surveyed April, 1870, by P. G. Van Alst, City Surveyor," and filed in the office of the Clerk of the said County of Queens, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the northwesterly line of Ninth Avenue (Kouwenhoven Street,) distant one hundred and thirty-seven feet and six inches northeasterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the northwesterly line of said Ninth Avenue with the northeasterly line of Jamaica Avenue, as shown on said map; running thence northwesterly parallel with said Jamaica Avenue one hundred and forty-five feet and five and one-half inches to the southeasterly line of lands of George Pomeroy; thence running northeasterly and along lands of George Pomeroy, about one hundred and thirty-seven feet and six and one-half inches to the intersection of the northeasterly line of said lot Number 33 with the southeasterly line of said land of George Pomeroy; and thence southeasterly along the northeasterly line of said lot Number 33 one hundred and forty-two feet five and one-eighth inches to the northwesterly line of said Ninth Avenue; and thence southwesterly along the northwesterly line of Ninth Avenue one hundred and thirty-seven feet and six inches to the point of beginning.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR the Southern District of New York.—In the matter of MAX BIRNBAUM and NATHAN MAGER, individually and as members of the firm of BIRNBAUM & MAGER, Alleged Bankrupts.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of Charles R. Hickox, duly verified the 21st day of November, 1910, that a petition was filed in this court on the 25th day of October, 1910, praying that the above-named Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager be adjudicated bankrupts, and that a subpoena directed to the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager was duly issued out of this court to the Marshal of the Southern District of New York, and that the said Marshal has been unable to serve the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager personally, and that the said bankrupts, Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager, are not now within the jurisdiction of this court so that personal service may be made upon them, and that diligent efforts have been since made to ascertain the whereabouts of the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager, and that the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager are not now within the jurisdiction of this court.

It is now on motion of A. Joseph Geist, attorney for the receiver herein,

Ordered, that the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager answer or demur on or before the 17th day of December, 1910, to the petition filed herein in the office of the clerk of this court on the 25th day of October, 1910, and in case of their failure to appear, plead, answer or demur, adjudication shall be made, according to the prayer of the said petition, and it is further Ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two consecutive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 30th day of November, 1910, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said Max Birnbaum and Nathan Mager at their last-known place of abode on or about the day of the first publication.

Dated New York, November 23, 1910.

C. M. HOUGH,
U. S. D. J.

A. JOSEPH GEIST, Attorney for Petitioning Creditors and Receiver, 309 Broadway, New York.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CITY OF NEW YORK,

Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held November 11, 1910, the following petition was received:

TO THE BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT:

The petition of the Union Railway Company of New York City respectfully shows:

That it is a street surface railroad company, organized July 5, 1892, operating a street surface railroad by electricity, in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. It desires to obtain and hereby applies to your Honorable Body for grants of franchises or rights to construct and operate by overhead electricity three double track extensions or branches of its railroad as follows:

FIRST. From the present terminus of its road on the 155th Street Viaduct at or near Eighth Avenue, thence westerly in or upon the Viaduct and 155th Street with double tracks to Broadway, thence northerly, in or upon Broadway to 157th street, with a double track, thence easterly in or upon 157th Street, with a single track, to Amsterdam Avenue, thence southerly in or upon Amsterdam Avenue with a single track to 155th Street, connecting there with the tracks on said street proposed to be laid.

SECOND. From the terminus of the Company's double track road on Boscobel Avenue at or near Aqueduct Avenue to and across the Washington Bridge and the North and South Viaducts leading thereto, and also in or upon 181st Street from such southerly Viaduct to Broadway.

THIRD. From the terminus of the Company's double track road on Broadway at or near 230th Street, thence southerly in or upon Broadway to a point at or near 225th Street.

That each of said extensions will facilitate public travel between the Borough of Manhattan to the Borough of the Bronx.

Your petitioner prays that notice of such application be given and that grants of franchises or rights be made in accordance with the provisions of Section 74 of the Greater New York Charter and of the Railroad Law applicable to such proceedings.

Dated New York, October 27th, 1910.

UNION RAILWAY COMPANY OF NEW YORK CITY,
By (Signed) F. W. WHITRIDGE,
Receiver.
(Signed) EDWARD A. MAHER,
President.
Attest:
(Seal) REUNE MARTIN, Secretary.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

Edward A. Maher, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is the President of the Union Railway Company of New York City; that he has read the foregoing petition and knows the contents thereof; that the same is true of his own knowledge, except as to the matters therein stated to be alleged upon information and belief, and that as to those matters he believes it to be true.

(Signed) E. A. MAHER.

Sworn to before me this 29th day of October, 1910.
JAMES F. FEELY,
Notary Public, N. Y. Co.

And the following resolutions were thereupon adopted:

Whereas, the foregoing petition from the Union Railway Company of New York City, dated October 27, 1910, was presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a meeting held November 11, 1910;

Resolved, that in pursuance of law this Board sets Friday, the 9th day of December, 1910, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and Room 16 in the City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, as the time and place when and where such petition shall be first considered, and a public hearing be had thereon, at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard; and be it further

Resolved, that the Secretary is directed to cause such petition and these resolutions to be published for at least fourteen (14) days in two daily newspapers in the City of New York, to be designated by the Mayor, and for at least ten (10) days in the "City Record" immediately prior to such date of public hearing. The expense of such publication to be borne by the petitioner.

The Craftsman Showrooms

29 West 34th St.

will have a sale of Grueby Pottery, beginning Tuesday, December 6th. This collection will comprise some of the finest pieces of pottery manufactured by the Grueby Faience Co., who are going out of business. For this reason these pieces are being offered at a price which can never be repeated, and it is the only opportunity for lovers of this famous pottery to secure unusual examples. It will be well to remember that although the prices are reasonable there are only a limited number of pieces for sale. Among the examples of this ware, we will show lamps, lamp shades, vases, bowls, candlesticks, and tiles. On sale for one week, beginning Tuesday, December 6th.

CATHOLIC SYNOD TO MEET TO-DAY

The Thirteenth Session in the History of the Archdiocese of New York.

TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Also to Vote on the Decree Affecting the Dismissal of Priests by Bishops.

The Triennial Synod of the Roman Catholic Church in the Archdiocese of New York will begin its sessions in St. Patrick's Cathedral this morning. Not only will every officer of the ecclesiastical administration, with the exception of the Archbishop and his personal appointees, have to be elected, but special duties will be imposed upon the synod because of recent changes made in the canon law by the Consistorial Congregation at Rome.

Among the many important works begun by Pope Pius X. was the revision and codification of all the canon law, and under his own direction the Consistorial Congregation is now making a new code for the whole Roman Catholic world. The decree "Maxima Cura," as it is called, rearranges the method for the removal of a priest or rector from office, and this decision affects over 300 Bishops and 30,000 priests in English speaking countries alone.

Formerly a Bishop was not required to consult any one when he desired to remove a priest, though he was bound in conscience to treat all with justice. This is no longer possible, it now being illegal for the Bishop, of his own initiative, to remove any one. Under the new law there are nine specific causes in which a priest can be removed. The new law requires that when a priest is brought up under any of the nine causes the Bishop must call in the two senior examiners and lay the matter before them, and if they agree that the priest has been derelict the priest is invited to resign. A fixed time is given the priest to make a defense, and, if necessary, witnesses must be called. At the end of the tribunal the Bishop and the examiners cast a secret vote as to their finding in the case.

The synod that begins this morning will vote on this decree and the result of the vote will be sent to the Consistorial Congregation at Rome, which body will give consideration to the expression of the opinion of the synod. The synod will also re-elect all of the officers of the archdiocese except the three Vicar Generals and the Chancellor, all of whom are personal appointees of Archbishop Farley, and the Archbishop himself. The officers to be elected include the Diocesian Attorney, the Theological Censor, two members of the Board of Consultors, and the Supervisor of Charities.

Other officers to be elected will be fifteen members of the Board of Examiners of the Clergy, seven examiners of teachers, the rural deans, eighteen members of the School Board, the Church Music Commission, and the Trustees of the Fund for Infirm Priests. This will be the thirteenth synod in the history of the Archdiocese of New York, and the third in the administration of Archbishop Farley.

ON TRIAL FOR WIFE-MURDER.

Abraham Roth Is Charged with Cutting Mrs. Roth's Throat.

The trial of Abraham Roth, a clothing operator, who formerly lived at 24 Rivington Street, for killing his wife on July 28, was begun yesterday before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions. The whole day was taken up in selecting a jury, thirty talesmen being examined before one satisfactory to both sides was empaneled. Assistant District Attorneys Moss and McGuire are appearing for the prosecution, while Roth's attorney is Moses A. Sachs.

The murder which Roth is charged with was committed in his apartments on the fourth floor of the Rivington Street house, where he lived with his wife and five children. Three of his children, Beckie, aged 8; Mollie, aged 9, and Israel, aged 11, are expected to testify against their father, and are at present being cared for by the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society. All three children were sleeping in a room connected with their father's at the time of the murder, and were aroused from their sleep by the cries of their mother. They all said at the Coroner's inquest that their father had threatened to kill his wife.

It is charged that Roth, after quarreling with his wife at the table, continued it in the bedroom, and after a short argument cut his wife's throat and then tried to end his own life. His wife ran to the window yelling for help, and losing her balance fell to the fire escape on the second floor, from which she was taken dead.

Roth said at the time he was lying in bed asleep when he felt a pain in his throat and woke up to find that his throat was cut and his wife slashing hers with a knife, and that as he struggled to get from the bed she threw herself from the window.

Assistant District Attorney Moss said that only a short time before the murder Roth had been sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse for an assault upon his wife. Mr. Moss added that the children would not be called as actual witnesses of the crime, as they had only seen their mother fall from the window.

UNDER TRAIN ON A TRESTLE.

Brakeman Hung Head Down, After Falling, Until Danger Was Past.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—While the stork was visiting his home here, John O'Shea, a brakeman on the Lackawanna Railroad, had a narrow escape from death. He had the experience of hanging head down on the under side of a trestle while forty cars of his train passed above him. O'Shea kept perfectly still until the danger was past.

The story never got around for a week, for O'Shea pledged the railroad men to secrecy so as not to worry his wife, but now he is willing to tell of it. He was riding on the engine as the train neared Paterson Junction. He leaned out preparatory to leaping off the train to turn a switch, when an upright of the bridge that carries the Lackawanna tracks over those of the Erie knocked him off. He fell headlong between the ties and hung there till the train passed.

O'Shea managed after that to get his head up and raise a cry for help. The other men extricated him. His brother was killed in January at High Bridge on the Central Railroad, where he was working as a telegraph operator.

VESSEL TWICE ASHORE.

Little Hope of Saving the L. C. Wishart, Stranded Off Little Egg Harbor.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 5.—The three-masted schooner L. C. Wishart, from Jones River, Va., for New York, is ashore on Little Egg Harbor bar, and will probably be a total loss. The crew of six men are at the Egg Harbor Life Saving Station.

The Wishart went ashore yesterday on Brigantine Shoals, a short distance above this city, but floated at high tide last night and proceeded up the coast, apparently undamaged. The schooner had gone only a short distance when it was driven onto Little Egg Harbor bar by the heavy wind. The vessel is loaded with railroad ties, and there seems to be little hope of saving it.

SELL LACES AT WALDORF.

New York Exchange for Woman's Work Holds Annual Bazaar.

The New York Exchange for Woman's Work, whose headquarters are 334 Madison Avenue, held its annual bazaar at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, with a large number of its managers in charge. Among these were:

Mrs. G. F. Baker, Mrs. Albert Boardman, Miss Mary Choate, Mrs. H. Holbrook Curtis, Mrs. C. A. De Gersdorff, Miss Herriman, Mrs. C. H. Isham, Mrs. W. V. Lawrence, Mrs. Samuel H. Ordway, Mrs. Frances Parker, Mrs. John T. Terry, Jr., Mrs. W. G. Thompson, Mrs. E. Van Lennep, Mrs. John Seely Ward, Mrs. Charles G. Taylor, Mrs. Edward Van Ingen, Miss Candace Stimpson.

There were many beautiful pieces of lace, consigned by women who formerly had money. One of them was an exquisite three-yard piece of point lace five inches wide, which was for sale at $10 a yard. There was a wonderful old ivory box, in perfect condition, with a trick lock, valued at $50. There were other shawls and laces, fancy articles, and Christmas goodies.

Prohibition Party Spent $3,233.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 5.—J. A. Hartman, as Treasurer of the Prohibition Party of the State, certified to the Secretary of State to-day that he received and disbursed $3,233 during the last election. The Brooklyn Business Men's Association, which favored the election of John A. Dix for Governor, spent $916. Herman A. Metz of Brooklyn contributed $363.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, the superior workmanship and the high grade leathers used, you would then understand why Dollar for Dollar I Guarantee My Shoes to hold their shape, look and fit better and wear longer than any other $3.50 or $4.00 shoes you can buy. Do you realize that my shoes have been the standard for over thirty years; that I make and sell more $3.50 and $4.00 shoes than any other manufacturer in the United States?

The benefits of free hides, which apply principally to sole leather, and the reduced tariff on sole leather, now enables me to give the wearer more value for his money, better and longer wearing $3.50 and $4.00 shoes than I could give him previous to the tariff revision.

Quality counts. It has made my shoes The Leaders of the World.

For Fall and Winter Wear, my immense stock includes the latest and best styles in every size and width, especially in Young Men's Lasts, and my stores also carry at all times the most complete assortment of the more substantial styles such as have made W. L. Douglas shoes a household word everywhere.

You will be pleased when you buy my shoes because of the fit and appearance, and when it comes time for you to purchase another pair, you will be more than pleased because the last ones wore so well, and gave you so much comfort.

MARY CARY

By KATE LANGLEY BOSHER

THIS is the story of optimism and love which made a leading critic exclaim: "Let's be glad for books like Mary Cary!" And another said: "This wholesome, sunny, laughing, loving story." A Southern writer adds: "This story is as simple and sweet as the fragrance of lilacs or any other old fashioned flower." Could you find a better Christmas message to give any friend?
